THE RECENT RISE IN GOLD.

The RECENT RISE IN COLD.

It puzzles a good many people to understand the canees which have occasioned the recent rise in gold—ten per cent, since the 1st of January, 1864. The sudden rise in gold between the 1st of January and the last of March, 1863, from 3 to 72 per cent, premium, was easily accounted for. We had, in December, 1862. but $100,000,000 of government currency in circulation. But in January the amount was raised to $250,000,000, and by the last of ericlasurg defeats, and the rebels in Mississippi were successfully buffling all the energies and strategy of Grant and his brave army to dislodge them from Vickburg and re-open the Mississippi to she trade of the Northwest.—
The Copperheads were formidable in the free States. The Northwest was becoming restive and dissatisfied with the inability of the Gov-Pennsylvania, and Indiana, and the copper-head leaders in these and other States, were audacious and aggressive. They holdly de-manded peace and compromises with treason, and the country knew very well that these things looked to the ultimate repudiation of the national debt. The Government failing, all its measures would fail too, and its currency is reation to assemble at Albany on the 13th of the present month, to nominate candidates for Congress. State Printer, Presidential Electors. &c., to be beaten on the first Monday in June next. We do not venture any prediction as to who will be crowned with the dubious honors, nor have we any advice to offer to the Convention.

measures would fail too, and its currency is sued and other causes, it is impossible for us to produce; and such articles can be obtained only due; and such articles can be obtained only by a free interchange with other quarters of the globe.

But what we desire to advocate is such a development of our own resources, agricultural, dence to the country; and therefore, and from all these causes, gold suddenly went up from thirty-five to seventy two per cent, premium. to send the gold and silver dug from our mines that the rehelition is broken, and none know this better than moneyed men. O'Meara, too, is said to be ambitions of the nomination—perhaps he may even hope for an election. Graduating in a Knownothing lodge in California, he came to this State in 1858, managed to make himself a candidate for State Printer on the "National" ticket that year, and received the votes of a large part of France during the last year to pay the balance of this case of this evidently is that the question has not been discussed sufficiently by sound, and that it will ultimately be as good as gold, but such an increase in the circulating median could not but affect the relative value of gold and of every other merchantable commodity, for the press. Persons who have settled on this coast were not driven here by persecutions and tyrnany at home, like the pilgrims of old, but came of their own choice, most generally for the purpose of bettering their condition in life. Hence many of these persons, who have even dissuppointed in their prospects, talk and millions of gold to be locked up, while the Government paper, has doubtless caused in California, he came to this State in 1858, mannaged to make himself a candidate for duries, shat up in the treasury collected for duries, shat up in the treasury value. The drain of gold from England and provide the votes of a large part of France during the last year to pay the balance of the country. State Printer on the "National" ticket that year, and received the votes of a large part of the republicans of that day. Since the religion he has been one of the most outspoken secessionists in the country, and as the editor of the Eugene Review, has made his opinions well known to the public. If he is nominated, Long Touf will rejoice—and so will we—for the issue will then be squarely made. It will be plainly Henderson and Union, or O'Meara and dissolution. There will be no question as to the result.

O'Meara is a fluent speaker, and has a chronic ambition to appear before the public. If not nominated for Congress, he probably will be for State Printer or Elector, and may be counted on as a canvasser in the coming campaign.

of law which came in conflict with the preservation of the State was an unconditational act—not obligatory on the law making power and within the constitutional power of the Government to repeal."

Will not the rebel stump speakers of Oregon quote this rebel authority occasionally when inveighing against the exercise of every power the United States Government has to protect itself?

JUST RIGHT.—Senator Conness has written a letter in which he says that in making changes in office, he has but one concern and that is to establish a higher standard of political morality in State and nation. "No man, he says, "shall remain to public earlies, with fall statery, or who steals from the public, or who is necompetent."
