PENALTY FOR CRIME

REV. DR. DENISON THINKS JUSTICE UNEQUALLY ADMINISTERED.

Favors the Whipping Post and Stocks-Lesson Drawn From the Cases of Gaff and Read.

Rev. J. N. Denison, D. D., pastor of the Centenary church, preached to a large congregation last evening, taking for his Object: "The Fenalty for Crime; Dr. Gaff and Rev. Head." He said: "Many times lately in the public prints has the statement been made that the at Home is years ago. This text is the conclusion of a brief upon the subject prepared by a doctor of laws for the Roman forum: The we, through faith, cast aside law? We could not Yea, we cause the law to stand. It is one of the provinces of the Christian religion to cause law to stand, in this lawless world among lawbreakers. The enactment of just laws ig men and their just and equable enforcement is the business of every true man and especially the business of the

We have the best jurisprudence of the world, but it is far from being perfect. In fact, it is exceedingly faulty, and any ident of equity can see numerous grave defects. It is not so easy to see exactly how to remedy all of these evils, and al-though 50 men spend 45 days every second car in an effort to make the matter better, somehow very little real improve-ments results. Our laws, however, are very much better than their enforcement The Lexow committee has uncovered vast corruption in New York police circles. Some men have grown vastly rich by bribe-taking. One policeman has just been convicted and sentenced. He had taken a few apples offered him. He gets three years and six months at servile labor. But the men that took the gold by tens of thousands are yet abroad, with a first-rate prospect of remaining at liberty. We do not regret the sentence of the lesser criminal. He should be punished, but the greater criminal should be pro-portionately punished. Christian ethics and moral right agree upon this point with nal emphasis. It is the true province of law not only to define certain acts as crimes, but to provide for their adequate penalty, for the conviction and punishment of the persons who commit these crimes, Unless this is done there can be no just enforcement of law.

"Punishment should be penal. I do not deny that it should be reformatory, but we have grown altogether too humane in our methods, and too gentle in their administration. A vast number of crimes are now committed by men who simply want to get housed and sheltered and clothed and fed during inclement weather. The interior of a warm jull is quite as cheerful as a cold, fireless lodging-house, and three decent warm meals are better than one cold one. So professional penalty-seekers are common among us. We have abolished almost everything that really tends to make punishment penal. I have no hesitancy at all in advocating the whipping-post and the trendmill and the stocks for certain crimes which are growing common among us. "Adequate penalty is a demand that enunct be ignored. This very week Judge Stephens, in sentencing two professional graduated criminals who had perpetrated alty was entirely inadequate to the crime The two gurroters were given five years each in our comfortable penitentiary-guaranteed clothing and food and shelter get pardoned out and resentenced before

e five years are over.
"Within the past few days two heino within the past few days two bemous crimes have been committed here on the East Side, by professional men of high standing, of churchly pretensions, and of supposed good character. The community justly stands appalled, almost horroratricken. Both crimes are freely confessed and of the guilt of the parties there can be no doubt whatever. One is a crime against property containing a threat against life. The other is a far more cantardly crime-against the home and the cence of girlhood and the sanctity of the marriage tie. These crimes are das-tardly beyond description. The two highcut and hollest professions, where men are most implicitly trusted, are violated, and the faith of mankind shaken in men. Universal condemnation must fall upon these sins in high places. When Rev. Mr. Read entered the bank, in disguise, with a pistoi, he entered the ranks of the lowest and most debused criminals. He may he may not be insune to the point of responsibility. If he is insune to that point, he should be doult with as insane; he should not be dealt with as insane be-came he is a minister. His punishment, if he be a responsible criminal, should be ntensified-not mitigated because of his clerical garb. He knew better. He has broken faith with God and the world. He has plummed at a bound down an abyss which usually takes years to descend, or years, descending by stages with other criminals, while he has professed to live exemplary holy life. For his crime, weter, if he be a responsible criminal,

"When, however, the sacred precincts of the home are invaded by Dr. Gaff, and his professional position and confidence are used to decoy an innocent victimloved and cherished-from a loving and fend parents, he commits a far more dastardly crime, one that for real, accursed diabelism is hard to equal. Ap-parently, the law does not know whether R is a crime or not, and there is a grave doubt whether some nicely paid attorney may not be able to slip the noose fro escape to repeat his accursed warfare against the sanctity of our homes. If it shall prove true that there is no adequate penalty for his sin, the legislature now in icenion should let all other work rest until a law with an adequate penalty is pro-there is full and adequate penalty.

passing any judgment whatever upon the sanity of Rev. Mr. Read, I know abso-lutely nothing of it. I can only judge of his act as it stands—a horrible crime. If he really intended to have shot the young man in the bank in case he had not obeyed, he had murder in his heart, and is, if responsible, a murderer in intent. Dr. Gaff makes no claim to insanity. His critine was worse than murder. Who would not far prefer to stand beside the beer of a girl with untarnished reputation and pure life, stricken by a blow, than to have a girl lured away to become the plaything of such a villain?

