fore he made the proposition; he proposed going on to the bed; he said "Let us go on to the bed?" these were his words; she said, "O no they will mistrust us." He said, " O no they won't, because they think you are my wife;" well, says be, "I will take a pillow off the bed."

There was no reply that I recollect; he went to the bed and took the pillow off the bed as near as I could see, he laid the pillow on the floor nearly opposite the foot of the bed; the pillow was at the left of the door; bed; the pillow was at the left of the door; the pillow was laid down 8 or 10 or 12 feet from where I was, I don't know exactly; while he was putting the pillow on the floor she was taking the combs from her hair; she was standing near the bureau; she had her bonnet off; she took it off I believe when she came in; when I first saw her in the room her bonnet was off: could not tell whether Mr. Kalloch's overcoat was on or off; after she stood at the bureau she came towards she stood at the bureau she came towards me partially; came near the spot where the pillow was thrown down; the next thing was she got down on the floor; I saw her in the act of getting down, but when down I could not see her.

Q What was the position when getting down?

[Objected to by counsel for defence. Course of question was varied.]

Resnand—I saw her in the act of getting down; she got down slowly; after she got down he got down in the same place; after she got down I heard the rustling of clothes and a whispering, but I could not learn all the conversation [The witness described the conversation [The witness described some portion of the conversation, but it was of a character totally unfit for publication] I then heard him ask her a question. The reply I could not hear; next heard him say "Bon't be in a hurry;" I stopped there a few minutes then went down stairs; went into the reception-room. His back was partly towards me when he got down upon the floor; I could not see them as they were lying upon the floor; never saw Kalloch again till he came here; I saw him neross the street—that is, I was told that the person I saw was Kalloch; that night I saw him in the sitting room below; saw the lady again; he sitting room below; saw the lady again; he went into the bar-room and settled his bill; that was before I saw him in the sitting room; it was after Mr. Giddings went up that Mr. Kalloch settled his bill-perhaps 10 minutes after, might have been more, don't remember; I was in the bar-room when Mr. Kalloch settled his bill; believe Mr. Griffin was there; when he came in he spoke to me and asked "What is my bill?" said I "Five dollars, sir." He made no reply, handed me a $10 bill, and I gave him $5. After I gave him his change he said: -"I guess ! will take another whiskey sling."

His last epistle was indited at San Francisco, in July last, and in it he informed her that he should return to his native place for a brief visit, and requested her to make her preparations for a removal to California.

In fulfillment of his promise the husband came home on a steamer which reached New York on Friday last. He landed at New York on Friday last. He landed at New York in the afternoon. Impatient of the hours which kept him from the arms of his wife, he left his baggage in New York, and with nothing save his valise in hand, took passage on the afternoon train on the Hudson River Railroad, and reached here late at night. He hurried to his home. The door was locked, and the windows dark. He knocked again and again, but there was no response.

At last, presuming that his wife might be on a visit to the home of his mother, in West Troy he hastened over there. His parents met him more in sorrow than in joy. His first inquiry was for his wife. For a time he received no answer, but at length they informed him that his wife had proved faithless and recreant during his absence; that she had engaged in an illicit amour with a young man employed as clerk in a dry goods house in Albany,—that her guilt having become evident and notorious, they (his parents) had forbidden her crossing their threshold; that, but a day or two previous to his arrival, she had gone off on the cars for the West with the young man. For a time the west with the young man. For a for the West with the young man. For a for the West with the young man. For a for the propietors of scholarships, who may be resent to continue the propietors of scholarships, who may be removed the propietors of scholarships, who may be present and the annual r threshold; that, but a day or two previous to his arrival, she had gone off on the cars for the West with the young man. For a time the husband refused to credit the fearful tale; but inquiry persuaded him it was too true. His wife had evidently encouraged the advances of the adulterer, and favored him in his suit. The means he had sent her from California, she had wasted mpon him. And on Wednesday, she had left the city with him for the West. Her baby was left in charge of a family in South factorial same and mannal meeting.

