PLOZENCE NIGHTINGALE .- She is rather high of stature, fair in complexion and alim in person; her hair is brown, and is worn quite plain; her physiognomy is most pleasing; her eyes, of a blueish tint. speak volumes, and are always sparkling with intelligence; her mouth is well formed, while her lips act in unison, and make known the impression of her heart-one seems the reflex of the other. Her visage, as regards expression, is very remarkable, and one can almost anticipate by her countenance what she is about to say; alternately, with matters of the most grave import, a gentle smile passes radiantly over her countyuance, thus proving her evenness of temper, at other times, when wit or a pleasant ry prevails, the heroine is lost in the happy, good-natured smile which pervades her face, and you recognize only the charming woman. Her dress is generally of a greyish or black tint; she wears a simple white cap, and often a rough apron .- Soyer's Cu linary Campaign.

GOVERNOR SEWAND .- From the Clarke (Va.) Journal and Advertiser :

The most elegant, chaste, and strong passages of Gov. Soward's speeches are spoken with his arms resting on the railing and his fingers playing with his spectacles as if he was in easy conversation with somebody. We never saw or heard of such a man in this respect. It is no trouble to him to talk intelligence, terseness, beauty, elegance, strength -as it all appears to be in print. He is perhaps the best informed statesman in the United Sates. He is singularly free and easy in his intercourse and universally popular-indifferent in his dress, not remarkable for massiveness of of five years' subscription to the newspaper intellect, but rather for the enneity of his mind, his mental acuteness, his habits of mental labor, his drill and discipline of mind, his method, his system his pleasantness of mind, so to speak, basking all the time in sunshine, as it were, and seeing truth in its pleasant colors.

GT Some one says, that some men are acquainted with a good many books; others with a good many wealthy people.-But intercourse with the latter does not make them rich, and familiarity with the former does not make them scholars. Extensive and promiseuous intercourse with mankind has few advantages for the man of thought. Access is not thus to be obtained to what is most valuable in others. Better for the studious, thinking man to be much alone, cultivaring acquaintance with the insides of good books and himself, than with the outsides of other people, however eminent.

THE MARCH TO THE GRAVE IN 1857 .-What a mighty procession has been moving toward the grave during the past year! At the usual estimate, since the 1st of January, 1857 more than thirty-one million fice hundred thousand of the world's population have gone down to the grave. Place them in long array, and they will give a moving column of more than thirteen hundred to every mile of the circumfrence of the globe. What a speciacle, as they move on, tramp, tramp, the "Dead March" giving its funeral notes as they go to the silent shades!

The consumption of snails in Paris has increased to such an extent as to seriously injure the oyster trade. A whole side of the new fish market is devoted to these delicacies.

The full requirements of a printing office were lately sent from Paris to Egypt for the use of the ladies in the harem of a grand pacha. The fair Georgians and Circassians are to set the types, do the press work and all.

W "A lass, a lass !" exclaimed an old bachelor, who wanted to marry. "Alas, alas!" he cried, after he had been married

00 The Norfolk (Va.) Herald gives an account of the sale, by George Cannaly, of his wife, for $550, and its moral sense is shocked by the transaction, although all the parties, it says, were well satisfied .-It is common in Virginia to self other men's wives, without so much as asking the consent of either, and the Herald does not consider it at all shocking.

Bory's Lissing.

Bout a kies do ye nak? It's me that can tell; For ould as I'm now, I'm minding it well. When a spa preu of three, with how much delight My mither kissed Rory and bade him good night But my mither she died and left Rory behind, And the lases I met brought her so to my mind. That at klasing I went, first one and another, Because they were bouncts and look d like my mither.

At last, would you think it, swate Bridget O'Flins Had scarcely been kissed when she kissed me again, And tould me a praste, away down in the city,

Would say, if we'd ask him, a bit of a ditty. "A ditty, swate Bridget, and what might it be?"
Ne'er mind, my dear Rory, but come just wid me!"
We trudged to the city, and, sure as my life,

He said a short ditty, and called her my wife. We got a wee cottage, a p'g, and a spade;

Bridget sickened; we hand her rister for maid; The maid I was kissing, when, true as ye're there I felt the ould Divil a pulling my hair. Begone, you ould varmint!" I velled in affright

And sort o' turned round to be getting a sight; What did I diskiver! Instead of an eff, Swate Bridget O Finherty there jut here if.

"O Rory ?" she blubbered, still pulling away. · But sick is my heart wid yer conduct to-day;

A kinsing my sister while I'm in my bed, Nor able to raise from the pillow my head!" Troth ! my Bridget, snys I, perhaps ye can mind

When ye to the kissing were greatly inclued; Ye kseed me and kissed me at Donnybrook fair And now, by the jabers, ye're pulling my hair! Begone, ye ould fool, wid a rumpus like this, I'm only a larning yer sister how to kiss!"

For the Argus.

BY A SCHOOL GIRL There's beauty in the bright sunrise,
There's grandeur in the sterm;
There's beauty bright in the moon's pale light,
And in each created form.

There's beauty in the tinted cloud, When seen at eve's sweet hour; There's beauty grand in this glorious land, When deck'd in many a flower.

There's beauty in the rainbow's tint, There's brightness in the fount; And wild and free is the boundless sea,

And glotious the flaming mount. There's beauty in the waving trees That grow by the gloomy fen, And beauty dwells in the tangled dells, And in the hollow gien.

But there is beauty still more rare, Of a true and noble kind, And brighter far than the morning star: "Tis the beauty of the mind.

This beauty will protect the heart When troubles o'er it roll; It has far more grace than a handsome face: "Tie nobleness of soul. M. M.

87 Human affections are the leaves, the foliage of our being-they eatch every breath, and in the burden and heat of the day they make music and motion in a sultry world. Stripped of that foliage, how unsightly is human nature.

How to Save Your SHOE Soles .- It consists merely in melting together tallow and contanon rosin, in the proportion of two parts of the former to one part of the latter, and applying the preparation hut to the soles of the boots or shoes -as much of it as the leather will absorb. One substantial farmer declares that this little receipt slone has been worth more than the price publi-hing it.
