

Waik State Convention in Kentucky--

Refusal to Endorse Mr. Fillmore. Louisville, Thursday, July 3. The Whig State Convention met in this city today, seventeen counties being represented. The Lexington Whig platform was adopted with the additional resolutions that Congress should pass stringent laws to prohibit the importation of foreign paupers and felons, and that the time for the naturalization of foreigners should be extended; also that this Convention deem it impolitic to make nominations and recommendations to the Whigs of the Union to hold a National Convention, but such Whigs to vote for the candidate whose principles conform most nearly to his own.

A resolution expressing the confidence of the Whigs of Kentucky in Millard Fillmore, and saying he was worthy of their support as in 1856, was rejected by the vote of sixteen counties against to one in favor. Joshua F. Bell and Judge Kinkaid supported the resolution endorsing Mr. Fillmore. Adjourned, sine die.

Six Steamers Destroyed by Fire at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Wednesday, July 2. At 5 o'clock this morning a fire broke out on board the steamer St. Clair, at the upper end of the levee, and so was communicated to the steamers Paul Anderson, Grand Turk, and J. M. Stockwell, lying alongside. The steamer Southern and Saranac were cut loose from their moorings, but the burning boats floated against them, and settled on fire. The whole six boats were entirely consumed. All are old ones, excepting the Southern. Loss about $100,000. Insurance not ascertained. How the fire originated it is not known.

Peace Address from the Merchants of Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, July 3. At a meeting of merchants held at the Exchange this noon, a Committee of five was appointed to draft an address in response to the Manchester Peace Address.

Gen. Persifer F. Smith.

Gen. Persifer F. Smith has arrived at Washington, having been sent for by the President. Orders have been issued, and he will proceed as early as possible to Kansas to take charge of the United States forces there. His orders are imperative; in fact, he is clothed with full power to put down all insurrection, come from what quarter it may. This policy has been deemed advisable in order to take the Kansas imbroglio out of the hands of Congress and give peace and quiet to the country. N. Y. Tribune, June 28.

Mexico.

The difficulties between Spain and Mexico remain unsettled. Mexico, being on the defensive, does not seem disposed to yield, while her ancient antagonist menaces her by displaying a powerful fleet before Vera Cruz, and her subjects in Havana boast that she will coerce Mexico to a settlement. The Spanish force spoken of consists of eleven ships of the line, three frigates, four steamers, and two corvettes. Mexico it seems, has failed to fulfill certain treaty stipulations, which the dignity and duty of Spain require she should do; hence the trouble. Negotiations have been suspended, Mexico refusing to recognize the Minister from Spain until the latter recedes from her threatening attitude. This she neglects to do, being at the same time cautious not to proceed to open hostilities. The correspondent of the Alta California, writing from the city of Mexico July 8th says the differences have been amicably arranged though not settled. The Spanish fleet has withdrawn from Vera Cruz, and the attachments on Spanish property have been dissolved.

The Leavenworth Journal of the 25th, says that information has been received of more Indian depredations on the Plains, and of a determination of the Cherokees to kill all the whites whom they may meet with. Capt. Stein, of the Second dragoons, was waiting the arrival of two companies, ordered to his assistance, before taking the field against the Indians.

Owen Lovejoy, of Bureau County, has been nominated by the Republicans to represent the Third District of Illinois in Congress.

Growth of St. Louis.—It is stated in one of the St. Louis papers that contracts have already been made for the erection of three thousand houses in that city during the present season, and that the improvements in this line are only checked by the inability to procure materials for an additional number of buildings. One block alone is estimated to cost $100,000. Neger has the season been known more healthy, or business more active, than now.

Quite an animated discussion has been going on for some time past, on the subject of Slavery, between the two leading journals of Charleston, S. C., the Mercury and the Standard, the latter taking the position that "Slavery is not strengthened by extending its area," and that consequently the true policy is to restrict the institution within its present limits. The Mercury takes the affirmative of this question.

The Congressional Light House bill appropriates $40,000 for a Light House at Cape Mendocino.

