

No one could divine to what portion of the Christian Church Dr. Mahlenberg, the author of the following hymn, belongs. The hearing of a Christian heart pulsates through every line. Its beauty, sweetness, and lyrical flow have never been surpassed.—Independent.

Since e'er Thy footstep here below,
Such radiant gems are strewn,
Oh! what magnificence must glow,
My God! about Thy throne!
So brilliant here those drops of light—
There the full ocean rolls, how bright!
If night's blue curtain of the sky
With thousand stars inwrought,
Hang like a royal canopy,
With glittering diamonds fraught—
Be, Lord, Thy temple's outer veil,
What splendor at the shrine must dwell!

The dazzling sun at noontide hour,
Forth from his flaming vase,
Flung o'er earth the golden shower,
Till vale and mountain blaze—
But show, O Lord! one beam of THINE;
What, then, the day where Thine dost shine!
Ah! how shall those dim eyes endure
That noon of living rays,
Or how my spirit, so impure,
Upon Thy glory gaze?
Anon, O Lord! assist my fight,
And robe me for that world of light!

LAST STARS.—They who study the heavens, say that often a star drops out of the firmament, or dies there, and is lost to sight forever after. It may have been the bright star of hope of many a mariner on the uncertain sea of life. Its calm, gentle radiance may have shed good cheer and comfort upon many a path dark with doubt and sorrow and dread. One and another of the earth-born may have looked up to it, from the lower night, for sweet love and promise of good things. Star of however many destinies, though, it goes out, and is no more.

Like these dropping, dying stars, our loved ones go away from our sight. The stars of our hopes, our ambitions, our prayers, whose light shines ever before us, leading on and up, they suddenly fade from the firmament of our hearts, and their place is empty and dark. A mother's steady, soft, and earnest light, that beamed through all our wants and sorrows; a father's strong, quick light, that kept our feet from stumbling on the dark and treacherous ways; a sister's light, so mild, so pure, so constant and so firm, shining upon us from gentle, loving eyes, and persuading us to grace and goodness; a brother's light, bright and bold, and honest; a lover's light, forever sleeping in our souls, and illuminating all our goings and our comings; a friend's light, true and trusty—gone out forever! No! no! The light has not gone out. It is shining beyond the stars, where there is no night and no darkness, forever and forever.

BEAUTIFUL INSCRIPTION.—A little girl, about five years old, died some time since in Cortlandville, New York, of malignant scarlet fever. After the disease had taken complete possession of her, so that it was difficult to determine whether she recognized those who were about her, her mother asked her if she knew who was taking care of her? The dying child looked up with a smile, the expressiveness of which cannot be described, and said, "God takes care of me."

This expression was transferred to the slab that marks the resting-place of her perishable body; and no words could more simply express the sublime idea of immortality.

OLD MEN'S FRIENDSHIP.—William pays a high compliment to old men, in one of his Idlewild Letters. After quoting an interesting letter from the venerable Dr. William Beattie, the poet-physician of London, he says:

"Men differ, (if asked at fifty years of age) as to what has most pleased and flattered them in life; and I may take the liberty to say, perhaps, (within this turning over one of the brightest of the gold links in my chain of memories) that of all in this world which has seemed to fall naturally to my lot, nothing has lain so sweetly close to the heart-fountain as my heart, as the love which I have experienced from old men. It has been neither chance found nor rare. Years ago, I blessed God, that, in every land to which I traveled, there awaited me a grey-haired friendship and blessing. The subdued tenderness, the cheerfulness, the wise care and counsel, the ripe and safe goodness of such friends, made them always seem precious to me—treasures to find, anywhere. The one whom we have lost from Idlewild was one of these—dear old Friend Sank, the Quaker whom we found living near us when we came. His white locks, and his world-purged sadness, best smile, are still part of the hallowed presence of the place. We remember and love him in these walks and woods—gloried spirit though he now is—while his poetry and philosophy can be blind to the fact, that in such glowing evenings of life there glows the dawn of the heaven beyond. Old men seem already angels."

FACTS IN NATURAL HISTORY.—A queen-bee will lay 200 eggs daily for fifty or sixty days, and the eggs are hatched in three days. A single queen-bee has been stated to produce 100,000 bees in a season.

The quantity of water discharged into the sea by all the rivers in the world is estimated at 36 cubic miles in a day; hence it would take above 35,000 years to create a circuit of the whole sea through clouds and rivers.

River water contains about 38 grains of solid matter to every cubic foot. Hence such a river as the Rhine carries to the sea every day 145,080 cub. feet of sand or stone.

Mole-hills are curiously formed by an outer arch impervious to rain, and an internal platform with drains, and covered ways on which the pair and young reside. The moles live on worms and roots, and bury themselves in any soil in a few minutes.

Few insects live more than a year in the perfect state. Their first state is the egg, then the caterpillar, then the chrysalis or pupa, and finally the preovative form. But in these changes there are infinite degrees and varieties of transition, all of which constitute the pleasing and very instructive study of Entomology.

Small acts of kindness, how pleasant and desirable do they make life. Every dark object is made light by them, and every tear of sorrow is brushed away. When the heart is sad, and despondency sits at the entrance of the soul, a trifling kindness drives away despair, and makes the path cheerful and pleasant.

Mary, my love, do you remember the text this morning?
Mary.—No, papa, I never can remember the text: I've such a bad memory.
By the way, Mary, said her mother, 'did you notice Susan Brown's?'
Mary.—Oh, yes, what a fright! She had on her last year's bonnet, done up, a pea green silk, a black lace mantle, brown gaiters, an imitation Houston collar, a lava bracelet, her old card drops, and such a fan! Oh, my!

Mother.—Well, my dear, your memory is certainly very bad.

Why is a beauty like the engine on a railway? Because she draws a train after her, scatters the sparks, transports the mails (males), and makes us forget time and space.

Count that day and those low descending sun Views from thy hand no noble action done.

People may talk and write of progress and reform, but unless action attend the talk, they may as well remain silent.
