

territorial road from Eola to Tillamook Bay.

Mr. CHAPMAN reported back Council bill to declare navigable the lower portion of Long Tom river, and recommended its passage. Mr. Newcomb reported a bill to amend the "Stevens" ferry charter," also a bill to incorporate the Cascade Falls Railroad Company. Mr. Stevens reported a bill to divorce Dr. George Kellogg. Adj. Council. Afternoon.—House bills to divorce Philaster Lee, to divorce Lucy Smith, and to divorce Bael Woodard, were read, the rules suspended, and the bills read second time. Bill to divorce Bael Woodard referred to a select committee, consisting of Messrs. Steward, Mack, and Parker. Mr. WAIT moved that the Council resolve itself into a committee of the whole—lost.

Mr. STEWARD presented the petition of Eliza and Susan Dodson, for divorce—referred to a select committee, consisting of Messrs. Steward, Cornelius and Mack. Adj. House. Afternoon.—Mr. SHATTUCK introduced a bill to incorporate the Congregation Bath-Israel, of the city of Portland; also a bill to amend an act to incorporate the Cascade Road and Bridge Company.

Mr. CRANER, from judiciary committee introduced a bill to authorize the guardians of certain minor heirs to convey the right of way through the property of their wards. Mr. NEWCOMB, from committee on corporations, reported back the bill to charter the Portland Turnpike company with a recommendation that it do not pass—report laid on the table.

Mr. STEVENS presented a petition praying the enactment of a law to enable half-breed Indians to testify in courts of justice—referred to a select committee of five consisting of Messrs. Stevens, Holmes, Hedges, Crooks and Shattuck.

Mr. SLATER presented a remonstrance against granting a charter for a ferry at Albany. Mr. Craner then withdrew the petition for said charter.

Mr. SLATER introduced a bill to amend an act in relation to alienation by deed, and the proof and recording of conveyances, and transfer of property.

A communication was received from the Secretary of the Territory, giving information in regard to cost of holding sessions of the Legislative Assembly—laid on the table and ordered printed.

Mr. CRANER offered a minority report on the subject of protection for slave property—laid on the table and ordered printed.

Mr. SHATTUCK offered a separate minority report upon the same subject—laid on the table and ordered printed.

Mr. NEWCOMB reported back the bill to amend an act incorporating the town of Astoria, with amendments—adopted.

Mr. BONHAM introduced a bill for the relief of N. H. Lane; also a bill for the relief of Geo. E. Cole.

The House went into committee of the whole upon the business thereto referred. After some time spent therein, the committee rose, and reported back to the House. Adj.

Excursion.—Thursday, Jan. 13, A. M.—Mr. BERRY reported bill to amend an act relating to estrays, and recommended its passage.

Mr. CORNELIUS reported back House bill, to incorporate Josephine Wagon Road Company, with amendment, which was adopted.

Mr. STEWARD reported back House bill, to divorce Bael Woodard and recommended its passage; also a bill to divorce Elijah Dodson.

House bills to divorce Philaster Lee, to divorce Lucy Smith, to incorporate Josephine Wagon Road Company, to divorce Bael Woodard, and Council bill to amend the act relating to estrays, were passed.

Mr. STEWARD introduced a bill to divorce Nancy Judson. Adj.

House.—Thursday, Jan. 13th, A. M.—Mr. SLATER presented the petition of Philip O'Reilly for a divorce—laid on the table.

Mr. GATES presented a petition from the citizens of Wasco county, praying an extension of the amendment to the charter of Dallas City—referred to committee on corporations.

Mr. STEVENS, from select committee, reported a bill to extend the right to remove incompetency of half-breeds to testify in courts of justice.

Mr. PARKER introduced a bill for the relief of Samuel Tolman.

The House went into committee of the whole, to consider the business referred thereto. After some time spent therein, the committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again. Adj.

Council. Afternoon.—Bill to divorce Nancy Judson passed.

Mr. PARKER moved that a committee be appointed to examine propositions of Messrs. Knott and King in relation to the Penitentiary—agreed to, and Messrs. Parker, Berry and Steward were appointed said committee.

On motion of Mr. MACK, the House bill to relocate the seat of government was taken up.

Mr. STEWARD moved to amend the bill by striking out section 2, and inserting the following: "Sec. 2. That the seat of government of this Territory be, and the same is hereby removed from the town of Salem, in Marion county, and relocated and established at the City of Portland in the county of Multnomah, and each and every session of the Legislative Assembly of this Territory, either general or special, shall be held at the said city of Portland. Adopted—Yeas Messrs. Berry, Cornelius, Ford, Steward and Wait—6; Nays—Messrs. Mack, Parker, and Mr. President—2.

