HOME AND WOMAN .- Our homes-what | are their corner stones but the virtue of a woman, and on what does social well-being rest but in our homes! Must we not trace all other blessings of civilized life to the doors of our private dwellings! Are not our hearth-stones guarded by holy forms, conjugal, filial and parental love, the corner stone of Church and State, more sacred in the community. These Southern politicians in the most insignificant, if not the most worthless class in the community. These Southern politicians than either, more necessary than both !- in the community. These Southern politicians ride the hobby of slavery, and try to arouse the Let our temples crumble, and capitals of State be levelled with the dust, but spare our homes! Let no socialist invade them with his wild plans of community. Man did not invent, and he cannot improve or abrogate them. A private shelter to cover in two hearts dearer to each other than all in the world; high walls to exclude the profine eyes of every human being; seelusion enough for children to feel that mother is a holy and peculiar name—this is home; and here is the birth-place of every secret thought. Here the Church and State must come for their origin and support. O! spare our homes! The love we experience there, gives us our faith and an | dealy to a stand" infinite goodness; the purity and disinter estedness of home are our earnest of a better world. In relations there established and fostered do we find through life the chief soluce and joy of existence. What friends deserve the name, compared with those whom a birthright gives us ? One mother is worth a thousand friends! one sister truer than twenty intimate companions. We who have played on the same hearth, under the light of the same smile. who date back to the same scene and season of innocence and hope, in whose veins runs the same blood, do we not find that years only make more sacred, more importent the tie that binds? Coldness may spring up, distance may separate, different spheres may divide, but those who can love anything, who continue to love at all, must find that the friends whom God himself gave are wholly unlike any we can choose of ourselves, and that the yearning

THE TRUE EXPLANATION.—The Herald concludes a political article with the following paragraph. We believe every syllable of it, and have frequently said as much in these column: "When we hour Southern speeches, or read base passions of the Southern people—their jealousy, their sectional hatred—by abusing the North and villifying it, just as many of our politians keep alive a bitter feeling here against the South by misrepresentations of its people, its melety, and its morals. In both cases the object is the same—mere person-al aggrandizement. Neither the ultra-Southerners nor the ultra Northerners believe what they say.— Knowing human nature, and how easy it is to awaken the memor passions in the human breast, they trade on them, in order to score their ind vid-nal aims and promote their political advancement. For a time, it is natural they should succeed. So long as the North and South are kept at arms length, they may back at each other a long time without doing much harm; and the masses in both sections, enjoying the diversion, will let the politi-But let the two parties one prouch within reach—let the wild schemes of dis mion and civil war once draw near a practical realization—and the people will draw back, and the political leaders will find themselves brought sud-

Products of a Kitchen Garden. The editor of the Vermont Watchman gives the following account of his garden : Our garden is five rods wide, and ten rods long skirting on both sides and at each end with apple pear, plum, quince, and cherry trees, of numerous varieties, interspersed with currant, gooseberry, black and white raspberry busines and flowers of numerous tints and hues. It was well manured with a compact of muck and the droppings and drippings of the kitchen and barn, and plowed twelve inches deep in the fall of 1853. In the following spring, it was again plowed 5 inches deep, and harrowed until not a lomp was to be seen on the surface. As soon in May as the earth was sufficiently warm, the seed was "cast in" with a patent seed sower, drilling dropping and covering the seed as fast as one could run a wheelburrow over a smooth surface. The work of planting, cultivating and harvesting was principally done with a light bee in our hands before breakfast and after tes. The result is as follows: 3 bushels top onions, at 75 ets per bushel $2.25