"The slaves of this world," says Colton, "are kept together by what little truth and integrity still remains among us."

LATE FROM EUROPE.

Mr. Dallas not to be Dismissed.

The news from Europe comes down to the 21st of June. Mr. Crampton, late British Minister to the United States of America, arrived in London on the 17th of June, and had an interview with the Earl of Clarendon. Mr. Crampton also paid a visit to Viscount Palmerston.

It would seem that the receipt of Secretary May's despatches has exercised no little influence on the British public, and has given an entirely different tone to the question in dispute. The Times has joined in the general belief that Mr. Crampton was certainly not the man to send a Minister to the United States. It does not doubt to the least Mr. Crampton's faithful devotion to his Government and good intentions towards the Government to which he was sent, but there was such a thing as a careless and unscrupulous fidelity which told its master, "Oh, trust me, I know what you want, and I'll do it, and I won't be particular either." The Times also thinks that Mr. Crampton appeared to have wanted self-respect in the kind of persons with whom he connected himself in his various transactions, and the style of proceeding he adopted, and to have managed his affairs on a free and easy principle, never intending, perhaps, really to offend the United States Government or to violate the United States law, but simply thinking that "it did not signify;" that it was of no use sticking at a trifle, and that the United States Government would never make a fuss about such a little matter.

The Daily News, in a leading article, admits that all danger of a rupture with the United States, arising out of the Embargo question, is at an end, but considers that every extra-ordinary precaution should be taken to prevent any collision on the part of an English or American commander, as such an act may bring on a collision which would produce the most terrible results. It was desired that the most terrible results should be placed upon such a footing that both England and the United States could dispense with squadrons of observation in its waters. The writer expresses his preference for a negotiation other than arbitration, upon the belief that independent nations were rather reluctant to submit to arbitral decisions when judgment was given against them, and hoped that Mr. Dallas and Lord Clarendon would meet each other in the same spirit that actuated Lord Ashburton and Mr. Webster when they met to settle the Northwest Boundary question.

The Morning Herald, the organ of the Conservative interest in England, makes objection to the conduct of the British Government, and considers that Mr. Crampton and the three Counts are dismissed on advice or suspended in their functions because they obeyed instructions, while those who would do them are to be executed, if, in addition to a humble apology, they will consent to deliver over their "faithful employees." This same journal expresses its great desire for peace, but considers that a submission to injurious demands on the part of such a power as America is not the way to secure it.

The report that a fleet of ships-of-war were preparing for the North American Station is to be ready in case of war is contradicted. They are only intended to relieve those which are ordered home for repairs. Sir William F. Williams, of Kara, arrived at Dover from France, on the 13th. He was most enthusiastically received. The gallant General, in a speech of some length, feelingly reviewed the incidents connected with his campaign in the East.

There is a further talk of a determination on the part of Russia and Prussia to bring about the union of the Danubian Principalities under the sovereignty of a foreign Prince. Prussia supports the Duke of Angoulême for her candidate, while England favors one of the Princes of Nassau. Austria and Turkey are alone opposed to this union.

A decree published at St. Petersburg, and received in England by submarine telegraph, announces that in order to secure the proper development of the Russian Navy, consistently with a pacific administration, the building and arming of the fleets and of the coast defenses are henceforth placed under the command of the Governor-General of East Siberia.

The officers by the recent innovations in France have received the sympathy of Her Majesty, the Queen of England, who has given to the fund for their relief £1,000. Prince Albert has forwarded a donation of £200.

Edmund Lyons is to be raised to the Peerage for services rendered in the Black Sea, being the only Peer manufactured from war with Russia.

The Queen had a grand ball on the evening of the 17th. Two thousand invitations had been given out. Mr. Dallas was present.

