A Farewell.

My fairest child, I have no song to give you ; No lark could pipe to skies so doll and gray ; Yet, ere we part, one lesson I can leave you For every day.

Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever Do noble things, not dream them, all day long And so make life, death, and that vast forever One grand, sweet song.

-Charles Kingsley.

THE PSALMS OF DAVID .- Amongst al compositions, these alone deserve the name of sacred lyrics. These alone contain a poetry that meets the spiritual nature in all its moods and all its wants, which strengthens virtue with glorious exhortations, gives angelic eloquence to prayer, and almost rises to the scraph's joy in praise. In distress and fear, they breather the low and murmur of complaint ; in penthe low and murmur of complaint; in pen-itence, they groan with the agony of the troubled soul. They have a gentle mu-sic for the peace of faith; in adoration they ascend to the glory of creation, and the majesty of God. For assemblies or for solitude, for all that gladdens and all that grieves, for our heaviness and despair, for solitude and the glory of the solitude of the so for our remore and our redemption, we find in these divine harmonies the loud or the low expression. Great has been their power in the world. They resounded midst the courts of the tabernacle; they floated through the lofty and solemn spaces of the temple. They were sung with glory in the halls of Zion ; the were sung with sorrow by the streams of Babel. And when Israel had passed away, the barp of David was still awakened in the church of Christ. In all the years and ages of that church, from the hymn which first was whispered in an upper chamber, until its anthems filled the earth, the inspira ion of the royal prophet has enraptured its devotions, and ennobled its rituals.

And that it has been, not alone, in the And that it has been, not alone, in the august cathedral or the rastic chapel.— Chorased by the winds of heaven, they have swelled through God's own temple of the sky and stars; they have rolled over the broad desert of Asia, in matins and vespers of ten thousand hermits. They have rung through the deep valleys of the Alps, in the sobbing voices of the forlern Waldenses; through the steeps and caves of Secttish highlands, in the rude chant. ings of the Scottish covenanters ; through the woods and wilds of primitive America in the heroic hallelujahs of the early pilgrims.

Boys out at Night -1 have been an observer, as I am a sympathizing lover of boys. I like to see them happy, cheerful, and gleesome. Indeed, I can hardly un-derstand how a high-toned useful man can be the ripened fruit of a boy who had can be the ripened trutt of a boy who had not a full share of the glad privileges due to youth. But while I watch with a very jealous eye all rights and customs which intrench upon the proper rights of boys, I am equally apprchensive lest the paho are not fore-thoughtful, and who rents M have habituated themselves to no close observations upon this subject, permit their sons indulgences which are almost certain to result in their demoralization, if not in their total ruin; and among the habits which I have observed tending most surely to ruin, I know of none more prominent than that of parents permitting their sons to be in the streets after nightfall.

Boys should be taught to have pleasures around the family centre table, in reading,
