The London Times has opened its columms to a discussion of "society plays," which are supposed to include "John O'Dreams," Mr. Haddon Chambers' new drams, and pleces like "The Second Mrs.

That this cold, suspicious man history. of business, who was accustomed to boas that he trusted nobody, should sudden! repose unlighted confidence in a few cierks, whom he had known for only a few years, and had rever taken into intimate relations, argues an astonishing changes of heart. As matters stand nor ertain beneficiaries under the will are the executors. They have permanent pation to furnish any security whateve or the faithful execution of their trust for the faithful encoution of their trust. Nobody will question their good faith, but they certainly deserve congratulations on receiving from their employer in death a mark of confidence that was never ex-tended to them in life. The impression left on the public mind by the singular affair is that either age and disease had impaired Mr. Fair's faculties, or that he sat down in pure mulignity to draw a will thut would cause as much trouble will that would cause as much trouble and as little satisfaction to his heirs as We trust that his course may not become a precedent. Public policy demands that great estates shall be divided, to be managed by those who inherit them according to their own judgment and at their own risk. The Appointment of a Receiver for the Riverside Water Company. RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 3.-The dis-patches sent over the wires regarding the appointment of a receiver of the Riverside Water Company are without foundation so far as they represent the community to be in a condition of great excitement over the matter. The people, generally, are pleased over the appointment, since a receiver was inevitable. Several at-torneys representing claims against the company seem the only ones deeply concorned over the matter. That an effort will be made by these to reverse the ac-tion taken is very likely, but it is not erally believed that it will be succes ful. The facts are that the company had been notified by those holding large claims that no further extension of time would be granied, and that failing to make payment, action to compel settle-ment would be instituted. Ender the present financial conditions, the disposal of bonds due seemed out of the question. In the event of the appointment of a receiver by a United States court in the interest of a single creditor, and, possibly at a salary of $500 a month for merely nominal services, as was the case recently with the Southern California motor case it was feared that great injury would result to all other interests. These are the reasons for the action taken by the direc-tors, who know best the details of the ompany's affairs and whose motives are beyond question, to guard general and not particular interests. The company's assets and revenues are ample to mee all claims, and nobody here has the least doubt of a satisfactory outcome of the affairs in competent and friendly hands, as they will be under George Frost's manedlock. Under the laws a marriage may weators. Under the laws a matriage may be solemnized by a justice of the peace or by a minister of the gappel. #### A Close Secret Order of One Hundred Men Formed to Protect Lives and Property.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. Jan. 2.-The ex-citement prevailing in this city during the past week has ended in the organization of a vigilance committee consisting of 10 een. Just what these men intend doing anont be learned, as they have formed homselves into a close secrit order. The meeting, the early part of which was pubc, was held in the old pavilion in this ic, was need in the old pavilion in this city, at 2 o'clock, and was in section near-ly three hours. After the election of tem-porary officers, the assemblage began work. The first thing was the appoint-ment of a committee of five to drait res-

Beesley, a relative of the murdered Webbers, called attention to what he called a reign of terror, and said it must be stopped and stopped without any red tape. C. M. Hurrimon, an old resident and ex-school director, said that the time had come to act and to show world that Sacramento could take a of herself in a crisis. Rev. R.S. Lawson, a pioneer, said that thre things would not have been allowed i 1949, and that they must not be allowed now: that a committee must be appointed that will act, and that he knew that a body of men would be selected that would know what to do. The committee report which was read to the assemblage and which was read to the assembliage and adopted, contained a claume calling for 100 volunteers for special work; those who wanted to be members of the chosen 100 handed in their names on strips of paper; 1555 of these names were placed on file. art is clean," says one, "or else it ceases to be art." "I think it monstrous," says another, a clergyman, who is acquainted with the author of "John O'Dreams," that people should see so much evil in "what I happen to know is the serious effort of a man to inspire the public toward the true and the best." The battle is waged quite as stoutly upon the other side. "The matter lies in a nutshell," says one of Mr Tree's adverse critics "The modern mum mer is nothing if not commercial, and this highly artistic gentleman has discovered that a dirty drama pays better than a clean one." Another, assuming it to be true that "all art is clean, or else it ceases to be art," makes the following deductions: "Every drama is pure, or else it censes to be a drama: all meat is fresh and untainted, or else it ceases to be mout.

This seems to us a little unjust on both sides. The actor who talks about the mission of art has in most cases to make a living out of his mission, and might as well acknowledge that he will undertake very little missionary work that will hur his own pocket. At the same time he has Sar no positive preference for "dirty drama." If he could find the same skill and the same power to please the public in "young person" plays he would just as soon pro duce them. But with the playwrights the case is different. Why do they persist in choosing subjects which are not talked about in mixed company? Leaving aside the small fry, who take no interest in their ork except as a money-getter, we may lect from the living the most distin guished English playwright and one of the most distinguished Frenchman. Why do Mr. Pinero and M. Dunas so persistently mention the unmentionable? Not from Pinero, we be-lleve, has no natural predilection for these ubjects and chooses them merely because subjects and chooses them merely because this is the line of least resistance, be-cause dramatic effects are most easily produced by these means. Accordingly, and in the sincere hope of doing good, he has cribb'd, cabin'd and confind bis failers to ruting one memory confin'd his talent to putting one narrow set of characters through a marvelously ingenious and varied series of dramatic paces. The result is a series of brilliant, witty, skillful, sterie, horizonless plays. Both his plays and Mr. Pinero's are depressing, because they give the impression of talent bestowed upor ible means erving subjects with r

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 3 .- Teday was sold by the receiver, under order of the court, the property of the Gila Bend Irrigation & Reservoir Company, the succes sor of the Peoria Canal Company & Arlmona Construction Company, a kindred association. The entire property was bid in by C. Crowley, of Los Angeles, a memher of the firm that did the greater por-tion of the construction work on the canal, to whom was due over $100,000. The property brought $185,600, to which must be added $125,000 in receivers' certificates. The sule is a final one, succeeding a long course of litigation, and is without the right of redemption. It is worth, at the least calculation, $1,500,000, embracing a great dam do the Gila river, 30 miles below Phoenix, 49 miles of main canal, canable of irrigating 30,000 acres, and 30 miles of laterals. The canal cost more than $1,000,000. The capital was mainly furnished by Greenhut and other members of the whisky trust at Peorta, III., who, today, allowed a forfeiture of all their rights. The new owners are now forming company, and will soon take charge of canal, which is full of water and i perfect shape.
