

talented, eloquent and influential preachers of the gospel in Linn county than myself, who would perhaps not be willing to acknowledge me as their "head" some of the most popular preachers of the gospel in Oregon reside in Linn county, and I am far from being vain enough to suppose myself capable of standing, or "walking" at their "head" as their file leader. In fact Delazon flatters me excessively in all his allusions to my character by giving me a degree of importance to which I do not make the slightest pretensions. Delazon evidently thinks I possess an influence in this county which he has great reason to fear, or he would not avail himself of every occasion to calumniate my character. In common with more than two-thirds of the preachers of the gospel, as well as of the really intelligent people of this county, I regard Delazon as a corrupt, unprincipled demagogue, but why he makes me the special object of his base vituperation can only be explained on one principle. He once associated my name with a seat in the United States Senate as Senator from Oregon. Ah! there's the rub. Delazon is dreaming by day and by night about that seat, and he is fearful and jealous of every man who might possibly be a formidable rival. But allow me to allay his anxieties by assuring him that some six years ago I resolved that I would not become a candidate for any civil office from fence-viewer to the Presidency. I will now except that when Delazon gets to be President of the United States I have some thoughts of applying for the appointment of running minister to South America.

But Delazon has gratified his spleen by falsifying my vote before the public, and that too with the glorious visu voce "open poll books" before his eyes. He says I "marched" up and voted for Keeney I say I voted for R. H. Crawford, H. N. George, and David Ballard, and David Ballard's name was entered under my own eye in the "book" in a plain round back hand, in place of Keeney. I have before me the certificates of J. H. Lines, Clerk of Linn county, and Hugh Dinwiddie, Inspector, and Origen Thomson, Clerk of the election in this precinct, both setting forth that my name is recorded in the "book" as having voted for Crawford, George, and Ballard, and of course not for Keeney. I took little interest in the contest, and did not electioneer for Keeney farther than simply to remark that if it were a matter of compulsion I would vote for Keeney in preference to Delazon. And I yet say that notwithstanding my "oath" aforesaid, and notwithstanding "the steer" aforesaid, I do regard Jonathan Keeney as a purer patriot and a more honest citizen than such Janus faced, hireling and calumniating demagogues as Delazon Smith.

WILSON BLAIN
Union Point, Linn Co., O. T.
July 19, 1856.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4, 1856.
Editor of the Oregon Argus—Sir: As I sit musing in my quiet room, I hear the music and sounds of joy and gladness in the streets, commemorative of independence, for which our fathers fought. I am reminded of the fact that other nations, and people, and kindreds, and tongues desire independence; and I have thought, if so good for us, why not for others too?

In view of the fact that our people are rapidly taking possession of the beautiful valleys of the Pacific, and will soon occupy the choice regions of the interior and on the plains, thereby curtailing the red man's range, and forcing a closer proximity of the races, it is important that we should now consider well the causes which have heretofore resulted in the destruction of one and the detriment of the other.

It is not (as some suppose) a necessary consequence of contact; the history of Pennsylvania and the testimony of Dr. McLoughlin disprove it—for it is known that this gentleman has lived for more than half a century as a resident and trader with Indians, and for twenty-two years of that time he was Superintendent of the Hudson Bay Company; and yet he declares in all that time there was no warring. Both races dwelt together in harmony under the administration of impartial laws, and the Dr. declares his belief that if no injustice was allowed against the Indians there never would be war from them, because they know their interest, and feel proud of the white man's friendship. But yet the sentiment is common, and often expressed, that "the races can't live together." The proper answer would be, "Stay at home; if you cannot live amongst French, or Spanish, or Indians, why they don't wish you. But surely you don't expect any people to leave their own country for your accommodation." The sentiment is not true, because in South America, the Isles of the sea, and throughout the British dominions, they live together, and no cause of discord. The sentiment is not creditable to those who make it, because it is an acknowledgment that the people are so reckless they won't keep the peace, and the government so weak that it can't restrain them.

Let us now look at the circumstances in which we find the different tribes. As a general thing each occupies a certain prescribed district, over which a jealous control is held. This is necessary for their existence, because if driven from their own domain they are forced upon their neighbors, and war ensues. The first explorer comes along. The natives at first, awed by superior intellect, and attracted by the works of art, are pleased with their visitors, and for a time confidence exists, and mutual good will is exchanged; but no sooner do they perceive a design of permanent occupancy of their land than jealousy is excited, and a natural desire felt to get rid of the intruders. This desire is often aroused to hate and murder, by contemptuous treatment and abuse of their females. But the natives, not being equal to an open attack, must use strategy, take by surprise, or cut off in detail. And then forthwith they are denounced as treacherous savages, unworthy to live.

Now, Mr. Editor, suppose a company of foreign travelers, with arms and equipments as much superior to yours as yours are to those of the Indians, should settle upon your farm, and subsist upon the products of your land; would that be any worse than our monopolizing the Indians' land, and annihilating his means of life? And suppose you had no extraneous aid, but a few immediate relatives, would you not use strategy or any means in your power to rid you of the intruders? Certainly you would, and not be a treacherous savage either. Well, then, let us allow our fellows to exercise the same impulse of our common humanity. For undoubtedly the Father of us all, who supplied these streams with fish, and raised these lofty hills, and made these valleys fertile, gave them as the inheritance of the red man's race. But as the reception of civilization and science would lessen their necessity for such large domains, we could purchase all we need by their impartation. Yet to be just, we should not think of dollars and cents, because no amount of these, or of their material value, would be an equivalent in their circumstances. The compensation should be given in such a manner as to assure them of our sincerity as friends, and to such an extent as will insure them facilities for a constant development in the higher scale of being. In this way the Indians would become a trophy of our science, a living monument of our philanthropy and religion, and a valuable element of our national strength. And, Mr. Editor, who does not see how much better and cheaper and more honorable this would be, than taking their domains for less than value, and then spending millions to allay their resentment for the cheat.

But there is a common notion that we must "whip them first," "chastise," "humiliate," &c. But the questions arise, what for? and what good would it do? If the strangers, whom we have supposed in possession of your farm, were to chastise or kill some of the members of your family, would that inspire you with esteem for their justice? No. It would be as a smoldering fire to consume your oppressors.

Those who entertain the above sentiment are not versed in human history, or they forget that it belongs to the ages of darkness, and is the language of tyrants who govern by terror and torture. Who, I ask, does not know that fear is repellent in its essence, whilst love is adhesive and permanent? The Indian appreciates our superior power; we have only to make him conscious that it will be uniformly exercised for his interest, and he will yield to our control as naturally as the rivers flow to the ocean.

There is then only one principle or true basis for concord and happiness in human government, and that is impartial justice, a full practical acknowledgment of the rights of all; and it is a truism confirmed by the history of the world that where the just rights of any class are denied, other classes are not secure in theirs.

If then, Mr. Editor, a calm review of the incidents pertaining to the origin and progress of the disastrous difficulties which have distracted our country, should disclose the fact that we have not dealt with due consideration and forbearance towards a less fortunate race of our fellow-men, it becomes us as a great and powerful and magnanimous people to make all the restitution in our power. It becomes us to be more earnest and exemplary by virtuous lives, purity, brotherly kindness, and charity, to attract these poor savages to goodness and truth. And, in conclusion, permit me to ask, should we not be more than ever ready in the exercise of that mercy towards our fellows which we desire of the final Judge, who is no respecter of persons?

Respectfully yours,
JOHN BRSON.

DIED!

On Monday evening, July 21st, WILLIAM HENRY, son of John Thomas, aged 18 months, from a disease of the heart.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of certain executions issued out of the District Court for the county of Clackamas, upon judgments on mechanics' liens, and to me directed, in favor of Samuel Shafer, Charles R. Butler, and others, against the Willamette Falls Canal, Milling, and Transportation Co., and to satisfy the said executions I have levied the said Company, together with a certain parcel of land, being a portion of Robert Moore's land claim, situated in Clackamas county, and bounded as follows, to wit: Beginning at the Willamette river, thence by line extending westwardly with the north boundary of the basin up the bluff to a point 13 rods distant from the edge of said bluff, thence 62 rods in a southerly direction to a point 13 rods from the edge of said bluff, thence eastwardly in a line parallel with the first described course to the bank of the said river and to the main channel thereof, thence by the said main channel to the northern line of said basin, to a place of beginning. I shall proceed to sell to the highest bidder on months' credit on SATURDAY, THE 23rd DAY OF AUGUST, 1856, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, at public auction, all the right, title, and interest of said Company in and to the above described premises.

The above described premises will be sold subject to a mortgage given by Daniel H. Ferguson to Robert Moore on the 1st day of December, 1852. Sale to take place on the premises.

SEP HUELAT, Sheriff of Clackamas County. Per BRADLEY, Deputy. July 26, 1856.

Look Here.

LEFT my house about five weeks ago CHEV. ALLIER RICHARDSON, an insane man. Any person who will bring him back to me at Clackamas City shall be paid for his trouble. July 19, 1856-14. JOSEPH CHURCH.

WE are just receiving a quantity of DRY GOODS, EARTHEN WARE, and almost everything else a man can mention. Farmers would do well to call and get their harvest supply about now. CHARMAN & WARNER. July 12.

Lost.

AN IRON GRAY MARE, five years old last spring. She belonged to the Clackamas company of volunteers under Capt. Casan, and was mounted by one Donaldson. On the return of the company she gave out, and was left at or near the foot of Laurel Hill. Any person sending me word of her whereabouts shall be suitably rewarded. 13w3 D. J. SCHNEBL. June 28, 1856.

Telegraph Notice.

AT a called meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pacific Telegraph Company, held at Lafayette on Monday the 23d of June, Clayton Richardson and A. R. Burbank were appointed Collectors to receive the moneys due on the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th instalments of said Company. The stockholders are hereby requested to pay to the said Collectors the several sums now due on said instalments at the earliest possible period, as the money is now required to complete the line to Corvallis.

Per order of the Board of Directors. J. S. McTENEY, President. July 5, 1856.