Yesterday saw the father and his child on their way to New York City. They will leave for California this week. Heart-sick and desolate, the betrayed husband and father has turned his steps from his native city, never again to return. HE DIED AT HIS POST .- A sad, but beau tiful and touching scene was witnessed at the accident at the Du Page bridge. On the morning after the accident, the slow tolling of a bell was heard. On looking to see whence it came, it was discovered to proceed from the engine as it lay submerged in the water. in the water. The waves as they foamed and surged over the sunken engine swayed the bell, which alone with the smoke-pipe appeared above water, and caused it to give a low tolling sound. When the engine was reject from the water the engine was a low tolling sound. When the engine was raised from the water, the engineer was found in a standing posture, with his stiff, cold, icy hand firmly grasping the throttle valve, as though amid thick darkness, he had discovered the perilous condition of the train, and had sprung to avert the ruin. But it was too late—the engine and train, with its precious freight of life and property, went down, and during the dreary night, the engine-bell and the mad-rushing waters rang out a solemn requiem for the dead!—Joliet Democrat.

Enormous Prices for Slaves. The Central Organ, published in the parish of Avoyelles, La., says that thirteen field hands were recently sold in that place at prices ranging from $1365 to $2360. The lowest sum was paid for a lad ten years of age; the highest was paid for a man thirty-one years of age. Four of the negroes were women, and nine of them were under twenty years of age. Their aggregate value was $24,290.

Heartless and Sad.—Some twelve months since, a young man, a mechanic, well known to a large number of our readers, left this city, determined to try his fortunes in the El Borado State. He left behind him a young and beautiful wife, and an innocent babe, about six months of age.

On his arrival in California, the young man was engaged as a consignee of a San Francisco house at Sacramento, at a very liberal salary. He prospered well, and the investment of a small sum which he had taken with him to the Golden State yielded a large and most remunerative per centage.

The Laws of Oregon.

THE OREGON STATUTES, 1855, being a large volume of 650 pages, with complete index, annotations, and references, comprising all the laws in force in the Territory, inclusive of those passed at last session of the Legislative Assembly, are for sale at the office of the Statesman, at five dollars per copy. The work is executed in the best manner, bound in law style, and is sold at publisher prices, and as low as a like work can be bought in any State in the Union, and at the lowest figure they can be afforded for here. The price places them within the reach of all who desire the laws they live under. Orders by mail accompanied with the cash, filled by return mail. It is the ast code of laws that will probably be published in Oregon, for many years.

In addition to the enactments of the Legislative Assembly, the volume contains the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States, Treatics with Great Britain relating to Oregon, Ordinance of 1787, in force in Oregon, Donation I aw and all amendments, and full abstract of United scales Naturalization Laws.

The undersigned will receive sealed proposals at the Post Office in Salem, O. T., until 4 o clock P. M., of the 11th of May, next, for furnishing beef and flour for the Grand Bonde Coast Indian Agency, for six months. There will be required about fifteen tons of flour, and fifteen tons of beef per month, more or less. Said flour must be a good common article, (but superfine will not be required.) and must be in sacks containing from 50 to 100 pounds. The beef must be weighed in quarters, and all the offal except the hides to be thrown in. The quantity of both flour and beef will be regulated, as well as the place of delivery, by the agent in charge.

The right will be reserved to the undersigned of rejecting all exorbitant bids. Payment will be made so soon as the necessary funds are received from the Treasury Department.

Bonds will be required from contractors for either the flour or the beef contract, with three or more approved securities, in the sum of ten thousand dollars. Each bidder will be required to accompany his bid with a written undertaking, by three or more responsible persons, that he or they will give the bonds required.

JOHN F. MILLER, Indian Agent.

Salem, O. T., April 28, 1857. Notice to Contractors.

This undersigned will receive scaled proposals at the Post Office in Carrallis, until 4 o'clock P. M., of the 20th of May next, for furnishing beef and flour for the Siletz Agency Coast Reservation for six months.

There will be required about 30 tons of flour per month more or less. Said flour must be a good common article, (but superfine will not be required.) and must be in sacks containing from 50 to 100 pounds. There will be required 25000 pounds of beef more or less, per month. The beef to be weighted in quarters, and all the offal except the hides to be thrown in. The quantities of both flour and beef will be regulated, as well as the place of delivery, by the agent in charge. The right will be reserved to the undersigned, of rejecting all exorbitant bids. Payment will be made so soon as the necessary funds are received from the Treasury Department. I will here state for the information of those interested, that I have had the entrance of the Yaquinna surveyed, and that it is entirely practicable to enter there with vessels, there being from fifteen to eighteen feet of water on the bar at the lowest stage of the tides. I would therefore particularly invite the attention of ship owners to this notice, as transportation by land will be attended with too much expense.

Bonds will be required from contractors for either the flour or beef contract, with three or more approved securities, in the sum of ten thousand dollars. Each bidder will be required to accompany his bid with a written undertaking, by three or mour responsible persons, that he or they will give the bonds required.
