

LIEUTENANT BOWMAN.

IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS PE-RU-NA CURED HIM.

Cold Affected Head and Throat—Attack Was Severe

Chas. W. Bowman, 1st Lieut. and Adj. 4th M. S. M. Cav. Vols., writes from Lanham, Md., as follows: "Though somewhat averse to patent medicines, and still more averse to becoming a professional affidavit man, it seems only a plain duty in the present instance to add my experience to the columns already written concerning the curative powers of Peruna."

"I have been particularly benefited by its use for colds in the head and throat. I have been able to fully cure myself of a most severe attack in forty-eight hours by its use according to directions. I use it as a preventive whenever threatened with an attack."

"Members of my family also use it for like ailments. We are recommending it to our friends."

—Chas. W. Bowman. Ask Your Druggist for Free Peruna Almanac for 1907

An Avenue of Escape. Rival committees were appealing for funds. "Let's see," said the capitalist, musingly. "If I give $5,000 to each committee one donation would nullify the other, and so far as I can see, leave both relatively where they started."

Utterly Worn Out. Vitality Sapped by Years of Suffering With Kidney Trouble. Capt. J. W. Hogan, former postmaster of Indianapolis, now living at Austin, Texas, writes: "I was afflicted for years with pains across the loins and in the hips and shoulders. I had headache also and neuralgia. My right eye, from pain, was of little use to me for years. The constant flow of urine kept my system depleted, causing nervous chills and night sweats. After trying seven different medicines and using all kinds of medicine I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy has cured me. I am as well today as I was twenty years ago, and my eyesight is perfect."

CATARRH BLOOD AND SYSTEM DISORDERED

Catarrh is not merely an inflammation of the tissues of the head and throat, as the symptoms of ringing noises in the ears, mucous dropping back into the throat, continual hawking and spitting, etc., would seem to indicate; it is a blood disease in which the entire circulation and the greater part of the system are involved. Catarrh is due to the presence of an excess of uric acid in the blood. The Liver, Kidneys and Bowels frequently become torpid and dull in their action and instead of carrying off the refuse and waste of the body, leave it to sour and form uric acid in the system. This is taken up by the blood and through its circulation distributed to all parts of the system. These impurities in the blood irritate and inflame the different membranes and tissues of the body, and the contracting of a cold will start the secretions and other disgusting and disagreeable symptoms of Catarrh. As the blood goes to all parts of the body the catarrhal poison affects all parts of the system. The head has a tight, full feeling, nose continually stopped up, pains above the eyes, slight fever comes and goes, the stomach is upset and the entire system disordered and affected by this disease. It is a waste of time to try to cure Catarrh with sprays, washes, inhalations, etc. Such treatment does not reach the blood, and can, therefore, do nothing more than temporarily relieve the discomfort of the trouble. To cure Catarrh permanently the blood must be thoroughly purified and the system cleansed of all poisons, and at the same time strengthened and built up. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head, goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and makes a complete and lasting cure. S. S. S. removes every particle of the catarrhal poison from the blood, making this vital stream pure, fresh and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, the head is loosened and cleared, the hawking and spitting cease, and the constitution is built up and vigorous health restored. S. S. S. also tones up the stomach and digestion and acts as a fine tonic to the entire system. If you are suffering with Catarrh begin the use of S. S. S. and write us a statement of your case and our physicians will send you literature about Catarrh, and give you special medical advice without charge. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.

Her Book Diary.

She held up the fat little red leather book for her friend to see. "No—not a diary. I kept one once, but I burned it long ago. My father gave me this when I was 15, and showed me how to keep it. "It is my list of books I have read. I call it my book of books. Here is the first entry: 'Westward Ho,' by Charles Kingsley—double-starred because I have read it three times; a star means rereading. Underlined, too, because when I looked the list over at the end of the year it was one of my favorites. A little circle after the title—that's because it was a work of fiction that set me hunting fact, in history and biography. "Not all the marks in my code were marks of honor, though. Look at the cross after number nine; that means trash. And there, after number eleven—the Frederika Bremer novel—the black dash; that means simply that I didn't like it. Father enjoined me to be honest with my black marks. He said I should find them an antidote to literary pretentiousness."—St. Louis Republic.

Short Kings.

There is hardly a king in Christendom whose wife does not overtop him by a head. The English king is quite six inches shorter than Queen Alexandra. The czar, a little man, is overtopped a full head by the czarina. Kaiser Wilhelm is of the medium height, but the German empress is tall, and that is why the proud kaiser will never consent to be photographed beside his wife unless she sits while he stands.

