Warning Notes Calling the Wicked to Repentance.

PEPETTE is often mistaken for aspiration.
The Holy Spirit
is not selecting ing to their style.

Heavenly considerations often appear trifling to a man until he has some treasure there.

A woman with a new hat never gets settled before the sermon.

The man who syndicates his sorrows always tries to corner his bliss.

Restoring the credit is a much simpler matter than rebuilding the character.

The man who is all sounding brass thinks that he strikes the keynote for the universe.

The sermon will not furnish food for faith if you use it only to find flaws in the preacher.

Many men are anxious to get on the payroll of life who have no interest in the shop-tickets.

When a man is sad on his own account it can be usually laid either to selfishness or to sin.

People who are doing God's work have no time to worry over the way they look while doing it.

The man who has faith in some folly is always more persuasive than he who simply preaches by rote.

A good many of us will carry scars to our graves, earned by trying to make things hot for others.

It is safe to keep away from the amusement that acts as an invitation to the devil to come and tempt us.

One of the most certain signs of backsliding is when you begin to congratulate yourself on your broadminded-ness.

FUTURE FORETOLD BY MIRROR.

Hells of Oriental Mystics Owned in Washington Still Doing Business.

There is a magic mirror here which is supposed to have come from the temple of Aboera, in the Himalayan Mountains, where a monastery of ascetic monks devoted their time to the development of psychic powers, says the Washington correspondent of the New York World. It is oblong, a foot and a half long and a foot wide. It has a black wooden frame three inches wide inclosing a highly polished glass perfectly black, due to the back being patented with asphaltum.

The mirror was owned by Dr. Leroy Taylor, a student of the occult, who got it from a woman who had passed much of her life in foreign travel. Just before his death he gave the mirror to Mrs. Gordon, who lives on 10th street between M and N streets. From her the psychological societies have been trying to purchase the glass, offering large sums for it.

A person who wishes to consult the mirror goes into a room by himself and holds the mirror in his lap at an angle which meets the eye without causing a reflection on the polished surface. It is asserted that if the user possesses any psychic power there will appear on the glass a filmy white cloud, which will pass across and disappear in the frame, while out of the mist will appear faces and scenes of happenings to come.

There are many persons who declare they have seen visions in the mirror—prophecies which have come true. The late Judge Caswell of California, while visiting in the home of Dr. Taylor looked in the mirror and saw the face of a near relative then living in Pittsburg. He was struck by the peculiar way in which the hair was combed back off the forehead. Two weeks later Judge Caswell was at the funeral of this relative and the hair was combed back in exactly that manner.

Mrs. Gordon, on looking in the mirror recently, saw the picture of a house on a lawn, near a river, on fire. The next day a telegram was received saying that the home of Dr. Taylor's son on the Potomac River had been burned the day before. Dr. Taylor's grandchildren saw the face of their dead grandmother in the mirror.

Easy to See His Finish.

A Philadelphia politician was talking about the late Samuel H. Ashbridge, former Mayor of the city.

"I worked under Mr. Ashbridge for three years," he said, "and found him a good master. But one thing he always insisted on. That was implicit obedience to orders. If he told you to do a thing, that, and nothing else, was what you were to do. He didn't like to have a subordinate try to improve on his orders.

"I once tried to improve on an order of Mr. Ashbridge's. An errand I had been sent on I did better, as I thought, than I had been told to do it. But when I came back, the Mayor smiled and told me a story.

"He said that there was a young man in love with a rich and beautiful girl.
The girl informed him one afternoon that the next day would be her birthday. He said he was glad to hear it.

He said he would send her the next morning a bouquet of roses, one rose for each year.

"So that night he wrote a note to his nortist, ordering the immediate delivery of 20 roses to the young lady. But the florist, reading this order, thought he would please the young man by improving on it, and so he said to his clerk:

"Here is an order from young Smith for 20 roses. Smith is one of my best customers. Throw in 10 more for good measure."
