California Culturist. The spidly increasing importance of the Agricultu-ind Islands, and the evident necessity of a system of Agriculture adapted to the pecultarities of soil, this inter, and products, seem to open a new, wile and un-occupied field, for the publication of a journal particu-larly devoted to those interests. To promote the desired object, and to supply the want so seriously felt, we have intro linced the Cult-vousia Criterias, to be devoted to the advancement of every industrial parcell connected with the prog-ress of Agriculture, Phoriculture, Mechanism and Min-ing; whilst the development of the Natural History of our seas, rivers, coasis and islands, will constitute at times an interesting feature of the work.