Mr. CORNELIUS moved to amend section 5, by striking out, in the 5th line, after the word "people," the words "at the next general election," and inserting "on the first Monday of October next;"—adopted. The bill then passed—Yeas—Messrs. Berry, Cornelius, Ford, Mack, Steward and Wait—6; Nays—Mr. Parker and Mr. President—2.

Mr. BERRY introduced a bill to authorize R. S. Jewett and brothers to construct a floating bridge across Rogue River and to collect tolls thereon—referred to committee on roads and highways.

House bill, to relocate a part of the Territorial road from Oregon City to Pleasant Hill, in Lane county, passed.

Mr. BERRY moved a reconsideration of the vote on the House joint resolution, providing for the adjournment sine die of the Legislative Assembly—agreed to. Adj.

House. Afternoon.—Mr. MCINCH presented a petition from citizens of School District No. 2, Linn county—laid on the table.

Mr. CHAPMAN moved to take up Council bill to change the practice and fix the times of holding the Courts, just reported from committee of the whole—agreed to—bill ordered to a third reading to-morrow.

Mr. CHAPMAN, from military committee, reported a bill to amend an act to organize the militia.

Several bills were read second time, and committed or passed to third reading. Adj. Council, Friday, Jan. 14, A. M.—Mr. WAIT, from judiciary committee, reported back bill to divorce Elijah Dodson, with amendments, which were adopted.

Mr. CORNELIUS reported back bill to authorize R. S. Jewett and brothers to construct a floating bridge across Rogue River, with amendments, which were adopted.

Mr. PARKER introduced a bill to divorce Susan Lary.

The report of committee on military affairs, submitted February 3d, 1858, was re-committed to said committee. Adj.

House, Friday, Jan. 14, A. M.—Mr. HOLTON presented a memorial in relation to claims for Indian spoliation, in 1856 and 1857—adopted.

Mr. NEWCOMB, from committee on corporations, reported back the bill to charter North Umququa Bridge Company, with amendments—referred to a special committee; also bill to incorporate teachers' associations, recommending its passage; also bill authorizing W. R. Munkers to construct a toll bridge across Lake Labish, in Marion county, recommending its passage.

Mr. TVALT reported back bill to amend an act to tax and protect Chinamen, with amendments.

Pending the disposition of the amendment, the House adj.

Council. Afternoon.—Mr. FORD presented a petition for the incorporation of the town of Monmouth, with bill referred to a select committee.

Committee on military affairs offered a report—500 copies ordered printed.

House joint memorial, in relation to spoliation claims, was adopted. Adj.

House, Evening.—Council amendment to bill to incorporate Josephine Wagon Road Company, was concurred in.

Mr. CRANER moved to lay Council amendment to bill to relocate the seat of government on the table—lost—Yeas 7; Nays 16.

Mr. DRYER moved to adopt Council amendment No. 1, establishing the seat of government at Portland—lost—Yeas—Messrs. Bowley, Dryer, Hannah, Hedges, Parker, Slater, Shattuck and Mr. Speaker—7; Nays—Messrs. Bonham, Craner, Chapman, Crooks, Holton, Jones, Lasater, McIninch, McGee, Newcomb, Stevens, Smith of Polk, T. Valt, Watson and Zieher—15.

Mr. CHAPMAN moved to concur in Council amendment No. 2, providing for submitting the question of location to the people, October next—lost—Yeas 8; Nays 14. Adj.

House. Afternoon.—The China bill was referred to a select committee.

Mr. PARKER presented a long and bombastic report from the committee to whom was referred the petitions for a prohibition liquor law, together with a bill, providing for the submission of the question of prohibition to the people of the Territory.

Mr. SLATER introduced a bill to divorce Philip O'Reilly—referred to a select committee.

Mr. STEVENS, from committee on roads and highways, reported a bill to relocate the Territorial road from Lafayette to the Polk county line.

Mr. CHAPMAN, from judiciary committee, reported back Council bill to authorize Jos. Young to construct a wagon road across the Cascade mountains, which was re-referred.

Mr. GATES moved to take up bill to amend the charter of the Cascade Road and Bridge Company—agreed to, and the bill passed. Adj.

Council, Saturday, Jan. 15, A. M.—Mr. WAIT, from judiciary committee, reported a bill, enacting a special license law for Lane county, without recommendation.

House bill, to amend an act to incorporate Cascade Road and Bridge Company was taken up, and passed.

The Council refused to recede from the amendments to the bill to relocate the seat of government.

House joint resolution, fixing the 22nd inst. for an adjournment sine die, was taken up and concurred in.

Bills to divorce Elijah Dodson, and to authorize R. S. Jewett to construct a floating bridge across Rogue River, were passed.

Mr. MACK introduced a resolution, that from and after Wednesday next, no new matter, requiring joint action, shall be introduced into the Council—adopted. Adj.