The exercises began at 2:30 o'clock with the "Coronation" hymn by the congregation. A Scripture reading by Dr. Grant followed, after which was a prayer by Dr. Brown. After another hymn by the congregation and a selection by the Handel orchestry General Howard in a brief del orchestra, General Howard, in a brief speech, introduced Rev. Dr. Wallace, who delivered the anniversary address. Dr. Wallace first gave some Y. M. C. A. statistics. He said:

"The total membership of the associa-tion in this city in 55; of this number St are active members. The number of different members serving on committees at this date is 77. The average daily attendance at the rooms of the association last year was 280. The number of branches taught in the educational classes. 'In this materialistic age the Young Men's Christian Association is trying to flash ideals before young men. The world flash ideals before young men. The world now conducted, no greater service can be says to the young man: 'Get money; that is power and greatness. If you can't get of existence. COUNTY DISTRICT. is power and greatness. If you can't get it honestly, get it anyhow. The Y. M. C. A. says to young men: Things are not what they seem. The world is moved by something far robler than money. Who moved the world, Socrates or Croesus? O, young man, waste not your lives on materialistic things. The Y. M. C. A. stands to breathe into young men's minds magnificent convictions. Just as ideals have moved the world, convictions have controlled the world. What is a man worth if he has no convictions? Another thing, the Y. M. C. A. is trying to be a saving power in this city. In no other city on the globe are there more mag-nificent opportunities for young men to go to perdition in the quickest possible

At the conclusion of Dr. Wallace's address, the Misses Buddemer rendered a duet, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Prescott. Then followed an eloquent address by General Howard. He said in

"To plead the cause of the Young Men's Christian Association is to plead the cause of Christ. The object of the association is the salvation of young men. Its attention is being turned more and more in the direction of prevention, rather than the cure of evil. O, that it could do more to prevent that loss of purity, loss of honor, loss of noble ideas and methods of thought by the millions of young men-just as they are entering manhood. How many young men are there here who do not recognize the truth of what I say?" Secretary Meyers delivered a brief ad-dress, inviting all young men to make use of the rooms of the association, which, he said, were free to all, every day in the week, from 9 in the morning until 10 at night. The exercises concluded with a hymn by the congregation, and a prayer by Rev. Henry Ra

FACTS AND FIGURES.

Where the Schools Now Receiving State Aid Obtain Their Students.

SALEM, Peb. 16 -(To the Editor.)-From present indications, the house of representatives at Salem has concluded to parcel out state aid to schools at different points, seemingly wherever asked for. There is still hope, however, that the sen-ate will not give way to this clamor for money for certain sections, backed by the faise claim of fostering the educational interests of the whole state. If any one doubts that the schools now supported by general tax have little else than local pat-ronage, let him examine the following tables, compiled from the respective cata-logues of these schools. This will con-vince any fair-minded person that not one of these is more than a local school. If so, the state should no longer expend thousands of dollars annually for their support, while neglecting to provide for hundreds of small country districts which are unable to maintain school more than three months in the year.

Following are statements of the attendance list year at the state university at Eugene, the agricultural college at Cor-vallis, the normal school at Monmouth, the normal school at Weston, and the normal school at Drain, the last-named being just ready for its first dip into the state treasury. Special departments are not in-cluded in this list, such as law, medical, musical, etc. Each table shows whole number of students registered in the school, number from the town in which it is located, number from county in which located, and greatest number from any other one county in the state. Here they

It will thus be seen that 55 per cent of the entire attendance at the state univer-sity last year was from Eugene, while 65 per cent was from Lane county. Multnomah county makes the next best showing, but furnished less than 6 per cent of the whole attendance. One student for every 11 sent by Lane county, notwith-standing the school population of Multino-mah is possible four times that of Lane.

So far as known, the state certificate has not been conferred on any pupil under 12 years of age. Still, there is no occasion for dis-coursgement. We are told that Oregon must have "trained teachers" for her schools, and these normals are regular
