

A DAY FOR PATRIOTS

GENERAL OBSERVANCE OF WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY. A Magnificent Parade, and Exercises at the Plaza, the Army and Other Places.

Patriotism was alive in Portland yesterday. The shades of the immortal George Washington may have hovered over the city in the leaden clouds that concealed the glorious orb of day...

Not in the Procession. Spectators. "General" Washington.

house, and business was practically at a standstill. The city was gay with flags and bunting, and everything pointed to the fact that the American people in the Oregon metropolis were enjoying, in an unusually demonstrative manner, the great national holiday.

While the occasion was threatening, the monster parade, arranged under the direction of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, was the longest and most showy pageant that ever appeared on the streets of Portland, and it was witnessed by crowds that were seemingly endless and innumerable.

Perhaps the most attractive feature of the entire pageant was the schoolboys. Nearly every school in the city sent one or more companies of them, little fellows, ranging in age from 7 to 14 years...

Which baking powder wins at all the great fairs? Dr. Price's, of course. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Dr. Grant dwelt upon the "must" or necessity that rests upon the nation as a burden to preserve these principles. "Real patriotism is the preservation of these principles for those who come after us."

line. General Beebe was not with his command. The national guardsmen, as usual, were the center of attraction. Clad in campaign uniforms, with arms brightly polished, boots polished and every item of their dress and equipment in perfect order...

The second section was headed by Parsons' band, and was made up of the state and subordinate units of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics. About 700 men were in line, each decorated with a showy badge and rosettes in streams of red, white and blue...

There is a body of men rapidly passing away, the Grand Army of the Republic, men who imperiled their lives for the preservation of the Union...

In once more praising our public schools, Judge Caples said: "When General Grant made the tour of the world, he said the best public schools he found in the world were in Portland."

He then told the story of the writing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," during the bombardment of Fort Mifflin, by Francis Scott Key, and said today 1,000,000 voices were raised all over the earth in breath of the country...

Three cheers were proposed and given for the American flag, three cheers for the American women, and three cheers for the state of Oregon, and three cheers for Grand Marshal B. B. Tuttle.

Section forty was made up of the Portland Military band, and was composed of the Winona, Modoc, Willamette, Chinook, Minnehaha and Tye tribes of Red Men.

A huge liberty car, gaily decorated with bunting, drawn by four horses, was a feature of the pageant. Upon it was seated a miniature model of the little red schoolhouse surmounted the float, while a boy of bright-looking boys and girls, wearing a grammar school uniform...

At the rear of this monster float came a number of flag singers, in which were seated members of the School of Music and general members of the board of school directors.

It is estimated that there were more than 500 men and boys in line. It was the longest and most imposing pageant that Portland has ever seen, and it took 30 minutes for it to pass any given point.

Which baking powder wins at all the great fairs? Dr. Price's, of course. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Dr. Grant dwelt upon the "must" or necessity that rests upon the nation as a burden to preserve these principles. "Real patriotism is the preservation of these principles for those who come after us."

Which baking powder wins at all the great fairs? Dr. Price's, of course. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Dr. Grant dwelt upon the "must" or necessity that rests upon the nation as a burden to preserve these principles. "Real patriotism is the preservation of these principles for those who come after us."

the necessity," was next considered. "We are ready to preserve the Union," he said. "This defense is as of the defending of a home. The same right of defending my home applies to my country. I have a right to defend it up to my house to abide. So have we the right to say to the country, Preserve from encroachments from without and from degradation from within, the rights of the people, individually that do not involve the rights of the whole."

"My fellow-citizens: I have lived in the state of Oregon for 30 years, and I have seen many proud days; but I have never seen a prouder day than this. We meet this afternoon for the purpose of celebrating the birthday of a man whose memory is as green as yesterday. We may define patriotism as love of country. I greet you as fellow-citizens and as Americans, and I don't care what land you were born in, if you love the land that you live in, if you love the institutions that you live in, if you love one of its countrymen, and I greet you as an American."

"I want the people of Portland and Oregon to be proud of their home. We are proud of our public schools. Who could look at that array of school children without realizing that the generations who are coming to take our place are being educated to support the American flag? The public schools are the bulwark of American liberty. I am proud of the people who marched today in the procession. I am glad that the young people of Multnomah county have placed your children today at the altar of liberty. We have the grandest land in the world, and the best government that the world has ever known by such men as Washington. Hence, the time the American flag first soared, since the time our forefathers first raised the banner of liberty, no country has progressed so rapidly as this one."

