Depend on Surface.

Judd Geer, member of the Oregon board agriguiture, gave the Coye Ledger the awing concerning his investigations of I conditions in the valleys of the Snake or and its tributaries:

"Agreeable with numerous requests to ill the Eastern Gregon fruit section, we do the journey and extended our invesnations into the Snake river region, both sticks into the Snake river region, both gon and Idaho sides. The primary son for going as far as the Boise val-was to look into the economic aspect horiculture under entirely different I and climatic conditions from those valling in the Williamette valley,

"The Snake river region, extending from ntington to Mountain Home, a distance some 350 miles, belongs to the arid ion, with a light soil, and heretofore a considered worthless, but under irri-lon it has blossomed out most wonderly. Some 17,000 acres have been planted fruit of various kinds, and up to now a trees have made good growth and pro-

we have found that in this entire ren the top soil is underlaid with a strata. hardpan, impervious to water or roots. his top soil varies from six inches to intfeet in depth, and the thi kniss of tha min or hardpan is from three to fifteen thes. Underneath this hardpan is a avelly loam, rich in plant food, but t available at present on account of a hardpan. Had the orchardists of hat region examined into the soil condians and adopted the advice given by this rd for years past, by dynamiting the II, thus shattering the hardpan and al-ring roots and water to go down, they lid not be confronted with the problem hey are. The trees planted on this light, mallow top soil have about used up all he available plant food, and in conse-mence stopped growing, and soon will muse to bear fruit, the roots have spread ut on the surface, and are therefore liable injury from freezing, and the trees me loose and easily thrown over by e strong winds. The only remedy now to hore a hole into the hardpan, be-sen the rows of trees, and dynamite which will materally assist the feed-g routs to go down, and prolong the of these trees. However, all this ould have been done prior to planting. "We are also of the opinion that if the of is properly dynamited irrigation will a more perfect, is the water will go own easier and in consequence will rethe less irrigation and more cultiva-n, and moisture will be brought up om below by capillary attraction. That his theory is correct is evidenced by he fact that wherever it has been tried has proven successful. J. S. D. Mannie, of Bolse, dynamited his soil with od effect. David Dunbar, near Vale, Malheur county, planted an orchard, that Id not do well; the trees grew slowiy and were continually blown over. After re years experimenting, his hired man, he had read our reports, suggested dy-uniting, which they did, and planted an chard alongside the old ones; it is rong and healthy, and bears abundant ups of fruit. In view of such conclusive inject lessons, it seems to us that intel-igent, progressive horticulturists would t he slow in adopting the method sug-