The king of Italy, short and squat, hardly comes up to the shoulders of the tall, athletic Queen Helena.

The king of Portugal, though fatter, is less tall than his queen.

Even the Prince of Wales is shorter a good four inches than the princess.

And the young king of Spain is several inches shorter than his queen.

Misunderstood.

He had bought her a pot of real Irish shamrock, grown on the old sod, for it was St. Patrick's day, and she, too, had in her veins the blood of Erin. "Oh," she cried, "how good of you! How perfect they are! How fresh! Why, I believe there is still a little dew on them."

"Yes," he answered, flushing. "I know there is, but it will all be paid off tomorrow."

Long Way from Nowhere.

The most remote mission station in the world is on Herschel Island, in the far northwest corner of the Dominion of Canada. The nearest postoffice is 2,000 miles away. Consequently the packets are few and far between, seldom more than two in a year. The island is a most uninviting place for a residence. No sun for more than two months in the winter, and not a tree to be seen anywhere. Under the teaching of the missionaries many of the Esquimaux are becoming more civilized, and are greatly improving in their manner and habits, and there is a growing desire for instruction.

A count of the unoccupied houses in London shows 40,069. That is one house in fifteen of the whole city.

NEW INVENTIONS

Fish Stringer.

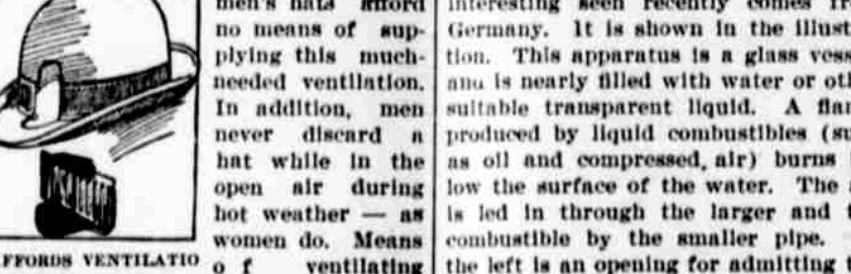

Every fisherman, if he has been fortunate to catch some fish that are worth exhibiting, dislikes to hide them in a basket. He would rather procure a piece of cord or wire and carry the fish that way. What the fisherman needs in such an emergency is the carrier shown in the illustration, the invention of a Wisconsin man. When not in use it can be slipped in the trousers pocket, and when needed can be quickly brought forth. It is very simple in construction, comprising a handle, a length of cord and a needle for slipping the end of the cord through the gills of the fish. The cord is arranged so that it can be folded in the middle and passed through a hook in the center of the handle. In this way the string of fish, if very long, will not trail upon the ground.

Hat Ventilator.

The prevalence of so many bald-headed men has been attributed to the fact that the hair on the head is not given proper ventilation. No one will deny that men's hats afford no means of supplying this much-needed ventilation. In addition, men never discard a hat while in the open air during hot weather—as women do. Means of ventilating men's hats have many times been suggested, but Fashion has always tabooed the idea. Nevertheless, the suggestion is again brought forth in a recent patent of a Mississippi man. This hat ventilator accomplishes the purpose thoroughly, as shown in the illustration in connection with the ordinary derby hat. Between the brim and crown of the hat, encircling the latter entirely, is a band (about the size of a regulation hat band) composed of narrow openings extending from top to bottom. The band is made of hard rubber or celluloid, to give the necessary stiffness or elasticity. It would undoubtedly afford much comfort to the wearer. It would be impossible to make similar slits in the felt of the hat, as the latter would not hold its shape. The introduction of hard rubber keeps the hat in shape, and at the same time is not unduly conspicuous. Of course, the use of this ventilator is not confined to derby hats, but can be attached to any style of hat.

For Window Display.

Every shopkeeper endeavors to introduce something among the goods in his window that will immediately attract attention. Passersby will at once be interested in the novelty exhibited, and naturally will turn their attention to the goods on display. American shopkeepers are far in advance of the merchants of other countries in introducing these "eye-catchers." Still, one of the most interesting seen recently comes from Germany. It is shown in the illustration. This apparatus is a glass vessel, and is nearly filled with water or other suitable transparent liquid. A flame, produced by liquid combustibles (such as oil and compressed air) burns below the surface of the water. The air is led in through the larger and the combustible by the smaller pipe. At the left is an opening for admitting the liquid and on the opposite side an overflow pipe. When the apparatus is placed in a shop front or the like the flame, burning within the liquid apparatus, can also be used for producing hot water for heating purposes.

