HOW THE GAMBLING IN GOLD IS MANAGED IN WALL STREET .- The financial article of the New York Herald, of Dec. 14th, says :-"The cariosity of outsiders may be gratified by learning how the gambling operations in gold are carried on in and around Wall street. The amount of coin that is kept affeat in that local ty cannot, of course, be mathematically ascer amed, but it may be estimated at $1,500,000 It is divided into sums varying from $1,000 to 10,000, which are placed in small, stout, can vas bags, around the neck of each of which is tied a piece of red tape, the knot covered with scaling wax, stamped, and the amount which it contains marked on the outside. The specalators, or gamblers, after paying for an unitors, of gambiers, after paying for an ad-mission ticket, daily visit the selestoom, and there they buy or sell as the prospect of a ris-ing of falling market may exhibit itself to their imaginations. If an operator sells without time being specified, he must deliver to the purchaser the amount disposed of before fifteen munites after 2 o'clock, on the day the sale is menutes after 2 o'clock, on the day the sale is made, if the contract is entered into previous to that hour. A canvas hag containing the amount stipulated is then intrusted to the hands of a porter, who makes the delivery. In the meantime, perhaps prices have advanced, or perhaps danger is apprehended of a sudden fall; and the purchaser, with a keen eye to his interest, offers his newly acquired five or ten thousand, and the amount is again disposed of, and in like manner delivered; but if the sale was made after the hour above stated, the de-livery does not take place until the following day. In this manner, the little bars, with day. In this manner, the little bags, with their precious contents, are kept constantly on the move. There are of course, purchasers in the market who desire specie for shipment, but the amount thus abstracted is replaced by outsiders, who sell small quantities to the brokers, and by this means the average is preserved from month to mooth.

GEN. SCOTT ON GEN. GRANT .-- Of Gene ral Grant he expressed himself as surprised and delighted. He said he knew General Grant in the war with Mexico, where he was a Lieutenant and had no opportunity to distin-guish himself. So far, General Grant had proved himself the hero of the war-fighting great battles with consummate skill and secur-ing the results. And so far he secured to be the only General that knew how to do it. While he does not think this war will be a seven years war, yet neither this year nor the next, in his opinion, will see its end. Much hard fighting is to be done before the rebellion will cease. Great and grave questions of anxiety and trouble will arise and ron on, and vex the nation beyond the lifetime of this generation.— But the Union will be preserved, the National life perpetuated and the United States will come out of this terrible baptism of blood with renewed life and strength to bless the coming generations. Such is the substance of an hour's conversa tion with the old hero. And as his opinion are of value at the present time, and were given with no reserve or wish that they should not be made public, I presume your readers will be pleased to hear from the General - Cor. Boston Journal.

IT The San Francisco Evening Journal has at the head of its columns. "For President, Abraham Lincoln of Illinois ; For Vice Presi-dent, Frederick F. Low, of California." ¹ One storm pursed o'er the trembling land The land will no'er forget ; The everiasting mountains stand Ar its immentions yet. Thus one more terrible, by far, Than when the storm-king's rambling car Sweeps rated y through the howfing air, And heaves the billows high. Two siten the mountains land their birth, And, troat the fiery womb of earth, Sprong upward toward the sky.

"The sun rose with a sickly glate, On that ill ownerse more, Hot vapors fillest the heavy air, On a loggish treazes better; The wild bird, by the heat oppressed, Flew panting to her shaded nest; The deterind particle sought for rest. In the cool forest stude; The white swam bathed her snowy creet, And on the circle lake's peaceful breast Retreating ripples made. Retronting ripples mud

⁴⁰ Deep elence reigned—all natures lay Extraosed in calin repose,
⁴¹ Diep elence reckoned not that day Such invertor should dieless—
⁴² Twas a false calm, like the false grace White dark, corroding servors classe All gindness from the beart;

" But, back ! whence came that distant roar ¹⁰ But, back ! whence came that distant That amount the treadbling ground ? War it the waves on occas schore, Or thunder's anothering sound ? It comes again ; more load, more clear its dismal ramblings now appear ; Through the deep forest for and usar Too answering vehoes bound ! Destruction, winth, and ruin dire, A storm of earth's undertaints fire, Portends the sellen sound.

