WHERE THE PERS GO .- All county officials are required by the law which abol-ished the fee system and created salaries, to turn all fees collected by them into the county treasury. The fees are paid over each day to the county treasurer, and he issues a receipt for the amount so paid. A duplicate receipt is also furnished, and this receipt is filed at once with the county clerk. When papers are filed with the sheriff, county clerk, recorder or clerk of the state circult court, the fees are collected and recelpts are issued to the parties for the amount of the fees so paid, and a com-plete record is kept by the officials of all such fees received. Each office makes a monthly report, which goes to the county judge, and, after inspection and approval, is filed in the office of the county cierk. PERMITTED TO LAND, Le Bin Hoon, a hinese boy 12 years of age, who arrived here on the Signal, and who was refused admittance by Collector of Customs Black, was up before Judge Bellinger sterday on a writ of habeas corpus His father, Lee John, keeps a lodging-house at Fourth and Pine streets, and claimed that the boy was born in San Francisco, and that he took him home to China some five years since to put him at school. This was intended as no reflection on the schools here, but they teach things in China which are not faught here, and which it is desirable that every Chinese should know. Lee John was able to satisfy the court in reintry, and so he was allowed to land, and there was a circus at Lee John's last night. The boy is a bright little fellow, and will doubtless prove an ornament to the Chinese colony here. WHO WROTE "BEAUTIFUL SNOW" ?- A correspondent writes to ask The Orego-nian to settle a dispute by publishing the name of the author of "Beautiful Snow. The question, if naked in the dog days would have received the attention of the entire force, but just at this time it is that this question has been long in doubt, and one of the things it doesn't know and never expects or cares to find out is just who wrote "Beautiful Snow." The "credit" has often been given to one who had fallen from grace; who once was as pure as the snowflake, and was sought for the charms of her face; who died in a charity hospital from the effects of her terrible woe, and 'tis said that they found in her pocket the poem on "Benutiful Snow." But there's nothing certain about it; some say it was written by Poe, while others say it wasn't, so how's anybody to ow? Whoever the author may have n, it is time for him to come out and satisfy all interested parties by telling us what he's about, and whether he's man born of woman, inhabiting this world below, or whether he's only a spirit in form of his "beautiful snow." If human, he'll leave us in winter when the snow has covered the ground, and in a casket of coaliar and feathers they should lower him gently down to a sleep of peace and quiet, away from this vain, fleeting show, with naught but the heavens above him, in a bed of his "beautiful snow."

SAD CASE OF ANGLOMANIA.-A gentle man, while on the way from the Cascades to this city by boat a day or two since, was much amused at a conversation between two lady passengers, who were discussing the new schoolteacher lately employed by their district. "She seems a nice enough girl," said one, "but she has nice enough girl," said one, "but she has introduced a lot of foreign notions, among them the study of English grammar." "Pshaw!" said the other, "what sense is there in the children studying English grammar? They have enough to do to study about their own country." It is well for the teacher that the ladies are not on the school board.

A HACKMAN'S RIGHTS.-W. W. Efkins a special officer empicyed at the central depot, tried to have William Jenkins, a hackman, convicted of trespass in the mu nicipal court yesterday. The evidence showed that Jenkins was sitting in the waiting-room, and it being a public place, Judge Smith held that the man committed no offense by being there. He also held that the Terminal Company had no right to distinguish as to who should be allowed in the station.

AMUSEMENTS.

The popularity of Wagner's operation creation was attested last evening by the large audience that assembled at the Marquam to hear the Tavary grand operacompany in "Tannhauser." The miserable condition of the streets, laden with sloppy snow, the sleeting rain, and the demoralized street-car system, did not seem to dissuade the residents of the city seem to dissuade the residents of the city from venturing from their firesides, for the theater held one of the largest audiences of the present engagement. make matters worse, many of the streets were left in total darkness by the break-ing down of electric light wires. An operatic organization that would fill a theater under these conditions must certainly have great drawing powers. The Marquem would doubtless have had the "standing-room only" sign out, early Wednesday and Thursday evening, if it had not been for the storm. The rendition of "Tannhauser" was really grand. The full strength of the company was cast in the production, and hindame Tavary and her associates seem thoroughly wedded to Wagner's extraordimary music. The soloists, chorus and orchestra seemed determined to repay the audience for its attendance under such circumstances, with the best performance in the ability of the organization. How well they succeeded is best judged by the repeated outbursts of applause from the first to the last curtain.

The story of "Tannhauser" is strange and fascinating Tannhauser, a knight and minstrel, in an evil hour, sought refuge from the griefs of earth in the Hill of Venus, where, surrounded by her heathen train, the goddess is supposed to hold her court amid everlasting revels, destroying the souls of men who fall into her tolls. The opera opens when Tann-hauser, having dwelt with her a whole year, has become weary of monoto joys, and, in a momentary return of his better nature, longs for earthly life, with its mingled pains and pleasures. He implores the golders to release him, and, after a protracted struggle, regains his liberty. The story then tells of his unfortunate adventures, and of his finally being returned to the domain of Venus, where, conscience-stricken, he finds everlasting wretchedness.

Nothing could be more enjoyable than the artistic rendition of Elizabeth by Madame Tavary. She sang and interpreted the part with rare excellence, and was repeatedly applauded. The other members of the company were unusually good, and came in for their share of commendation The Tavary company will, this after-noon, at a special matinee performance, present Bizet's brilliant opera "Carmen," with a cast equal in strength to any of the "Carmens" seen in this country. Madam Tavary will be heard in the role of "Michaela," and Madame Theo Dorro will give her great interpretation of the role of Carmen. In Italy she is said to have bad you superior as Carmen. to have had no superior as Carmen The general chorus and orchestra will add greatly to the toreador scene, and promises to be one of the most delightful presentations of the week. Mr. Mortens will sing the Toreador. After the performance the company will leave for San Francisco.