"There is a body of men rapidly passing away, the Grand Army of the Republic, men who imperiled their lives for the preservation of the Union. I am glad that the young people of Multnomah county have placed your children today at the altar of liberty. We have the grandest land in the world, and the best government that the world has ever known by such men as Washington. Hence, the time the American flag first soared, since the time our forefathers first raised the banner of liberty, no country has progressed so rapidly as this one."

"We also ask the co-operation of any and all good citizens in behalf of our noble order, and we are always ready to open our arms to any patriotic citizen, hoping thereby to elevate their own moral manhood and also add to our country and our more worthy citizens."

"It is unnecessary for me to further expound upon the noble and worthy principles of our order. The proof will be our future conduct and behavior towards our country and our fellow-citizens. We are capable of living thoroughly up to these principles, we unhesitatingly affirm them to you."

"God speed the day when the humblest laborer and toiler on the farm or in the factory, the student in the school and the man in the office, shall be able to say: 'This is my country, my government and my flag, and under its waving folds and starry bosom, I am proud to receive the same blessing that is bestowed upon the people of the world. Let us look into the sacred history that tells of the sad downfall, and of the decay of other and older nations than this one, and let us realize that the people of the world are not the lack of the generous product of the soil that brought destruction and dissolution to those countries. But the same which will befall this country, if it should be able to do so, is the lack of true patriotism, and that alone.'"

"Portland's industrious and never-tiring school boys, and you who sell the papers and stand at the counter, and you who are president of the United States. Why not? You are as free to aspire to it as the unborn deer that rambles over the ever-green mountains of this beautiful Oregon. Grant and fill the land with your nature's crystal springs, and who baffles the ingenuity of the hunter and his bounds. You all have this privilege, a like chance to become a Washington, a Lincoln, a Grant and fill the land with your nature's crystal springs, and who baffles the ingenuity of the hunter and his bounds. You all have this privilege, a like chance to become a Washington, a Lincoln, a Grant and fill the land with your nature's crystal springs, and who baffles the ingenuity of the hunter and his bounds."

"There are many things that at this time might be said which would be appropriate, but time will not admit. However, I trust that the people of the American continent, its wealth, intellectual and inventive powers, if based on true patriotism, from the highest official to the lowliest citizen, will be able to do it. We will be through the teacher of the foreign-born. Let the obligation between the government and its people be clearly defined, patriotic and true, upholding the voice of the people with a George Washington or Abraham Lincoln for president, and we will be happy and serene."

"Let us not forget to teach the children. While their valor still lives in the hearts of true Americans, will not in all human probability there be reproduced from noble and true American blood a plus man, an ever-cherished free-school system, other equal heroes when necessity calls for them?"

"I am, gentlemen, look up! Lo, our banner, the bird of liberty, is seen through the air. Beneath her approaches, tyranny's dying, 'Success' the land of the brave and the fair."

NOTES OF THE CELEBRATION. How a Baby Buggy Stopped the Procession. The police made a particularly good showing in the parade. They were in three platoons, and were well equipped. The men kept in perfect step. They had evidently been thoroughly trained.

The school children marched like veterans, and were well equipped. The men kept in perfect step. They had evidently been thoroughly trained.

Francis Clarno delivered an address on "Principles and Objects of Our Order." His remarks were brief and were frequently interrupted by applause. "It seems my good fortune to be permitted, to be honored with the privilege of explaining to you the objects of our order. I will now say that they are many and worthy."

"I am, gentlemen, look up! Lo, our banner, the bird of liberty, is seen through the air. Beneath her approaches, tyranny's dying, 'Success' the land of the brave and the fair."

Principle, not men, is its creed; further, it is strictly non-partisan and non-sectarian. Its objects are to maintain the interests of Americans and shield them from the encroachments of foreign competition; to assist Americans in obtaining employment; to encourage Americans in business; to establish sick and funeral funds; to maintain the public-school system of the United States of America, and to prevent sectarian interference therewith, and uphold the reading of the Holy Bible therein.

The qualification for membership requires that applicant shall be a white male person born under the protection of the American flag; a believer in the existence of a Supreme Being as the author and preserver of the universe, opposed to the union of church and state; favorable to free education and the American public-school system.

"We believe in compulsory education in the free public schools of our fair country, of every child born within its borders, and that every child should be a patriotic citizen, true to themselves, true to the flag of our country that supports them. We declare that the stars and stripes shall perpetually wave o'er the land, and that their country shall live by it, and at their country's call, if it need be, to die for it, and that there is no greater honor than a soldier's grave."