August shall destinction spare! * It cause at last. Earth felt the shock, And harved a heavy groun, As when on some half hidden rock The freighted ship is blown; Her loosened timbers groun and creak, The solution of pours through many a lask, And wild winds through ber rigging shrick The death kind! of her crew: Thus grouned and shock earth's shattered frame, And trongi each rem the larid flame Its fifth flashes throw.

* The storm increased. Earth rocked and recled "The storm increased. Earth rocked an Like overal's storm forsed waves : And many an opening rent revealed Her subternamen caves, Where boining billows rolled and ragged, As though in furious strife engaged. Or discontent at being enged Within their marrow bound, Like the mad whole that ruledy rave Romai their Rolling prison cave, With force and furious sound.

 One moment stayed the swelling surge, Its unothered wrath controlled; Then iron each yawning critter's verge The farious torreut rolled; Ontward and on ward spot the tide, No horizes its force to sends. In the House, to-day, Dawes, of Massachu-sette, moved that the oredentials of James M. Kelson, representative cleet from Arkansas, he referred to the Committee on Elections.-

Referred to the committee on Elections... be referred to the committee on Elections... Col. Johnson, he said, brought with him the constitution of Arkansas as a free offering, the first unwilling fruit from the rebellion. A mo-tion to table was lost, after a lengthy Jebate, and after an ineffectual motion to refer to a se-bet committee on veconstruction, with instruclect committee on reconstruction, with instruc-tions, they were referred to the Committee on Elections. The House then resumed commideration of the whisky amendments to the reveense bill

In the Senate, a bill granting lands to Oregon to aid the construction of military posts, was passed.

NEW YORK. Feb. 17.—A special dispatch to the Herald, from Headquarters Army of West Virginia, says: Reports are in circula-tion of rebel movement toward Romney. From two captured rebels, we glean much interesting information. One letter says that a secret Union association has been formed in Virginia, and is known to have over one thon-sand members, some of which are weal by and influential citizens. The letters say Jeff Davis has ordered several suspicious persons to be arrested, and that secret agents are now on the haut for all suspected trai ors. The Tribune has a Washington letter which says that Lee has received thirty thousand recruits, and Longstreet is also to be strength-ened. His force is said to be forty thousand.

ened. His force is said to be forty thousand. Breckinridge and Bockner are to make a raid into Kentucky, assisted by Longstreet – proba-bly to return through Middle Tennessee, to at-tempt a movement in the rear of Graut. Army afficers from the front express opinions that within ten days the road will be in condi-tion to enable the rebels to move, and they will then commence Spring operations. Two opin-ions prevail; one is, they will attack us in front and endeavor to drive Meade within the de-fences of Washington; the other that Lee will go into Pennylvania.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.-The World's letter says the army at Chattanooga is preparing for immediate operations. Chattanooga is filled up with munitions of war. The sick are imapproximation of war. The sick are improving.

 The Herald's special says it is understood that on the 22d of February. Mr. Lincoln will issue a preclamation of universal emancipation including the border States.
 The Times' special ways the committee on the Conduct of the War will soon examine into the cances of the Inactivity of the fleet off Charleston harbor.
 A World's special ways it is understood that every member of the Senate Judiciary Committee believed the resolution for forfeiting the property of rehels beyond life, unconstitutional. The committee has reported against its passage.

passage. John Morgan is said to be in the vicinity of Dalton, Ga. with considerable cavalry for the purpose of making a raid. Gov. Watts of Alabama, telegraphed to the the citizens of Selma to prepare to receive non-combatants from Mobile as that place was soon to be attacked by the federals. Mobile pa-pers say Sherman's plan is to compel the stac-uation of Mobile.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Private dis-patches quote gold in New York at 160. Arrived, steamer Orizaba, from Papama-chipper Ludy Washington.

<text> THE GREAT PRIZE FIGHT .- It is said there ald not resist.

Est "After his earne from the Columbus periten-thary, John Morgan went divers to Cinclumit. From that city he proceeded directly to Mean Berling, Ky., and thence vin the Hig Sandy rests to Historest. "The above statement is probably correct, as it is copied from a copperhead paper, and exp-perheads are well ported, if anybody is, in the movements of rebels.
