The Oregon Argus.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1854.

ORDON CITY.

THE JACKSONIAN AND THE REPUBLICAN.

The Editor of the Oregon Argus.

To the Editor of the Oregon Journal.

Gentlemen:—I have been impressed during the past week with the opportunities and responsibilities which are connected with the publication of a newspaper. It appears to me that it is not only the duty of a newspaper to supply the requirements of the public mind, but also to reconcile the prejudices of the public into one harmonious system.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

[Signature]

Oregon City, Nov. 18, 1854.

Editors of the Oregon Argus.

To the Editor of the Oregon Argus.

Gentlemen:—I have been impressed during the past week with the opportunities and responsibilities which are connected with the publication of a newspaper. It appears to me that it is not only the duty of a newspaper to supply the requirements of the public mind, but also to reconcile the prejudices of the public into one harmonious system.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

[Signature]

Oregon City, Nov. 18, 1854.

Editors of the Oregon Argus.

The Oregon Argus is printed at 1040.7x1671.6 and has 82x281 characters.