CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

MARQUAM GRAND-Frederick Wards, "Romeo CORDRAY'S THEATER (Washington street)-

GROCERS PAID LEQUOR LICENSE.-There GROCERS PAID LEQUOR LICENSE.—There was a general rush to pay city licenses yesterday, and the list was very nearly paid in full, only a few expressmen and other payers of small licenses falling to come to time. Much to the surprise of the license officer, every groceryman who had a license to sell iliquors last quarter appeared and took out a license for this quarter, paying $100 therefor. This settles the question of the grocers contesting the law for the present; but no one expected the question of the grocers contesting the law for the present; but no one expected that all the grocers would take out license. The reason was explained by one of the Chinese grocers, who stated that all of them had a stock of liquors on hand, which they could not legally dispose of unless they had a license. Probably most of them will drop off the list next quarter. It had not been expected that more than two or three restaurant men would than two or three restaurant men would take out license, but seven of them put up $100 each. Some of them said their business had been greatly increased by taking out a liquor license. Several members on the council expressed themselves as in favor of the flat $600 license ordinance introduced by Cameron yesterday, and if the wholesalers favor it, it will probably pass.

WILL TRY CIVIL ACTION.—Dr. L. C. Taylor, of this city, who prosecuted M. P. Blasen in the municipal court for violating ordinance No. II, III. is by no means satisfied with Judgs Hennessy's dismissal of the case, and says he will begin an action in the direction. action in the circuit court. On Christmas evening, about 7:30, the doctor says, he was going slong Fourth street, near the corner of Washington, when he stumbled into an open cellarway, opposite Biasen's saloon. As a result of injuries received on saloon. As a result of injuries received on the occasion, the lower part of his body has been paralyzed, and he feels sure per-manent injuries were sustained. He has not yet decided on the amount to be sued for, but vehemently asserts that he will proceed against the owner of the property, Eugene Hoch.

DESERVED APPOINTMENT.-It will be of interest to all friends of seamen to know that W. S. Fletcher has just been appointthe American Seamen's Friend So ed by the American Seamen's Friend So-cisty, of New York, as their missionary in Portland. He will co-operate with the Portland society, and work in harmony with it. He will visit the ships in port, distribute reading matter, attend the sick and continue the good work he has been doing for so many years. It is permitted to but very few men to render such servlce to their fellows as Mr. Fletcher has rendered in this port for the past Z years. The New York society is to be congratuon having such a capable and devoted representative in this port.

DEATH OF A PIONEER WOMAN.—Mrs.
Margaret L. Price died yesterday at her home in this city, 289 Seventh street, aged S years. With her husband, the late John B. Price, she crossed the plains in 1846, and settled at Oregon City, moving across the Williamette to Linn county in 1851. In 1861. Mrs. Price removed to Portland, and has lived here ever since. Her two cons, James H. and Charles, came from Olympia and Tacoma to be at her bedside at the last. Funeral services will be held at the late residence of the decessed at 10 A. M. Friday. Interment will be in the famlly plot at Oregon City.

TRYING TO GET ON THE LEST .- The coun-TRYING TO GET OR THE LEST.—The county commissioners are engaged in making up the jury list for the year. There is a statute making it a misdemeanor for a man to ask to be placed on the jury list, but nevertheless the commissioners have been daily importaned by a number of people for this purpose. The commissioners are becoming tired of it, and threaten to make a example of somebody. These persons an example of somebody. These persons also bother the county clerk, clerk of the circuit court and sheriff about the matter, thinking those officials have a hand in drawing the jury list. The list contains 500 names. The juries throughout the year are drawn from the 500.

bers' union has declared war on all nonunion shops. This was formally decided upon at a business meeting of the union Tuesday evening. Last night a secret eting of the board of officers was held, at which the methods of proceeding were but none of them decide upon. It was determined not to do any-thing for quite a while yet, in order to give all the shops an opportunity to join the union. Very few have flatly refused to join, but have simply put the matter off, by negligence. Several new shops are tted every meeting.

