which is also applicable to the country and Humboldt, Amelia, Malheur and Valley. All this is really a recent eddition to the mining map of Eastern Oregon, having once been prospected and abandoned because of insufficient knowl-edge and development. Only within the last 12 months have people been willing to invest capital and labor enough to make a showing. There are a few mills in this section that are doing well. Durkee (et Express) is the nearest railroad station accessible to this district.

Northeast from Baker are the Sparts Carson and Cornucopia districts, the lat-ter of which attracted much attention the last season. Through the Sumpter Valley railroad, Baker has direct connection with the Sumpter district, and by stage from there with the Granite district and Grant county.

In the Baker district there are also rich copper mines. Wallowa county will be heard from in a substantial way along Imnaha river, where it is believed the Seven Devils copper mines will be surpassed. The gold belt is also being extended up into Wallowa county. Copher is also found near Union on North Powder, in this district.

The principal points to be reached by stage from Baker are: Helena or Seven Devils, 100 miles; Cuprum, 80 miles; Cor-nucopia, 70; Fairview, 80; Cambridge, 78; Carson, 80; Half-Way, 57; Pine, 55; Richland 45; Newbridge, 48; Sparta, 23; Keat-lang, 26; Baisley-Elkhorn, 16; Erwin, 15; Auburn, 12; Nelson's Place, 8. Good wagon roads lead-from Baker in all di-rections, giving easy access to points where stages do not run.

Revelations of rich ore bodies have come with such rapidity and certainty that people need a little time to get their breath and prepare for the great rush that will come in the spring. From the source of the Owyhee to the north line of Oregon, Baker district will be alive next summer, and many a man who has faced the rigors of Alaska will have less to show for his effort and suffering than those who are satisfied to look nearer home for gold. Sumpter Mining District.

That part of this district around Sumpter, Granite and Bourne needs no further mention. New developments are taking place in this district, which the prospector should not overlook. Susanville is a prom-Ising ground for next season in both placer and quartz. Around Prairie City, Canyon City and John Day are some rich finds. Farther south, in Harney county, near Harney and Burns, are good veins of gold, copper and lead. This part of the district has received but little attention, and the outlook for the future is bright. The last of the three districts into which we have divided the Eastern Oregon gold fields for convenience is the newest and least known, and is, for the first time, classed in the mineral belt. It is called the Antelope district, because the town he that name is in, perhaps, the richest part of the territory. Rich quartz and placer gold is known to exist near Antelope and Lookout mountain. The Ochoco river has good placer beds. There is also copper to considerable extent. This is comparatively new ground, and will bear investigation. Unless all signs fall, and the western mining world misses its guess, the output of gold in these three districts, all one in reality, will be so stupendous in the next few years that the world will marvel that civilization should so long gravitate round this inland treasure vault without finding the combination JOHN J. MILLER.

The plant of the company is complete in the minutest detail, for sampling and testing ores of all kinds, and for making mill tests of free gold ores in any quantity from one pound to five tons. It has ial facilities for melting and refining gold and retorting amalgams. The machines in use for these tests, are all of the latset and most modern type, and are operated by electric power. There are three furnaces for melting and smelting purposes, the best of their kind. With a crusher having a capacity of one mill stamp, and propelled by electric power, the company can make a complete test of a large body of ore in a comparatively short space of time; whereas, under the old way, with machines propelled by hand, only a small portion of the ore is tested, and results obtained are much less certain and satisfactory. The grinder, also proselled by electricity, and through which crusher, practically pulverizes the rock and makes it finally ready for melting. As an illustration of the power of these mod ern machines and their advantages over the old methods, a few days ago a sack of 100 pounds of ore was put through the crusher in 10 minutes, and shortly after-ward was transformed into a powder of about the consistency of the finest flour. the old process of crushing by hand, it would have required many hours to accomplish the work of 10 minutes' operation of these machines. In connection with these modern appliances there is a complete assaying out-fit under the most skillful management. All assays are made in duplicate, and the work is guaranteed, and if the results obtained by them are not practically the same as those reached by assayers, all money will be refunded by the company. The company has a complete set of assayers' balances, made expressly for their use.

The company allows mint rates for gold dust and retorts (less express charges) for amounts, or will attend to settlements with mints or banks. Their prices are reasonable, and the management cheerfully volunteers to furnish them with any other information desired by the min-

Mr. S. Chase is president of the new company, with Mr. J. T. Gove as man-ager. Mr. Chase was formerly connected with the Omaha smelting works and refinery for a number of years, and has me well known in this section of the country from connection with various smelting enterprises.

Mr. Gove has had over 30 years' experience as an assayer, and was for many years connected with the Salt Lake ing works. Latterly he was in the mining business in Montana, and was manager for the Utah assaying office in Helena for a number of years.

THE EVENING STAR GROUP

NOW CLASSED AMONG THE BEST PROSPECTS OF SUMPTER.

A Description of the Rich Veins Already Exposed-A Wonderful Camp.

The element of permanency is a factor in the forecast made by experts regarding the value of a mining district that demands the most serious recognition from careful investors in rich mining properties. There can no be permanent results obtained from any mine where the ledges or ore-carrying bodies are not wide, well defined and worked with a reasonable expenditure of labor and capital. A gold mine located in a district far remote from the established lines of travel, unless remarkably rich, offers obstacles to economic working that in itself deters experienced mining men from making any attempt to handle the properety. A district where the ledges open into "pockets" and then as suddenly "pinch out" into a vetn so narwhich it confidently expects to place within the next month among the friends of the mine, near Baker City, has already pro-duced millions in gold, and it has been the means of building up several princely fortunes for its successive owners. The Baisley-Eikhorn and other properties of a similar character in this same district, are today among the great produc-ing gold mines of the coast. The gold-bearing veins of the Eastern Oregon mines are all wide; they are well defined, and what is their most remarkable feature, is that, without exception, they show an increase of richness as depth is attained. These mines are today classed by mining men as among the richest producing gold properties of the West, and their future and for the entire state in which they are fortunately located.

The richest of all the camps in Eastern Oregon today are the mines of the Sump-ter district. Sumpter is connected direct with Baker City on the transcontinental line of the O. R. & N. and Union Pacific systems, by one of the best-built railroads in Oregon. The district is well watered, mits outdoor work to be prosecuted by the miners throughout the year. It is as rich as the Klondike, it is as accessible as is Portland itself, and it has the history of uninterrupted successes in the development of mines that gave promise from the first prospect of being large and steady

Of all the rich prospects in the Sumpter district, the mine now being opened by the Evening Star Mining Company gives promise of the richest returns to its own-ers. This company owns six claims—the

Wheeler, the Evening Star, the La Grande, the Butler, the Gold Bar and the Lady Elgin. These mines are situated on the four miles distant from the town of Sumpter. This group of mines lies in the same belt or zone as the rich producers, the North Pole, Columbia, Ibex, Bunker Hill,

Regarding the properties of the Evening Star Mining Company, the Evening Star mine is worthy of first mention. It is on this mine that the greatest development work has been done. It has two veins, the north vein being opened by a crosscut from the north wall, a distance of 18 feet, at a depth of 12 feet, all in quarts. The ore in this mine is identical with that of the rich Ibex mine. The free gold it car-ries can plainly be seen by the naked eye.

The south wall is quartite, and where the crosscut is made it shows a vein 69 feet between walls. The croppings of this vein are easily followed for over 1100 feet, and again it shows the same croppings on the Gold Bar which can be readily traced throughout that claim. The Wheeler has a vein, 42 feet between walls, and is opened by a 14-foot cut at a depth of 12 feet along the south wall. This vein shows ing mines of this district, gold-producing properties have been opened that can be sold today for fabulous fortunes in any financial center of the country.

The management of the country.

The management of the company is in the hands of experienced and conservative mining men. No salaries are paid except to the secretary, who is paid simply for the ciercal work he is called upon to do. Mr. Charles Harper, the company's superintendent, is a mining man of wide experience. He was one of the original stockholders of the company, with whom he pooled his stock, simply to prevent its being put on the market to prevent its being put on the market and peddled around, in possible competi-tion with the treasury stock which alone is sold for development work on these properties. The Evening Star Mining Company is capitalized for $150,000. There are 1,500,000 shares of a par value of 10 cents each. Stock is fully paid up, and nonassessable. It is the prediction of experienced mining men that the shares of this company of a par value of 10 cents today will, when these properties are fully developed, be worth at least $1 each.

