Friday's Dispatch.

Great Battle near Gettysburg!—Complete Federal Victory!—Longstreet and A. P. Hill killed!—10,000 Rebels captured!!—Rebels in full retreat!!!

Philadelphia, July 3.—A special to the Bulletin says nothing is known as to the result, but an impression prevails that the great and decisive battle of the campaign has been fought in the vicinity of Cashtown near Gettysburg. It is believed that we have suffered heavily in officers and men, but Lee is expected as to be placed on the defensive. Yesterday Gen. Meade assumed the offensive. The day before, Lee attacked Meade with heavy force and was repulsed with heavy loss. Lee holds the gap in South Mountain through which he hopes to retreat if defeated. Our losses are enormously heavy, especially among the field and staff officers, neither are we warranted in guessing how severely the rebels suffered.

Philadelphia, July 3.—A special to the Forney's Press, dated Hanover, July 3d, p. m., says this morning our forces opened on 5000 rebels who advanced on the field to pique the dead. The rebels hastily retreated. The fight thus far has been most terrible of this war, the losses on both sides being heavy. A special to Times reads as follows:

Washington, July 4th, 2 A. M.—The latest intelligence received from Gen. Meade is to half past 12, 3/4. All was quiet at that hour.

The fighting was most desperate on both sides. We had to meet this great onslaught of the enemy with the 3d and 5th corps. The 3d and 5th corps fought bravely. The 2d ably supported them, and at the same time held its own position. The attack of the 1st corps was also gallant. The fight was so furious that neither party took many prisoners. We captured 600 in one or two charges. The losses, considering the fighting, were more than usually severe, and heavy on both sides. Many of our gallant officers have fallen. Late in the evening General Meade called a council of corps command and said it was resolved to continue the fight as long as there was any one to fight.

Philadelphia, July 3.—Yesterday Gen. Meade assumed the offensive, the day before Lee attacked Meade, and was repulsed with heavy loss. Lee holds the Gap in South Mountain near Chambersburg, through which he hopes to retreat if defeated, our losses are enormously heavy especially among field officers. Neither are we warranted in guessing how severely the rebels suffered.

Washington, July 3.—The following is the latest official intelligence:

Headquarters Potomac, July 5.—To Halleck: The enemy retreated under cover of night and a heavy rain, in direction of Faith and Castleton. Our cavalry is in pursuit. I cannot give the details of our capture in prisoners, colors and arms. Some 200 battle flags will be turned in from our corps. My wounded and those of the enemy are in our hands.

(Signed) Meade.

Tollahoma, July 4.—McCook's corps occupied Wm. cluster, Tenn., to-day. Our posts extend to the foot of the mountains. The enemy's flight from Tollahoma was rapid. They destroyed all the bridges over Elk river, thus delaying Federal pursuit. Stanley's cavalry effected a crossing and are now crowding the enemy up the mountain road. Bragg's army is terribly demoralized. Deserters report the mountains full of men, afraid to show themselves, and determined to fight no more.

Important results are expected by night. Gregg's corps report rebels going to Green Castle instead of Chambersburg. The rebels are abandoning their wounded all along the line of retreat, officers as well as privates. Yesterday's Baltimore American says every available man in Baltimore and Washington was being hurried to Fredericksburg to intercept Lee's flying demoralized troops. Another battle is looked for to day which will be final, as Meade's forces have been reinforced until he has more than double Lee's army.

New York, 4th.—The following is the latest in Herald's special dated Baltimore, 3d, 11 P. M., says special messages from Gen. Meade to Gen. Schenck bring news from Gettysburg up to 1 o'clock this afternoon. Gen. Meade has been driving rebels 4 miles northwest from their position of yesterday, and is still following. We have taken 1500 prisoners. The victory is undoubtedly ours.