The Riggs Company.

The popularity of theatrical entertain-nents and the impression they make on the public is best attested by the box of-fice receipts. Accepting this fact as a test of merit, the Charles Riggs company is season has been large everywhere, not-withstanding the general cry is hard times. This fact certainly goes to show that the company is one of unusual merit and is presenting a line of popular plays that at once catch the eye of theater-goers. The company will play a return engagemen at Cordray's commencing Monday, Jan-mary 7, presenting the sparkling old English comedy, entitled "That precious Raby," a play said to contain more heart; and genuine laughs than anything of the kind yet produced. The same excellent company will be seen and demonstrate its versatality in the line of comedy.

The temporary home of the Boys' & Girls' Aid Society is situated on Haw-thorne avenue and East Twenty-seventh The institution cannot be regarded as an orphan asylum, but as a depot or clearing bouse, where children who are rescoed from cruel and influmnan parents are kept until suitable homes or employment can be found for them.

BANKER CONFESSES.

The Insurance Swindler Tells of His Fraudulent Scheme.

When Detective Joseph Day, of this city, arrived in Sioux City, Iowa, yes-terday morning, and called at the city jail of that place, Richard R. Banker, who defrauded the A. O. U. W. of this state out of $2000, by pretending to have been drowned, made no further effort to onecal his identity. He confessed all to conceal his identity. He confessed all to Detective Day, fully corroborating the theory of Chief of Police Minto as to the manner in which the plan to defraud the order out of the money was carried out, and Mrs. Banker turned over to the officer a certificate of deposit for $590, the remaining portion of the stolen money which she had in the bank.

On leaving Portland last Saturday night, Detective Day went directly to Des Moines, Iowa, presenting the requisition of Governor Pennoyer for the person of Banker to Governor Jackzon, and as soon as the document was officially indorsed, he went to Sloux City. He left for Portland hast evening with Banker in custody, and will arrive here Monday next.

Chief Minto is greatly elated over the arrest of Banker, and the apparent certainty of his conviction. With but a faint clew to start on, the case was aimirably worked up by the head of the police department and Detectives Welch and Day. The officers of the A. O. U. W. and Day. The officers of the A. NOT MUCH OF A TRIA Louis Himmelar Found Not Guilty of Fishing Near the Gindstone Dam

OREGON CITY, Jan. 2.—In Justice Dixon's court last evening a jury found Louis Himmelar rot guilty of the charge of fishing within 600 feet of the Gladstone dam, as charged in the complaint aworn to by Fish and Game Protector McGuire. Mr. McGuire was not present at the trial. The witnesses for the prosecution testi-fied that there was no proper fishway in the dam, and consequently there could be no conviction on the charge of unlawfully obstructing such passage. The course of the prosecution in this case is regarded as very odd, the justice himself express-Ing the opinion that the trial was very much of a farce.

PIONEER BURNED TO DEATH F. H. Ramsey, Living Alone at the Mouth of the Willamette.

On Wednesday night, Frederick H. Ramsey, one of the ploneer residents of Oregon, living alone near the mouth of the Willamette river, opposite Sauvie's island, came to a frightful end, being burned to death in his own house. No one was near to render assistance.

About 720 o'clock last night neighbors of Ramsey, living on Sauvie's island, discovered the house to be on fire and started to render assistance; but, on account of snow and lee in the river they ount of snow and lee in the river, they were unable to cross the stream to the mainland. Yesterday morning they went to the house, finding the building in ruins; and amid the charred and smoking ruins lay the body of Ramsey. The arms and legs of the old ploneer were burned off, and all that remained was the blackened

It will never be known definitely how the fire originated. Six weeks ago the building caught fire and was saved by the efforts of Sanvie's Island neighbors. At that time Ramsey was under the influence of liquor, and it is surmised that on Wednesday he was intoxicated, and, through some accident, the house caught fire and Ramsey was either asleep or in condition unable to save himself.

Ramsey came to Oregon 4 years ago, rom the state of Pennsylvania, and dur-ng his life he acquired considerable property. He owned about 700 acres of land on the peninsula. He also had money caned out, and was in comfortable circomstances. Ramsey has a brother living at Centralia, Wash., and a niece, Mrs. Charles Oliver, wife of the civil engineer, n this city. He was never married, and it is understood that some time ago he made a will, disposing of his property, and that the document is in the keeping of Judge Shattuck.

Mr. Edward Gilinhan, a farmer living on Sauvie's island, brought the intelligence of Ramsey's tragic death to the city early yesterday morning, and notified Coroner Cornelius of the facts. Yesterday afternoon, the coroner left for the research the basic of scene of the fire to secure the body of Ramsey and bring it to the morgue, where an inquest will be held. Coroner Cornelius returned to the city at 11 o'clock last night, bringing the re-mains of Ramsey with him. While at the burned home of Ramsey, Coroner Cornellus made an investigation of the sur-roundings, and discovered enough to warrant a further investigation. The body of Ramsey was found as described by Mr. Gillahan, and in addition the charred remains of his dog were found lying close to the body. The box in which Ramsey kept his valuable papers was found, but the contents had all been burned, including, it is claimed, $5,000 in notes which he held against different parties. Today Coroner Cornelius will again visit the place, accompanied by Sheriff Scars, when death of Ramsey will be made.
