Lord, tarry not, but come! Beyond the parting and the meeting, I shall be soon; Beyond the farewell and the greeting,

Beyond the pulse's fever beating, I shall be soon. Love, rest, and home! Sweet bome! Lord, tarry not, but come! Beyond the frost chain and the fever, I shall be soon; Beyond the rock-waste and the river,

Beyond the ever and the never, I shall be soon. Love, rest, and home! Lord, tarry not, but come !

LOST STARS .- Those who study the heavens say that often a star drops out of the firmament or dies there, and is los to sight forever after. It may have been the bright star of hope of many a mariner on the uncertain sea of life. Its calm, gentle radiance may have shed good cheer and comfort upon many a path, dark with doubt, and sorrow, and dread. Like these dropping, dying stars, our loved ones go away from our sight. The stars of our hopes, our ambitions, our prayers, whose light shines ever before us, leading us on and up, they suddenly fade from the firmaand up, they suddenly fade from the firmament of our hearts, and their place is empty and dark. A mother's steady, soft, and carnest light. A mother's steady, soft, and carnest light, that beamed through all our wants and sorrows; a father's strong, quick light, that kept our feet from stumbling on the dark and treacherons ways; a sister's light, so mild, so pure, so constant, and so firm, shining upon us from gentle, loving eyes, and persuading us to grace and good.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

VOLUME FIFTEEN BEGINS SEPT. 11, 1859.

MECHANICS, INVENTORS, Manufacturers, and Farmers.

THE SCHENTIFIC AMERICAN has now reached its Fourteenth Year, and will enter upon a New Volume on the 11th of September. It is the only weekly publication of the kind now issued in only weekly publication of the kind now issued in this country, and it has a very extensive circulation in all the States of the Union. It is not, as some might suppose from its title, a dry, abstrass work on technical science; on the contrary, it so deals with the great events going on in the scientific, mechan-ical, and industrial worlds, as to please and instruct every one. If the mechanic or artisan wishes to know the best machine in use, or how to make any substance employed in his business—if the house-wife wishes to set a regine for making and selecwife wishes to get a recipe for making a good color, &c ,—if the inventor wishes to know what is going on in the way of improvements-if the manufac-turer wishes to keep posted with the times, and to enjoy the best facilities in his business—if the man of lesure and study wishes to keep himself familiar of leasure and study wishes to keep himself familiar with the progress made in the chemical laboratory, or in the construction of telegraphs, steamships, railroads, reapers, mowers, and a thousand other machines and appliances, both of peace and war—all these desiderata can be found in the Scientific American, and not elsewhere. They are here presented in a reliable and interesting form, adapted to the comprehension of minds unlearned in the higher branches of science and art.
