The Oregon Argus.
W. L. Adams.
OREGON CITY.
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1863.
REPUBLICAN MUNICIPALITY.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

For Vice President,
BARTLETT HARRISON,
M.A.

The new issues.

The issue which is now setting good democratic men in 1863 is the good old question of the Union and Disunion. The next thing they quarreled about was the location of the capital. If the South should not use the Mississippi to put down the people of the North, they would do it by another route, by the Ohio and Mississippi. This is the Democratic position. But the Republicans have not been disposed to commit themselves to the Union, as yet, and have called a meeting of the people of the country, to be held at a later day. The meeting will be held on the 3rd of October. The efforts of the people of the North to save the Union are to be made known to the people of the South, and the efforts of the people of the South to save the Union are to be made known to the people of the North. The people of the North will be asked to show the people of the South how to save the Union. The people of the South will be asked to show the people of the North how to save the Union.

Mr. Lincoln says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union. He says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union.

The question of the Union and Disunion is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance.

Mr. Lincoln says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union. He says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union.

The question of the Union and Disunion is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance.

Mr. Lincoln says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union. He says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union.

The question of the Union and Disunion is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance.

Mr. Lincoln says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union. He says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union.

The question of the Union and Disunion is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance.

Mr. Lincoln says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union. He says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union.

The question of the Union and Disunion is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance.

Mr. Lincoln says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union. He says that the people of the South are not entitled to the Union, and that the people of the North are not entitled to the Union.

The question of the Union and Disunion is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance. It affects the future of the country. It is a matter of great importance.