The company has placed a limited amount of treasury stock on the market,

THE HAND OF NATURE ILLUSTRATING PORTLAND'S POSITION IN THE NORTHWEST

stock has already been subscribed for among the business men of Baker City and Sumpter who are most conversan with the history of the camp in which the company's group of mines is located.

The mines of the Evening Star Mining Company will probably a year hence be classed among the steady producers of the Sumpter district, and from the results of the development work already done, one may be warranted in the assumption that they will prove fully as rich as any of the great mines of Eastern Oregon that are now yielding thousands of dollars annually

THE OSBORN HOTEL.

among the Most Popular and Suc cessful in the City.

A hotel which enjoys an exceptionally excellent reputation is the Osborn, owned and conducted by Mr. J. H. Baylor, 25 Grand avenue, East Side. The house is a handsome structure, situated in the business district, and on the line of the principal street railways of the city. It has 42 handsomely furnished, well-lighted and well-warmed rooms, and the table fare is of uniform excellence, the cuising and service being all that could be desired so that the fame of the hotel as a nrse class provider has extended far and wide

It is an especial favorite with people desir-ing a quiet, first-class home, to whom the proprietor offers the inducements of special rates. Commercial travelers, too, who are proverbially excellent judges of what constitutes a good hotel, show their appreciation of the Osborn by patronizing the house generously. The drummer who visits all parts of this country gives our city the credit of being a good hotel town as well as a good place to do business.

Globetrotters who have tested the hos-pitality of the leading hotels of Europe and America from the Bosphorus to the Golden Gate credit our hostelries with be ing as good as found anywhere. Good hotels are a valuable possession to any city, us they are largely regarded as indices to the quality of the place they represent, and in this connection the Osborn is en-titled to a prominent place. The excellence of the cuisine and service at the Osborn is well known to the public, the table being supplied with the choicest of viands, well cooked and properly served by an ample force of help, who look after the comfort of every individual guest

Mr. Baylor is an affable, courteous and able hotel man, and under his superior management the Osborn hotel has already assumed a prominent place among those that provide the comforts of a home life

Past Thirty Years..

The fine building owned and occupied by G. P. Rummelin & Sons, the pioneer furriers in Oregon, is shown in the art supplement of this edition of The Ore-gonian. This firm has been in active business in Portland during the past 30 years, and the founder of the house, Mr. G. P. Rummelin, still continues to direct the policy pursued by this prosperous con-cern. The stock of furs carried by Rum-melin & Sons is enormous, and will contrast favorably with the best lines carried in New York and other large cities. The trade enjoyed by this house extends to all points in the Northwest and very frequently Eastern tourists leave orders for valuable fur garments. It is needless to state that the Rummelins are experts in this line, and that the best furs only find place in the rich and magnificent stock carried. Rumelin & Sons are lo-

MARKELL'S STORE.

The Leading Dry Goods House on the Enut Side. Among the business houses of premier rank on the East Side, a prominent plis held by the dry goods house of W. Markeil, which stands foremost among the retail establishments of the North-west. When this gentleman engaged in business nine years ago his stock in trade did not exceed the value of $1500, while today a very conservative estimato would place the figure much in excess of 220,000. Everything to be found in a well-appointed store of this character is carried in stock, consisting of dry goods, noried in stoca, consening of any goods, no-tions, silks, saths, woolens, fine linen, cetton goods, hosiery, drapery, gents' furnishing goods, ladles', children's and men's shoes, etc. During the Goveland administration, when Oregon underwent such a severe financial strain, several of Mr. Markell's competitors were forced to the wall, being compelled to abandon the dry goods business and engage in other pursuits, but Markell withstood the pinch, without the slightest injury to his business, and since then has found it neces-sary to move three times in order to secure more commedious quarters.