POPPIES IN WINTER.—W. H. White, who is in charge of reservoir No. 1, at Mount Tahor, brought to The Oregonian office last evening an Oriental poppy in full bloom. It was grown outdoors at the reservoir, and looks as well and hearty as though this were midsummer, instead of midwinter. This poppy bloomed four times last year, and once already this year, and during the day opens to its full width of six inches. There are violets and other flowers also in bloom in Mr. White's garden at present, all of them attesting to the mildness of the climate.

DENTAL CLUB.—The annual election of officers for the Portland Stomological Club was held at a recent meeting. Dr. John Welch takes the chair of president, Dr. George Marshall vice-president, Dr. W. B. Knapp was re-elected secretary, Dr. F. R. Ferris treasurer, and Dr. C. E. Stolte is the new member of the executive committee. At the meeting a paper was read by At the meeting a paper was read by Dr. Miller on "Implantation of Teeth," that was listened to with interest. A resolution was passed to hold the annual banquet of the club at the next monthly meeting, which will be February &

BOOK OF WESTERN STORMS.-J. W. Hayes, the telegraph manager, who lost his eyesight here a few years ago, has typewritten an interesting book contain-ing telegraph tales and breezy Western stories, many of them being narratives of the author's ups and downs. The book will be issued March 1, and will sell for El. Orders for it may be sent to Mr. Hayes at Mount Tabor, or to the Telegraph Age, 253 Broadway, New York.

MADE IN PORTLAND,-A Portland saddlery firm has just filled an order from the United States quartermaster's department for 400 headstall halters. They will be used on the cavalry horses now being accumulated at Vancouver barracks, which will be shipped to Manila on the big steamer Lennox, which will arrive in Portland about January 26.

VEREIN EINTRACHT .- At the annual election of the Verein Eintracht, the following officers were chosen: President, John Wagner; vice-president, F. Windeler; treasurer, Cr Emig; secretary, George Harold; financial secretary, U. Zeitfuchs; trustee for three years, John Matthlesen; trustee for two years, A. Prasil; librarian

Baptist Revival.—The revival meetings at the First Baptist church have been encouraging to the workers. Tonight Professor Dobbins and wife will present the "Gospel in Song and Picture," under the "Gospel in Song and Picture," under the title of "A Ship Without a Pilot." A wel-

NOT AN EASY TASK

Timber Cruising a Very Trying Occupation in Winter.

Isaac Stevens, a well-known timber cruiser, who has recently returned from a trip through the woods between the Slietz and the ocean, thinks the task of cruising in Oregon woods at this time of year is a very unpleasant one, as the sungets very little show to dry out the underbrush, and the cruiser is therefore wet through from morning till night. He is even denied the privilege of a dry place to sleep, and quite often finds it impossible to make a fire, as dampness pervades everything. Cruising, therefore, soon tells on a man, Mr. Stevens thinks, and only recent arrivals from the East will follow up the business for any length and only recent arrivals from the will follow up the business for any length of time at this sesson of the year. When a cruiser starts out to make esti-mates on the probable amount of timour contained in a series of tracts, he usually takes an assistant with him, to pack a tent and a few days' provisions. No pack-horse can be utilized, as the underbrush is too thick for that, so the men have to do their own packing. Armed livih a com-pass and hatchet, the cruiser follows sextion lines as closely as he can, blazing trees as he advances, in order to mark the region he has traversed. When a government stake is reached the course is turned at right angles, and each quarter is examined as to the amount of timber avail-able. The information so obtained is jotted down for the benefit of the intending purchaser, who thus invests his money entirely on the judgment of the cruiser. To examine carefully each acre in a given tract is, therefore, a matter of necessity, and is usually a slow and painful pro cess. At night, the couple put up their little A tent, and arrange their bedding for a rest, on the soft, moss-grown ground. If they are successful in finding dry wood to make a fire, they are enabled to warm things over for supper; if not, they eat a cold lunch and settle down in their damp and sodden surroundings for the night.