House, Saturday, Jan. 15, A. M.—Mr. CHAPMAN, from judiciary committee, reported back bill to incorporate the Jacksonville and Sterling Water Ditch Company, and recommended its passage.

Mr. BONHAM introduced a bill to require Josephine county to pay into the Territorial treasury a certain revenue.

Mr. LASATER introduced a bill to repeal sec. 2 of an act relating to Territorial and School laws.

Mr. SLATER offered a resolution instructing the Prosecuting Attorney of the 2nd Judicial District to inquire into the expenditures of moneys by the Superintendent of the Penitentiary, &c.—laid on the table.

Mr. CRANER offered a resolution, that after 12 o'clock on Monday, Jan. 17th, 1859, no new matter shall be introduced into the House.

Mr. TVALT moved to amend by substituting Tuesday for Monday—and the resolution passed.

Mr. STEVENS introduced a bill to incorporate Battleville Institute.

Mr. CHAPMAN, from judiciary committee, reported back bill to amend "Stevens ferry charter," with amendment—adopted.

Mr. SLATER reported back bill to divorce Philip O'Reilly, and recommended its passage. Adjourned.

Council. Afternoon.—Mr. CORNELIUS moved that the Council still insist upon its amendments to the Capitol bill, and ask the House to appoint a committee of conference—agreed to.

The Council went into committee of the whole, on the business thereto referred. After some time spent in deliberation, the committee rose, and reported the bill to incorporate the town of Monmouth, with sundry amendments which were adopted, and the bill passed, ordered engrossed.

House bill, to incorporate North Umququa River Bridge Company was read, the rules suspended and the bill passed. Adj.

House. Afternoon.—Mr. CHAPMAN moved that the House adhere to its disagreement to the Council amendments to bill to relocate the seat of government, and request the Council to recede from its amendments—agreed to.

The bill to incorporate the North Umququa River Bridge Company was taken up, amendments offered and adopted, and the bill passed—Yeas 16; nays 5.

Mr. CHAPMAN reported, from Judiciary committee, the bill to authorize Jos. Young to construct a wagon road across the Cascade mountains, with amendments, which were adopted, and the bill passed.

Mr. DRYER moved that a committee of conference be appointed on the bill for the relocation of the seat of government—agreed to. Messrs. Dryer and T. Valt were appointed said committee. Adjourned to 7 o'clock.

House, Evening.—The following bills were passed: To change the boundaries of Astoria; for the relief of Yamhill county; to divorce Mary A. Dennis; to legalize an informal vote, locating the county seat of Curry county; to incorporate Oregon City; to change Territorial road from Albany, Linn county, to Drift Creek, in Marion county; to divorce Jno. Beeson; to divorce Lydia Casner; to incorporate longer Creek Water Ditch Company; to incorporate Laurel Lodge, No. 13, A. F. & A. M.; to divorce Hattie Williams; to incorporate Powell Creek Water Ditch Company; to relocate Territorial road from Philip Foster's, in Clackamas county, and to extend the limits of the town of Dallas, in Polk county. Bill to incorporate Jacksonville and Sterling Water Ditch Company referred to committee on Corporations. Bill for relief of N. A. Conroyer, referred to committee on Claims. Bills to divorce Fanny Cohen, to divorce Nancy D. Walling, and to divorce Mahala Card, laid on table. Adjourned.

Mr. John Beeson, formerly of Oregon, is in the States, engaged in the general reform business, with Indian philanthropy as a specialty. The N. Y. Day Book thus refers to him: HOW TO CIVILIZE THE INDIANS.—Mr. John Beeson, of No. 15 Light street, is a hopeful young man. His bump of expectation must be prodigious, for Mr. Beeson coolly announces that for $200,000 he will ensure the following results: 1. A final cessation of Indian wars; 2. A saving of all the cost of forts and armies, and the whole system of the present costly Indian department; 3. A cessation of one of the oldest and grossest national sins—robbery and murder of Indians; 4. A drying up of one of the greatest sources of political and social vice; 5. A foundation laid for true permanent reform; 6. Thrifty settlements and peaceful marts of trade and commerce, and a virtuous people on every reserve from the Mississippi to the Pacific, being a source of strength and revenue to the country. There! consider that, ye Indian contractors and ye government officials, who desire to reduce the expenses of the government instantly. If the name and fame of Mr. John Beeson should reach Secretary Cobb's ears, he would send for him forthwith. "You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action. "You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and armies," to say nothing of the grand moral effects to flow from Mr. Beeson's treatment of our Indian tribes. But how, asks the reader, are these desirable results to be accomplished? Well, be it known, Mr. Beeson is a philanthropist, not only by profession, but he is ready to become one by contract. He will stipulate to convert the Indians into good, sound, moral Christians at so much per head! Aye, he will "dry up national sins" for so many round dollars. Plunk down the cash, and he is ready for action.

"You think of a saving of all the cost of forts and