NATIONAL GAME PARK.

Nearly 60,000 acres in one natural game preserve! Such is the new enterprise which the national government is establishing in Oklahoma. As far back as tribal tradition runs the Wichita mountain region has been the favorite hunting grounds of the Comanche and Kiowa Indians, drawn thither by abundance of game and delightful climate. But now game, like the Indians, is largely a thing of the past.

It is proposed to reproduce in this splendid natural park all the best species of game animals and birds that once made the great West the hunter's paradise. Deer, antelope, bear, the otter and beaver, quail and doves, prairie chickens and wild turkeys will be given protection and encouraged to increase and multiply. Probably the most interesting feature of the undertaking will be an effort to have, in the course of years, large herds of buffalo again roaming the plains—within the reservation—as they did before the pitiless warfare upon them was carried so nearly to the point of extermination. When the plans now under way are carried out Oklahoma will be able to boast, in this Wichita mountain game reserve, one of the finest natural game parks in the country.

Naturalists who have visited the region unite in saying that the preserve, without question, can be made one of the most successful in the United States. The 57,120 acres of land set apart by act of Congress for this purpose lies in the rugged embrace of mountains that attain an altitude of 2,700 feet above sea level, from whose summits one may behold the marvelous expanse of plains rolling westward to the Rocky mountains and southward to the Rio Grande del Norte.

To the east the country is broken by timbered streams, many of them splendid water courses, between which are fertile prairies and ever increasing hills that merge finally into the bastions of the beautiful Ozarks in Arkansas and Missouri. From the north, as far as the Dominion of Canada and stretching southward to the Gulf of Mexico, there sweeps past the Wichitas the mighty pathway of the plains, rich in nutritious grasses, over which grazed in the earlier days the migratory herds of buffalo and deer. The climate is mild and dry, although snow whitens the tops of the mountains in winter. In summer the peaks swim in a sea of purple haze. The average rainfall is about twenty-nine inches and the annual mean temperature close to 60 degrees. Seldom does the temperature go below zero.

THE FINAL WORD.

No more loyal or devoted servant could be found than Nora Sweeney. The thought her mistress was an angel in very slight disguise, and that the rest of the family were all far superior to the ordinary run of mortals.

Her indignation was beyond bounds when she found that Bridget Halloran, attached to the Laphams on the second floor of the apartment house, considered "her family" far ahead of Nora's in every way, because of their style of dressing.

"She's always talking to me about their clothes, Mrs. Harmon, dear," said Nora, with a hint of tears in her voice as she set down the heaped basket of snowy garments one Monday on her return from the roof, "but I've given her a comethor to-day that she'll not be forgetting in a hurry."

"Why, what did you say, Nora?" asked Mrs. Harmon, with an anxious glance at the pretty flushed face of her little maid of all work.

"She said," and Nora caught her breath, "she said, 'The dress your lady wears to church is about fit to hang out my lady's washing in!'"

"And you said?" prompted Mrs. Harmon, as Nora paused.

"An' I said," Nora's head was proudly lifted, "There's not a thing my lady wears, even if it's when she's all alone, wid herself away, would be fit for that!" I said to her, an' she'd never a word to give me back."—Youth's Companion.

A candidate was feeling tough and looking tough, this morning, and said: "I'd like to tell the real truth about running for office."

Promise of Improvement.

"Edith," exclaimed her mother, "I'm sorry I brought you to the shore at all. Here five days and you're engaged to two young men. It's disgraceful!" "Yes," admitted the summer girl, "it's pretty slow work, but give me time, ma, give me time."—Philadelphia Freeman.

Bridge Love.

"What is that poem about the bridge at midnight?" asked Mrs. Flashington. "I don't know," answered Mrs. Dasher; "but the poet knew what he was writing about. Bridge will keep you up till midnight and after if you happen to be loser."—Washington Star.

Real Monopoly. The lone bandit was holding up a railway train. "It's better than being president of the road," he chortled. "I don't have to divide any of the swag with influential politicians." By the way of rebate, however, he returned the cheap watches to their owners.

Safe, Sure and Speedy. No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unobtrusively met these three prime conditions as successfully as Alcock's Plaster. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are maintained upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin.

The Last Word. "Aw, gon, Mike," said the British soldier, attempting to end the argument; "you're a lobster." "Ye fatter me," retorted Mike; "shure, a lobster's a wise animal, fur green is the color fur him as long as he lives, an' he'll die before he puts on a red coat."—The Catholic Standard and Times.
