

Who is like unto Thee? Great God, thou maker of my frame, Who didst me spirit give, How little do I know of Thee, Though by thy power I live.

With new before These angels fall, And how to do thy will, Yet I, as long as known to Thee, By Thee am saved for still.

In all life's changes, help me thou To say Thy will be done, And in my promise firm to stand, Whatever else may come.

That as a friend, forever true, To say Thy will be done, And in my promise firm to stand, Whatever else may come.

Prayer is not to inform a Being who is perfectly wise, but that we may be affected with our condition, and be prepared for the display of his mercy.

He never was as good as he should be, that doth not strive to be better than he is.
