Social Life in America.

When we come to speak of the manifested capacities for a courteous and clevated society, there is one trait which will occur to every one. We have attained, Great Biltain beyond any people on the face of the earth courtesy towards women. There are two characteristics of this, which are of the highest promise. The first is akin to our great political idea, that man is valuable as man, all being politically equal. It is that woman is to be treated courteously as woman. Abroad, Indies of rank or family or wealth, are treated with deference, but or wealth, are treated with deference, but all Americans are shocked with the neglect Corsies, Sendula, into Africa, thence through Asia. of women who have no such claims to dis-Thackery: "I will tell you where I have been put in mind of two of the finest gentle." tingtion. We quote a line or two from been put in mind of two of the finest gentlemen, books bring us any mention of ; here in your own omnibus carriages and railway cars, when I have seen a woman step in, handsome or not, well-dressed or not. a workman in hob nail shoes, or a dandy in the hight of fashion, rise up and give her his place. I think Mr. Spectator, with his short face, if he had seen such a deed of courtesy, would have smiled a sweet smile to the doer of that gentlemanly-like action, and have made him a low bow from under his great periwig. I am sure Dick Steele would have hailed him were he dandy or mechanic." &c.

This extract introduces the other characteristic of Americans. Not only is every woman treated as a lady, because she is a woman, but this is done by every American. It is not especially characteristic of city or country, or cultivation or want of cultivation, of the old States or the new ; wherever there is a woman who behaves modestly, from one ocean to the other, she has a protector in every American she meets. This is exceedingly beautifull. It deserves more Penn, in an elaborate scientific paper says eulogy than it has attained. The world There exists in the Northern Hemispher has never seen any thing like it. If they have business with each other, they may as well be civil, but what is the use of perpetual bowing and smiling and shaking the London the state as the mainstay and tion of a gunboat fleet as the mainstay and hands and taking off hats? A great deal of use in it, we say, if it promotes good feeling, makes us all better and happier. and if it would tend powerfully to make the great Anglo American race gentlemanly externally, as well as internally. To this, as a people, we have not attain ed. Our manners, as a whole, are bad. There is a hundred times the kindness that appears on the surface, a thousand times more courtesy in men's hearts than there is in their actions, and Americans are constantly smothering down good feeling. which custom will not allow them to express because it is not considered manly. Manners of any elaboration are considered, if not deceitful, yet dangerous, and it is almost as much as one's character for honesty is worth, to say the simple truth in the way of commendation of a book, a speech, or a good aution. While every one, of must be, for we see the rich rascal courtcourse, likes to be honestly praised, the ed, his offences forgotten ; while the poor reputation of a flatterer, or the mere ,echo of a distinguished man, is amongst the most poverty, is shunned and of no repute .repulsive possible to Americans. Our There is a redeeming grace in gold which manners, in truth, greatly need amend hides all iniquity. As the gold leaf ap ment, or rather formation. We are not plied to the pustules of the small-pox preso much an ill mannered as an un-mannered vents their leaving a pit, so does the same race. We get through our business and gold, in the shape of current coin, restore devotion in some kind of straight forward the wounded reputation, leaving not a sear awkward fashion, and so that no one is behind, knocked down and hurt in a day's operations, we feel as if we were safely through that twenty-four hours. There is a great deal of wilfulness in this. Because we can fight bravely, we will be as rough as we choose; because deceit is characteristic of courts and worn out aristocracies, we determine that we will be blunt ; and because French and Italians often make themselves ridiculous by grinner, we will make ourselves stiff and disagreeable. "I take leave to say" observes Mr. Thackery, "that courteousness can be out of place at no show for the good of mankind, every one time and under no flag. I love such mirth as does not make friends ashamed to lock upon each other next morning ; nor men, that cannot well bear it, to repeat the money they spend when they are warmed with drink. And take this for a ruje : you may nick out such time and such companies, that you may make yourselves merrier for a little than a great deal of money ; for "'tis the company and not the charge that makes the feast."

Distruction or SERIES.—The Agricultural Bureau of the Patent Office is actively engaged in distributing rare and valuable seeds proceed in this and other countries. It is said that the quanthis and other countries. It is snot that the quart-ity thus scattered over the land will amount, by the opening of summer, to over five hundred bush-els. These seeds are put in packages varying from a thimbleful to a half pint, and are distributed from a thimbleful to a haif punt, and are distributed through every part of the country to the most no-ted of our scientific agriculturists, through the mail or through the M. C.'s who represent their districts. Rev. Robert Allen, Commissioner of Public Schools in Rhode Island, having received some of these seeds, conceived the idea of distributing them among the school children as rewards of merit.— This coming to the head of the Agricuitural Bu-reau, orders were given for the immediate trans-mission of 400 packages of assorted garden flower seeds, of the best kind, to the Comm moner-the for each school in the State. This idea of stimulating scholarship, and awakening at the time a love of agriculture and hort calture in the minds of child dren, is worth thinking about-is it not !

THE GUN-BOAT FLEET OF ENGLAND. The London Times says that the inven principal feature in a naval armament is in deed a novelty in war. Like other discoveries, it has grown out of the necessities of the time. The practical efficiency of England's naval fleets it says must be computed by the number and equipments of the mosquito swarm of minute vessels, and not by the squadrons of ships of the line,-If these vessels are so available for attack, are they not as serviceable for defending a harbor ! One of the standing subjects of ridicule against Jefferson used to be his recommendation of harbor defence by a guaboat flotilla. Yet modern experience has brought one of the most ingenious nations of the world to adopt the gun-boat system as the most effective which can be employ ed in shallow waters. 07 Is poverty a crime ? EF An old gentleman had three daugh ters, all marriageable. A young buck went wooing the younger, and finally got he consent to have him, "if pa was willing. Upon application to the old gentleman for his consent, he flew into a passion, declaring that "no man should pick his daughter in that way ; if the young man wished to have one of his daughters, he might marry the oldest, or leave the house forthwith."

Whatever indifference we may affect to sucrafice said to be made of it to fortune and reflection, is always inspired by the despair of rendering ourselves illustrious we boast of what we have, and despise what we have not.