Sketch of Washington. The following personal description of Washington, copied from the London Chronicle, July 21, 1856, gives in some respects, a better notion of his personal appearance than anything we have seen elsewhere: "General Washington is now in the 49th year of his age; he is a tall, well made man, rather large boned, and has a tolerably genteel address; his features are manly and light, his eyes of a bluish cast, very lively; his hair a deep brown, his face rather long, and marked with the small pox; his complexion sunburnt and without much color, and countenance sensible, composed and thoughtful. There is a remarkable air of dignity about him, with a striking degree of gentleness; he has an excellent understanding, without much quackery, a strictly just, valiant and generous; an affectionate husband, a faithful friend, a father to the deserving soldier; gentle in his manners, in temper rather reserved; a total stranger to religious prejudices, which have so often excited divisions of one denomination to the detriment of those of another; in his morals he is irreproachable, and was in his youth the favorite of the most virtuous and distinguished men; in a word, all his friends and acquaintances universally allow that no man ever met in his own person a more perfect alliance of the virtues of a philosopher, with the talents of a general; candid, sincere, affability and simplicity, seem to be the striking features of his character; with an occasional display of the most determined and independent energy."

The site of Florida, the most beautiful of flowers, emits no fragrance; the bird of Paradise, the most beautiful of birds, gives no song; the express of Greece, the fleetest of trees, yields no fruit; the diamond, the shiningest of men, has no gem; and the ball-room, the joyous of men, has no revelry, are ever, alas!—and a very like more so.

Old Joe Bartlett recently says: "To see an old man, with one foot in the grave and the other governing upon the brink, laughing at medals and edifying religion, is the most detestable picture of human depravity which heart can conceive, or imagination paint."

"Handle as I am," said a bullying sportsman to a mass meeting of the untried, "I will remember that I'm a fraction of the magnificent republic." "You are indeed," said a bystander, "and a vulgar one at that."

It is a singular fact that women's net work has become a profession of any magnitude without becoming dirty. That is still more singular, the distance depends the very nearest somebody has become aware of her want to "keep her from falling." Quaker, isn't it?

Let the miser have his gold, and the man of honor his confidence of friends, but let my portion be the boon of friendship presented with the faithful heart, in which peace, contentment, and every virtue rejoice supreme.

A windy orator once got up and said: "Sit, after much reflection, consideration, and examination, I have calmly and deliberately, and carefully come to the determined conclusion—that in cities where the population is very large, there are a greater number of men, women, and children, than in cities where the population is much less."

Lord Bacon says: "Certainly it is a Heaven upon earth to have a man's mind move in clarity, rest in Providence, and turn upon the pivot of truth."

Truth by whomsoever spoken comes from God. It is, short, a Divine essence.

Charman & Warner. MR. EDITOR—You will please tell all our fellow-citizens of Oregon that we are still doing business under the old firm, and under the old name, that a nimble expense is better than a slow saving. We want to sell goods, and will do so as cheap as any other house in Oregon City. We have enlarged our business materials, and now have on hand, as usual, all kinds of GROCERIES, such as will suit city and country trade, which we hope all who have favored us with their liberal patronage know full well. Call again—we will do our best. CHARMAN & WARNER, April 10, 1856.

Farm for Sale. A FARM of 640 acres of land in Yamhill County, six miles west of Lafayette, is offered for sale. There are 80 acres of cultivated and 120 acres in pasture—an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees. The place is well watered and timbered, and has two wells of excellent water, good buildings and out-houses. The land is as good as there is in Oregon or the world, and its location makes it as good a stock farm as there is in the Territory. Farming utensils and stock will be sold with the place, if desired. The claim is well stocked with cattle, horses, and hogs, and can be had on reasonable terms. Inquire at The Axes Office, Oregon City.

Water Power for Sale. THE undersigned would like to sell one half of his mill and water power on the Tualatin river, about three miles from Linn City, known as Moore's Mills. It is probably the best water privilege, with the exception of the great Falls of the Willamette, that there is in Oregon. I would like to sell one-half or one-fourth of my claim together with the mill and water power. My object is to get a partner, to enable me to properly improve the water power. JAMES M. MOORE, Feb. 9, 1856. 43f
