Opinions in the following cases have been filed in the supreme court: Rust Thornburn and Ellen Thornburn, appellants, vs. C. J. Smith, T. B. Corry, M. C. Sullivan and the Oregon Improvement Company, respondents. The Oregon Improvement Company, operating coal mines in King county, had trouble with their employes, discharged them against their protests and imported a supply of negro workmen. Guns and a few rounds of ammunitioa were deposited in the company's storehouse for the use of the col-ored men, as it was evident from the at-Wednesday night, arrived here today. The passengers tell of fearful storms in the Mount Shasta section. The snow titude of the former employes that resistance would be made to any effort to replace them by negroes. The respondent took a trainload of colored miners from the train had to be shoveled out by hand, before it could be moved. No trouble has franklin to Newcastle, where there was also a strike in progress, and, upon their return to Franklin, a number of shots were exchanged between the former em-ployes and the colored men. It was dur-ing this indiscriminate firing that Mrs. Charphourn was shot while in her own yet been experienced in the Siskiyou Thornburn was shot, while in her own residence; hence the suit against the com-seny and its officers. Smith and Corry, and Detective Sullivan, for damages. But it was proved that at the time of the fracas the colored miners were not engaged in their duties as employes of the company; that they had forcibly taken arms from the company's storehouse, without permission, and had been warne to act only in self-defense. It appears the officers of the company did all in their power to prevent an outbreak, short of ceasing to operate the mines. It is characteristic of the Wren that it will sneak in and occupy the nest made by another bird, in preference to building one of its own. This same trait is often seen in business. It is shown by the imitators of

No sooner has the wonderful merit of this new vegetable shortening, so much better than lard, created for it a remarkable sale and popularity, than the business wrens are ready to move upon the market with many worthless counterfeits. Any housekeeper can be easily and cheaply convinced of the value of COTTOLENE by simply giving it a trial. They will then be unwilling to go back to lard, or go down to fraudulent imitations