night. Mr. Stevens thinks the timber lands of Creson are now practically taken There are vacant quarters here and there in all the coast counties and along the western slopes of the Cascades, but these were mostly entered some 10 years ago, when a rush was made for timber lands, for speculative purposes. Quite a number of homestead entries were made at that time, but many of these have since lapsed and are now open to entry. Under the homestead law the homesteader has seven years in which to make first proof, and, failing in this, his entry is cancelled at the United States land office, so the land can be entered again and title secured without trouble, by the second entryman, even though the first homesteader still resides on the land. The Northern Pacific railroad, he says, is now laying forest re-serve scrip on many of these cancelled quarters in Oregon and Washington. When the government established the Rainler forest reserve, the Northern Pacific was knocked out of several million acres, and forest reserve scrip was issued to the company in lieu of these reserved lands. Settlers who have held on to their quar-ter section of timber for several years, Mr. Stevens thinks, are now about to receive the reward for their constancy, as the claims will now be worth from $700 to $3000 each, according to location and amount of timber. The demand for timber lands is no longer the result of speculation, but exists as a result of the world's market, which is now directly open for Oregon and Washington timber.

AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Athletics, Bowling, Entertainmen and Social Tomorrow Night.

ly one at the Young Men's Christian Association. The young people of the F'rst Methodist church are booked for an enter-tainment and social, The Dalles bowlers will meet the home team on the association alleys, match games will be played in the gymnasium, and refreshments will be served in the main lobby.

The diversity of the evenlng's programme is made necessary by the large attendance. It is easy to see that while these socials are membership affairs, provisions has to be made for a large num-ber, as the annual report of the association shows slightly over 1000 members.

This social entertainment is one of a series which is being given during the winter by the leading churches of the city. Some four of these have passed with the greatest success in each case. The First Methodist young people believe that they can not only attain the pace set by their predecessors, but even hope to go them one better. To this end they are making lively preparation. They promise that their stock of games will be complete, and that their literary programme shall be second to

The literary programme will be rendered during the early evening, in the gymnaslum, and later in the large parlors, so as to give this room to the match games. The bowling alleys will also be a busy place. The Dalles team will arrive on the morning train to try for Portland honors. The outcome of the event is looked forward to with much interest, as it is prac-tically the first appearance The Dalles' men have made in the city this winter. The Y. M. C. A. team feels quite comfortable as to the outcome of the game. Its success so far this year has been such that the boys figure a victory for Friday

SCOTTISH INSTALLATION.

Clan Macleay Will Contribute to South African Sufferers.

At the regular meeting of Clan Macleay, Order of Scottish Chiefs, the following of-ficers for 1900 were installed by Past Chief Mackenzie: Chief, Alexander Gayin; tanist, John Ewing; chaplain, Ed Shearer; secretary, A. G. Brown; finan-cial secretary, J. R. Stuart; treasurer, D. G. Duncan; senior henchman, J. Cars-well; junior henchman, P. S. H. Stevenson; seneschal, J. Shearer; warder, W. C. Spence; sentinel, J. Bowie; physician, Dr. A. W. Mackenzie; piper, George S. Shep-herd; standard-bearer, John Patterson The past year has been one of the most prosperous in the history of the clan, and the members are looking forward to a still better record in 1909. The various clans of the order in the United States and Canada are engaged in raising a fund for the benefit of the widows and orphans of British soldiers who have fallen in their country's cause in the South African war. Clan Macleay has appointed a committee to further this laudable object, and an entertainment will be given in the near future, the entire proceeds of which will be given to WALDORF PIANOS FOR RENT.

GLAD TO SEE MR. WARDE

PORTLAND GIVES WARM GREETING TO THE DISTINGUISHED ACTOR.

Minnie Tittell Brune's Friends in Evidence-Beautiful Production of "The Lion's Mouth,"

