

The Olive's Leaf.
We kiss to our lips the sweets of To-Day.
To-Morrow we clasp to the heart!
Though the heavens are blue, and the earth is all The bairn's in the rose, and the bairn's on the spray, We sigh and we wander apart!

To-Day: we are young, we are strong, we are A rose-tree is every hour!
To-Day: we are old, we are weak, we are old;
To-Morrow's the mystery-blissful, all gold,
That never will burst, a flower!

The floods are around, the wide waters they roar;
A weary and waiting we stand;
The Raven comes back to the ark nevermore;
But the Dove we have ventured returns—
A Leaf knows the Beautiful Land!

The True Doctrine.

Our praying, slaying, and Bible reading will not help us heavenward, unless we are just between man and man. The Christian profession is nothing without the Christian life. Our religion, in order to change us rationally, must descend into all the commonest duties. It belongs as much to the shop as to the family, and as much to the family as the sanctuary. No man can be a Christian who is not faithful in his common daily-life pursuits. The judge must administer justice from equity, and not from favor or the lure of bribes. The physician must regard the health of his patient above all other considerations. The merchant must deal justly, and the mechanic execute his work in all things faithfully. It will not answer to disregard these things. My brother, do not hope to reach heaven in the old way. You must walk in another and narrower road.

Let us suppose you are a workman.
Now what is Christianity in the workshop?
You cannot leave it behind you, go where you will; for it is no loosely fitting garment, but an element of life. Yes, you must take it with you into the workshop. Not as the Bible in your hand, nor as hymns to make the air melodious, nor as the pious talk with fellow workmen. No, no; workshop Christianity consists in a religious fidelity to your employer and his customers. If you neglect or slight the work you are paid to perform, you commit sin—you are ir-religious—and your pious acts will go for nothing.—Channing.

Value of Books.—To those who have a taste for good books, how can time ever hang heavily? The winged hours fraught with the present pleasure of delightful studies fly away so swiftly it would be mournful to consider how swiftly they fly; but that the memory they leave has no sadness in it, from the thought they are gone.
Many other joys perish in the fruition; this is never a perished joy; such is the marvelous quality of it that not only the past lives in memory, but may be ever renewed with its first delight. There is no source of earthly enjoyment that I often or more fervently thank God for than that which is to be found in the genial companionship of good books.—Geygdon.

A TEST.—One of the best ways to ascertain the nature of things is to ask dying sinners. They commonly speak clearly and uniformly. Not one of them has ever pronounced gold, or earthly honor, or carnal pleasure, of real value to a dying man.— No one of them has ever pronounced a life of sin wise, or a death in sin desirable.

It has long been a most important desideratum in the practice of medicine, to obtain a remedy similar to this, and accordingly we find it resort to almost universally in all those tormenting diseases of the skin so trying to the patient, and injurious to the health. It is a tonic, aperient, and disinfectant. It acts simultaneously upon the stomach, the circulation, and the bowels, and thus three processes, which are ordinarily the result of many different kinds of medicaments, are carried out at the same time through the instrumen-tality of this one remedial agent. Its great merit is that it meets and neutralizes the active principle of disease itself, and when that is gone, the symptoms necessarily disappear. The rationality with which the patient recovers health and strength under this triple influence is surprising.

REMARKABLE CURE.

Linn County, Oregon Ter., March 11, 1855.

Messrs. A. B. & D. SANDS, New York: Gentlemen.—In the spring of 1853, while on our way from Indiana to this place, our old st. boy was seized with a swelling and severe pain in the legs which day by day grew worse, until his legs contracted, and became so painful that he could not walk, and we had to carry him about like an infant. We reached Albany on the 3d of October, completely worn out by fatigue. By this time, he was reduced to a perfect skeleton. Here we were enabled to consult a physician (Dr. Hill), who honestly confessed he could not cure him, although he could give him medicine that would relieve the pain. In this exigency something must be done, or death was inevitable. Being recommended to try our Sarsaparilla, I procured a bottle. After taking some, he appeared worse; but persevering with it, I obtained a second bottle, which seemed to grapple with the disease, and caused a marked improvement: the swelling and pain in the legs were reduced, his appetite improved; and his color began to return. Thus encouraged, I purchased a third bottle; while taking it the swellings in his legs broke, and some pieces of bone one eighth of an inch long came out, after which his legs straightened and healed up. He is now perfectly recovered, has no appearance of being a cripple, and can perform most kinds of common labor, as all our neighbors can certify. Yours, respectfully,

CALEB DAVIS.