A large and appreciative audience gathered at the hall, and the singing of the hymn, 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' followed. The well-known local singers, under the direction of Miss Frances F. Jones, organized the opening number was an organ solo, 'American Patriot,' executed by Miss Jones, in excellent style and spirit.

Old Folks' Concert at the Y. M. C. A. Notwithstanding the stormy night, the many other engagements going on, gymnasium hall, Y. M. C. A. was filled to its utmost last night, every available space being occupied and standing-room being at a premium.

TEACHERS ARE ALL RIGHT Superintendent Pratt Says Portland Has Many Good Educators. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Williams at the meeting of the board of school directors Thursday evening, in respect to the city Superintendent Pratt concerning the standing and efficiency of teachers employed in the public schools, caused considerable comment yesterday.

As firm as the eternal hills—the well-earned fame of Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

TEACHERS ARE ALL RIGHT Superintendent Pratt Says Portland Has Many Good Educators. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Williams at the meeting of the board of school directors Thursday evening, in respect to the city Superintendent Pratt concerning the standing and efficiency of teachers employed in the public schools, caused considerable comment yesterday.

As firm as the eternal hills—the well-earned fame of Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

TEACHERS ARE ALL RIGHT Superintendent Pratt Says Portland Has Many Good Educators. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Williams at the meeting of the board of school directors Thursday evening, in respect to the city Superintendent Pratt concerning the standing and efficiency of teachers employed in the public schools, caused considerable comment yesterday.

As firm as the eternal hills—the well-earned fame of Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

TEACHERS ARE ALL RIGHT Superintendent Pratt Says Portland Has Many Good Educators. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Williams at the meeting of the board of school directors Thursday evening, in respect to the city Superintendent Pratt concerning the standing and efficiency of teachers employed in the public schools, caused considerable comment yesterday.

As firm as the eternal hills—the well-earned fame of Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

TEACHERS ARE ALL RIGHT Superintendent Pratt Says Portland Has Many Good Educators. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Williams at the meeting of the board of school directors Thursday evening, in respect to the city Superintendent Pratt concerning the standing and efficiency of teachers employed in the public schools, caused considerable comment yesterday.

As firm as the eternal hills—the well-earned fame of Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

TEACHERS ARE ALL RIGHT Superintendent Pratt Says Portland Has Many Good Educators. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Williams at the meeting of the board of school directors Thursday evening, in respect to the city Superintendent Pratt concerning the standing and efficiency of teachers employed in the public schools, caused considerable comment yesterday.

knives for the procession. In this narrow passage a woman with a baby buggy had taken her station. The line managed to wriggle through without injuring the baby or the woman, but the baby, along with the commander, fearing that his nurse could not pass, called a halt and called for the removal of the baby carriage. It was hustled out of the way and the guns went on.

There was a considerable number of boys in the procession, mounted on horses. After the parade was over, a gang of them was going down Third street, when one of them, on a clipped mouse-colored pony, nearly ran into a woman who was going to work as a janitor, and his assailant was Gen Yinn, also a Chinese.

Shuey was walking peacefully along, carrying some meat and fish, which he had just purchased in a neighboring shop, when Gen Yinn emerged from a hallway close at hand and plunged a long knife into his back. The victim screamed and ran a few feet, when he fell just in time to be caught in the arms of two policemen who were attracted to the scene by the commotion which ensued among the Chinese spectators, as the result of the attempted murder.

The wounded man was conveyed to the police station, where a superficial examination was made by Dr. G. M. Wells. It was found that the knife had entered the back over the flank of the root of the left kidney, and the kidney was thought to be punctured. The Chinese friends of Shuey removed him to the Hop Sing Tong hospital, opposite the police station. The man could not lie down, but rested on his knees on the floor with his head against a bed. Dr. Wells explained to the head man of the Chinese hospital that, unless Shuey was removed to another hospital, he would surely die, and on this persuasion they finally consented to his removal to the Good Samaritan hospital.

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

KNIFE IN THE BACK

QUARREL BETWEEN CHINESE RESULTS IN A STABBING AFFRAY. John Shuey, a Janitor, Attacked in Broad Daylight by Gen Yinn—Wound May Prove Fatal.

What may prove to be a fatal stabbing affray, occurred yesterday morning on Alder street, between Second and Third. The victim of the murderous assault was John Shuey, a Chinese, who works as a janitor, and his assailant was Gen Yinn, also a Chinese.

