Emancipation Proclamation.

Washington, Jan. 1st.—The following proclamation has been issued:

By the President of the United States, etc.—WHEREAS, On the 22d day of September, 1862, a proclamation was issued by the President of the United States, containing among other things, the following—to wit: That on the 1st day of January, 1863, all persons held as slaves within any State or designated part of a State, the people whereof shall be in rebellion against the United States, shall, henceforth and forever, be free, and the Executive Government of the United States, including the Military and Naval authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons, or any of them, in any effort they may make for their actual freedom; and that the Executive will, on the 1st day of January aforesaid, issue a proclamation designating the States and part of States, if any, in which the people therein respectively shall be in rebellion against the United States, and the fact that any State or people thereof shall on that day be in good faith represented in Congress by members chosen thereto by a majority of qualified voters in such States shall, in the absence of strong, countervailing testimony, be deemed conclusive evidence that such State or the people thereof are not in rebellion against the United States.

NOW THEREFORE, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, by virtue of the power in me vested as Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy in time of actual rebellion against the Government of the United States, as a fit and necessary war measure for suppressing said rebellion, do, on this 1st day of January, 1863, and in accordance with my purpose to publish my proclamation after a period of 100 days from the date of the first above mentioned order designate the States and parts of States therein, the people whereof respectively are at this day in rebellion against the United States, to be the following, to wit:

Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, (excepting the parishes of St. Bernard, Plaquemine, Jefferson, St. John, St. Charles, Ascension, Assumption, Terrebonne, Lafourche, St. Mary, St. Martin and New Orleans, including the city of New Orleans), Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, (except 48 counties, designated as "Western Virginia," and the other counties of Berkeley, Accomac, Northampton, Elizabeth City, York, Princess Anne, including the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth) which excepted parts are for the present left precisely as if this proclamation were not issued.

And by virtue of the power and for the purpose aforesaid, I do order and declare that all persons held as slaves within these designated States, and parts thereof, shall be free; and that the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons.

And I hereby enjoin upon the people so declared to be free, to abstain from all violence, unless in necessary self-defense; and I recommend to them that in all cases, when allowed, they labor faithfully for reasonable wages.

And I further declare and make known that such persons of suitable condition will be received into the armed service of the United States, to garrison the forts, positions, stations, and other places, and to man vessels of all sorts, in said service.

Upon this, which is sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution and upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington on the 1st day of January, A. D., 1863, and of the Independence of the United States of America the 87th year.

The following letter, which emphatically speaks for itself, was written by the Dean of the Faculty of the Philadelphia College of Medicine—to the editors of the December number of your journal, in regard to the ad cendum degree granted by the Philadelphia College of Medicine to Dr. L. J. Czapka. When the application for the degree was made to the Faculty, it was accompanied by affidavits and testimonials to the effect that Dr. Czapka, was a regular graduate M. D. of the University of Pesth, had served as a surgeon in the Hungarian army, and was a regular practitioner of medicine. On the strength of these the degree was granted. The ad cendum degree, as its name implies, is conferred on graduates only, and gives no new privileges. Had there been the slightest suspicion of irregularity, the application would have been refused. By inserting this in your journal you will do an act of justice to the college, and confer a favor on Yours, very respectfully, H. RAND, Dean of the Faculty of the Phila. College of Medicine.
