Is response to the seronade and the cheers of the crowd, he spoke as follows: "FELLOW CITIZENS: Your cheers for the old Commonwealth of Massachusetts are rightly bestowed. Foremost in the ranks of those who fought for the liberty of the country in the Revolution, were the nes of Mussachusetts. It is an historical fact, to which I take pride in now refer ring, that in the Revolution, Massachuseits seat more men south of Mason and Dixon's line to fight for the cause of the country, than all the Southern Colonies put together; and in this second war, if war must one, to proclaim the Declaration of Independence anew, and as a necessary conse-quence establish the Union and the Con-stitution, Massachusetts will give, if neces sary, every man in her borders—ay, and woman! (Cheers.) I trust I may be excusof for speaking thus of Massachusetts; but fident there are many within the and of my voice whose hearts beat with roud remories of the old Commonwealth. There is this difference, I will say, between our Southern brothers and ourselves; that of a son, we love the Union and the country with an equal devotion. [Loud and prolonged applause.] We place no "State's rights" before, above or beyond the Union. [Cheers.] To us our country is first, because it is our country, [thr e cheers,] and our State is next and second, because she is a part of our country and our State. -[Renewed applause.] Our oath of allegiance to our country, and our oath of alleously, and never come in conflict nor clash. He who does his duty to the Union does his duty to the State; and he who does his duty to the State does his duty to the Union-" One and inseparable, now and forever." [Renewed applause.] As I look upon this demonstration of yours, I believe it to be prompted by a love of the common cause, and our common countrya country so great and good; a Government so kind, so beneficent, that the hand from which we have only felt kindness is now for the first time raised in classisement. [Applause.] Many things in a man's Ife may be worse than death. So to a Government there may be many things, such as dishonor and disintegration, worse than the shedding of blood. [Cheers.]— Our fathers purchas d our liberty and country for us at an immense cost of treasure and blood, and by the bright heavens above us, we will not part with them without first poving the original debt and the interest to this date! [Loud cheers.]-We have in our veins the same blood as they shed; we have the same power of endurance, the same love of liberty and law. We will hold as a brother him who stands by the Union; we will hold as an enemy him who would strike from its constellation a single star. [Applause.] But I hear some one say, "Shall we earry on this frat-

The Agent, Rev. Wm. Roberts, reported a large invoice of Bibles, valued at about $1.250, as on the way to the Society and now nearly due. The report of the Executive Committee, and also the report of the Agent, show the Bible cause to be in a pro perons condition throughout the State.

The subject of the removal of the Depository from Oregon City to Portland, occupied a large share of the time of the meeting, and called forth considerable discussion. It was finally referred to the Executive Committee with powers.

Rev. Bishop Scott placed at the disposal of the Society two copies of the Scriptures for the blind, which the Society voted to "thankfully receive." The annual sermon was preached in the eve-