Shuey was walking peacefully along, carrying some meat and fish, which he had just purchased in a neighboring shop, when Gen Yinn emerged from a hallway close at hand and plunged a long knife into his back. The victim screamed and ran a few feet, when he fell just in time to be caught in the arms of two policemen who were attracted to the scene by the commotion which ensued among the Chinese spectators, as the result of the attempted murder.

The wounded man was conveyed to the police station, where a superficial examination was made by Dr. G. M. Wells. It was found that the knife had entered the back over the flank of the root of the left kidney, and the kidney was thought to be punctured. The Chinese friends of Shuey removed him to the Hop Sing Tong hospital, opposite the police station. The man could not lie down, but rested on his knees on the floor with his head against a bed. Dr. Wells explained to the head man of the Chinese hospital that, unless Shuey was removed to another hospital, he would surely die, and on this persuasion they finally consented to his removal to the Good Samaritan hospital.

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'" engers: Miss Duckworth, Miss Peterson, Miss L. Farnsworth, Frank Farnsworth, Mrs. Smith, H. J. Thwaites, Miss Chalmer, Harry, Harris, O. C. Baskin, Frank Woolsey, D. D. Oliphant, H. M. Lydgate, Miss J. Larsson, Miss L. Ayer, Miss E. K. Van Buren and wife, A. Williamson, Miss R. G. Gilchrist, George Jones, A. Gregg and wife, Mrs. A. J. Garrett and mother, J. P. O'Brien, Miss Everson, G. H. Campbell and 35 in the steerage.

Gen Yinn, after the stabbing, re-entered the hallway from which he had sprung to commit the assault, and, ruminating upstairs, concealed himself under a bed in one of the rooms of the building. Here he was discovered a few minutes later by Police Captain James E. Brennan, DeLoach and Connell, who soon made a prisoner of him. At the city hall, Gen Yinn said: "I stopped Shuey to collect $1.50 from him for China tax, which he sold me for New Year's, and said, 'Why do you not pay me money?' Shuey said, 'I don't care about it; I will pay you when I get ready, perhaps never.' Shuey drew a big knife and I caught him by the wrist, which he did not being beaten here for wearing orange ribbons, and he walked off humming something about 'the 12th of July in the morning.'"

ONE MORE PETITION. Receiver McNeill Asked to Make Other Accounts. The O. R. & N. Co. has filed a petition in the United States circuit court asking for an order requiring Receiver McNeill to file supplementary reports. There are four separate railway companies included in the O. R. & N. system, which have small lines operating partly in Oregon and partly in Washington, with which it is necessary to exchange business in order to reach the coast. The companies are the Walla Walla & Columbia River Railroad Company, the Columbia & Palouse Railroad Company, the Oregon Railway Extensions Company, and the railroad of the Washington & Idaho. The petition asks for McNeill's accounts for the months of July, August, September and October, 1904, to be filed, but it is urged by the O. R. & N. Co. that by an order of the court previously made Receiver McNeill is required to keep separate accounts as to the Washington & Idaho and Oregon Railway Extensions Company's business, and the accounts as to the business of the company have been as to these companies, nor are there separate accounts for the traffic thereover, revenue received, or expenditures made. The O. R. & N. Co. therefore petitions that Receiver McNeill be required to respond to the previous order of the court, and furnish separate accounts for those companies, and in this connection to report the volume of traffic interchanged between them and the O. R. & N. Co., and the divisions which have been made thereas between the O. R. & N. and the Washington & Idaho and the Extensions Company, and the divisions which all of them received for through business, originated or destined to points East, either by way of Spokane or Hamilton Or. The petition asks for specific accounting of the amount of business handled over the O. R. & N. and received or delivered at Spokane, with the amount of revenues derived from same and the divisions made between the O. R. & N. and the Washington & Idaho and other lines; also of the amount of traffic interchanged with the Oregon Extensions Company's lines and the revenues and expenses also of the amount of revenue derived from local traffic on the O. R. & N. lines, and the amount of revenue derived from traffic passing between the O. R. & N. and Washington, Idaho and Oregon Extensions Company and other companies; also of the amount of traffic and divisions as between the O. R. & N. and its connecting lines at Hamilton. The petition says that in pending a hearing on the petition, L. L. McArthur, master in chancery in the O. R. & N. receivership case, be directed not to pass upon or report the accounts of the receiver for approval or disapproval.