Frederick Warde had an unmistakably cordial greeting, a hearty, old-fashioned reception, an enthusiastic Webfoot welcome, at the Marquam last night. His friends and admirers packed the theater from ceiling to orchestra rail. Minnie Tittell Brune's friends were likewise in evi-dence; so it was a double opening night event, and everybody was pleased. As usual, the audience insisted on a speech, and Warde took occasion to say pleasant things about Portland—he really is very fond of Portland—and praised Mrs. Brune. It is not necessary to recall the story of the beautiful romantic story of the beautiful romantic drams, "The Lion's Mouth." It has been seen several times in Portland; but it is so full of poetry and romance, and deathless love, and all that keeps the heart of the world young and sweet, that no number of repetitions can dull its charm or interest, or make it less worth seeing. The scene is laid in the recorder of Versitan splendor and power. noonday of Venetian splendor and power, when Venice was called the "bride of the sea," and Mr. Warde has taken advan-tage of the time and place to present a beautiful series of stage pictures, full of warmth and color—of gay streets full of warmth and color—of gay streets full of riotous maskers, and moonlit gardens, statue-haunted—that make a fit setting for the romantic action of the play. Every one of the four acts of "The Lion's Mouth" is replete with poetic ideas and overflowing with just such situations as best suit the talents of Mr. Warde and the people with whom he has surrounded

As Paul of Navarro, an exile and the rightful doge of Venice, Mr. Warde is at his best. The beautiful lines which belong to the role are strongly read by him. He is the possessor of all the fire the par hould be invested with, and his splendid stage presence and manly, sympathetic voice realize what must have been the voice realize what must have been he playwright's dream when he gave his creation to the world. Few actors could more fittingly portray the tenderness which he breathed in the love scenes with Linora, and fewer could with equal success sustain the heroic strength which the part calls for. Nothing more need be said of Mr. Wards than that he plays with the old-time touch that has lost none of its grace and persuasiveness. He looks just as young and handsome, in the love passages he thrills with the same fire and passion, and his voice has still the golden notes that make him an ideal lover.

Mr. Warde is supported by Mrs. Clar-ence M. Brune, known in Portland as Minnie Tittell. Mrs. Brune is in every way worthy of Mr. Warde. Her Linora could hardly be too highly commended. Sweet and girlish in her every word and movement; graceful and modest, she wins her way rapidly to the hearts of her audi-ence, and when she is fighting for the life of the man to whom she has given her love she is the very embodiment of abne-gation and grief. Mrs. Brune is a spirituelle little woman with a sweet face, a most graceful carriage, a good voice and excellent training. She is possessed of that melody of voice and charm of action that at once establishes her in the sym-pathy and favor of her audience, and this popularity follows her throughout the play, and her sorrows and happy moments are a reality, shared by her audience.

Mr. Warde has never had a better com pany than he has this year. Charles D. Herman, as "the chief inquisitor," is remarkably effective, and is so natural in his wickedness that he gains the intense hatred of the audience from the beginning. Mr. Herman is a consummate art-were in good names.

Tonight Mr. Warde and company will play "Romeo and Juliet." Mrs. Brune is said to be particularly strong as Juliet. much praise from Eastern critics. Her girlish figure and voice and sweet, winome manner are peculiarly adapted to the part of the gentle maiden of the house of Capulet

GERMAN AID SOCIETY.

Election of Officers-Nearly $18,000 Paid Out for Charity.

The General German Aid Society, of Portland, at its yearly meeting elected the following board of directors to serve for the present year: President, John Reisacher; vice-president, Charles J. Schnabel; treasurer, H. Claussenius; secretary, C. Bircher; trustees, L. Levy, C. H. Meussdorffer, sr., and John Matthlesen; school directors, Joseph Heller and John Wagner: auditors, F. A. Fischer, Max Fleischhauer and O. Mangold; physicians, Dr. Otto S. Binswanger and Dr. A. J.

From the reports of its officers, we gathered the following data: The finan-cial situation of the society is very satisfactory. The membership consists of 125, and, although 20 members have belonged to the society for over 25 years, yet it did not lose a single member by death during the last year. The following is a list of the oldest members belonging to list of the oldest members belonging to the society: Since 1871 (its foundation), F. X. Auer, Adolph Burckhardt, John Donnerberg, Henry Everding, Charles Hegele, C. A. Landenberger, C. H. Meuss-dorffer, sr., John Reisacher, Henry Roth-fos, Henry Weinhard; since 1872, Henry Bohlmann, F. Oplitz; since 1873, C. A. Alisky, Sol Hirsch, P. Kurre, William Pfunder; since 18i4, Charles Geyer, Rich-ard Koehler, John P. Schmeer, