

Beautiful Extract.

We take the following from Sidney Smith's charity sermon in behalf of the blind:

"The author of the book Ecclesiastes has told us 'that the light is sweet—that it is a pleasant thing for the eyes to behold the sun.' The sense of sight is indeed the highest bodily privilege, the purest physical pleasure which man has derived from his Creator. To see the wandering fire, after he has finished his journey through the nations, coming to his eastern heavens, the mountains painted with light, the floating splendor of the sea, the earth waking from deep slumber, the day flowing down the sides of the hills till it reaches the secret valleys, the little insects recalled to life, the bird trying her wings, man going forth to his labor, each created being moving, thinking, acting, contriving, according to the scheme and compass of its nature, by force, by cunning, by reason, by necessity. Is it possible to join in this animated scene and feel no pity for the sons of darkness—for the eyes that will never see light—for the poor clouded in everlasting gloom? If you ask me why they are miserable and dejected, I turn you to the plentiful valleys, to the fields bringing forth their increase, to the freshness and the flowers of the earth, to the endless variety of its colors, the grace the symmetry, the shape of all its bears—these you have forgotten, because you have always enjoyed them; but these are the means by which God Almighty makes man what he is—cheerful, lively, erect, full of enterprise, mutable, glancing from heaven, prone to labor and to act."

SEMI-SUBTERRANEAN LAKE.—In Hester's guide book of the plains, mention is made of a sulphur lake a few miles to the north of the junction of the Ft. Hall and California roads. We had the curiosity, says the editor of the Placerville American, to visit this lake from having seen a beautiful little petrified fish two inches in length, suspended as an ornament from the neck of an Indian child, and said to have been taken from the sulphur lake. Accompanied by three Indian boys as guides, we started early in the morning for the lake, and reached it on foot in about two hours. It lies on the east side of the Bear River valley, and directly at the foot of a nearly perpendicular wall of rock more than six hundred feet high.

It is an immense pool of spring, rather than a lake, a little over one hundred yards in length along the base of the mountain, and nearly the same in width, but extending in one place under a shivering rock that nearly touches the surface of the water for many yards; this is all there is subterranean about it, though its extent in that direction is unknown, never having been explored. That it is an immense spring issuing from the mountains, is apparent from the fact that any floating substance thrown under the shivering rock, is immediately brought back to the opposite bank. There is no visible outlet to the waters except that the margin is little else than rock, with innumerable fissures traversing it in every direction, and through which, though with no apparent current at the surface, the waters undoubtedly escape.

The surface of the rocks at the edge of the water, and for several inches above and below, is coated with a thick substance resembling sulphur, but without its properties, being unflammable, however dry. Not a living fish is to be seen in its waters, but by digging into and breaking up a kind of soft scoria or volcanic mud nearly hardened into stone, and that makes a portion of the bank, great numbers of fish, from two to six inches in length, are found imbedded therein, and perfectly petrified. They are found beautifully perfect, with the exception of the fins, that are always broken in disengaging them from their rocky envelope. The whole matter of how they came there, and the process by which they became so perfectly changed to stone, we leave for others to determine.

LORD RAGLAN'S PONY.—Coming through a street in May Fair, the other day, my attention was attracted by a pretty white pony being led along the pavement by a groom. Presently I was surprised to see the pony mount the steps of one of the houses and enter through the door into the hall. On coming up to see what was going on, I found a young lady embracing the pony's neck, and talking in terms of endearment. What did all this mean?—I determined to make inquiries of the groom. I found that the young lady I had seen was Miss Fitzroy Somerset, daughter of the late Lord Raglan, and that the pony was the identical horse upon which Lord Raglan rode before Sebastopol. "I take the pony up to her every morning," said the man; "she is very fond of it, and feeds and kisses it like a baby—it was her father's, you see."

If a man be sincerely wedded to truth, he must make up his mind often to find her a portionless virgin, and he must take her for herself alone. The contract, too, must be to love, cherish, and obey her not until death only, but beyond it; for this is a union that must survive not only death, but time, the conqueror of death.

Accustom your children to a strict attention to truth, even in the most minute particulars. If a thing happened at one window, and they relate it as happening at another, instantly correct them; you do not know where deviations from truth will end.

PATERNAL DUTY.—The father who plunges into business so deeply that he has no leisure for domestic duties and pleasures, and whose only intercourse with his children consist in a brief word of authority, or a surly lamentation over their intolerable expensiveness, is equally to be pitied and to be blamed. What right has he to devote to other pursuits the time which God has allotted to his children? Nor is it any excuse to say he cannot support his family in their present style of living without this effort. I ask, by what right can his family demand to live in a manner which requires him to neglect his most solemn and important duties? Nor is it an excuse to say that he wishes to leave them a competence. Is he under obligation to leave them that competence which he desires? Is it an advantage to them to be relieved from the necessity of labor? Besides, is money the only desirable bequest that a father can leave to his children? Surely, well-cultivated intellects, hearts sensible to domestic affection; the love of parents, and brethren, and sisters; a taste for home pleasures; habits of order, regularity and industry; a hatred of vice and vicious men; and a lively sensibility to the excellence of virtue—are as valuable a legacy as an inheritance of property—simple property, purchased by the loss of every habit which could render that property a blessing.—Wayland.

GEN. WALKER'S EARLY LOVE.—The history of Gen. Walker, like that of all other men of mark, is not free from the romance of love as well as that of war. Whilst a law student in New Orleans, he conceived a warm attachment for an interesting young lady, who was born deaf and dumb. She had been well educated and was of very engaging manners. Her misfortune drew towards her the sympathies and regard of all tender-hearted persons. With his characteristic originality and peculiarity of feeling and sentiment, Walker became warmly enamored of this young lady. She reciprocated his regard, and for sometime they were never happy unless together. He soon acquired a knowledge of her signs, and they conversed with great facility, the medium of their conversation, no doubt adding zest to their enjoyment. At last some slight misunderstanding interrupted their intercourse, and before a reconciliation could be effected, the young lady died. This event gave a tinge of melancholy to the thoughts and character of Walker. Perhaps, as many of his friends thought, it produced the change in his character which ensued—a change from the quiet, modest student to the bold, daring, dauntless revolutionist and warrior.

UNPAID LETTERS.—It is stated that the Postmaster-General has instructed the postmasters at New York that whenever any letter is deposited unpaid he must send a circular notice to the party addressed, that the said letter is detained for want of payment, and that it will be forwarded on the receipts, in stamps, of the amount due. This plan is intended to prevent the accumulation of unpaid letters, and if successful it will be extended to other cities.

MINNESOTA.—This Territory, which is growing with wonderful rapidity, has now a population of 120,000, more than sufficient to entitle it to be admitted as a State of the Union. No application, however, has yet been made for admission.

The Hon. Jas. G. Hardy, Lieut. Governor of Kentucky, died at his residence in Barran county, on Thursday last. He was a native of Virginia, but an old resident of Kentucky.

Though men may impose upon themselves what they please by their corrupt imaginations, truth will ever keep its station; and as glory is nothing else but the shadow of virtue, it will certainly disappear at the departure of truth.

The following specimen of the "Eloquence of the Bar" is not distant Western State, was actually delivered, as we know from a correspondent, as here reported in his notes. The case was the trial of a person on a writ of habeas corpus. Which said, the "learned" and eloquent advocate was on, it is some what difficult to ascertain from his speech: "The counsel on the other side, sir, misapprehends the principle involved in this important case. Law, sir, is very simple, if we understand its elementary principles. The principle of this case, sir, is to be found in the honorable profession. I hold in my hand, sir, a volume of Blackstone, the great author of the English law; yet, sir, I hold in my hand, sir, that glorious magna charta, the foundation and bulwark of English liberty, which was wrung by the illustrious King John, upward in hand, from the bloody barons on the banks of the pleasant Boyne, on that momentous occasion! But, sir, I did not intend to make a speech, sir, and I shall not examine the question, sir, I submit it to the Court with these few incongruous remarks."—Kickerbacker.

BURIAL PLACES IN THE CRIMES.—The following has been published in the Crimine: Headquarters, April 29, 1856. It will be agreeable to the theory to know that it is the honorable wish and intention of the profession, I hold in my hand, sir, a volume of Blackstone, the great author of the English law; yet, sir, I hold in my hand, sir, that glorious magna charta, the foundation and bulwark of English liberty, which was wrung by the illustrious King John, upward in hand, from the bloody barons on the banks of the pleasant Boyne, on that momentous occasion! But, sir, I did not intend to make a speech, sir, and I shall not examine the question, sir, I submit it to the Court with these few incongruous remarks."—Kickerbacker.

The revised code of North Carolina declares that if a person fight a duel and either of the parties shall be killed, the survivor on conviction shall suffer death and the absconding shall be considered accessories before the fact. If no death shall ensue all the parties shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and on conviction be punished accordingly, and moreover ineligible to any office in the State.

A COMMON MISTAKE OF FARMERS.—A farmer in Ohio last fall put up his wheat crop for a high price. In February he was offered $10.00. In April he offered to take $7.00. In June he would sell for $5.00. There is a lesson in this for other farmers.

PLENTY OF COAL.—Professor Hitchcock, in a recent lecture at Chicago on Geology, states that the coal deposits on the northern half of the continent, embrace an area of 225,000 miles, and are capable of yielding 1,100 cubic miles of coal. It is estimated that one cubic mile will last a thousand years, for purposes which it is likely to be wanted; and consequently, we have a supply of fuel in the earth for the next eleven hundred thousand years.

A CURIOUS FACT.—A blubber on a fat whale is sometimes in its thickest parts from fifteen to twenty inches thick, though seldom more than a foot; it is of a coarser texture and much harder than pork. So very full of oil is it, that a cask closely packed with the clean raw fat of the whale will not contain the oil boiled from it, and the scraps that are left behind; this has been frequently proved by experiment.

Charman & Warner. MR. EDITOR.—You will please tell all our fellow-citizens of Oregon that we are still doing business under the old firm, and under the old name, and that a number of goods is better than a new shilling. We want to sell goods, and will do so as cheap as any other house in Oregon City. We have enlarged our business materially, and now have on hand, as usual, all kinds of GROCERIES, such as all sorts of country trade, which we hope all who have favored us with their liberal patronage know full well. Call again—we will do our best. CHARMAN & WARNER, April 19, 1856.

Farm for Sale. A FARM of 640 acres of land in Yamhill county, six miles west of Lafayette, is now offered for sale. There are 80 acres in cultivation, and 120 acres in pasture—an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees. The place is well watered and timbered, and has two wells of excellent water, good buildings and out-houses. The land is as good as there is in Oregon or the world, and its location makes it as good a stock farm as there is in the Territory. Farming utensils and stock will be sold with the place, if desired. The claim is well stocked with cattle, horses, and hogs, and can be had on reasonable terms. Call and inquire at THE AGRICULTURE OFFICE, Oregon City.

Water Power for Sale. THE undersigned would like to sell one half of his mill and water power on the Tualatin river, about three miles from Linn City, known as Moore's Mill. It is probably the best water privilege, with the exception of the great Falls of the Willamette, that there is in Oregon. I would like to sell one-half or one-fourth of my claim together with the mill and water power. My object is to get a partner, to enable me to properly improve the water power. JAMES M. MOORE, Feb. 9, 1856. 43f
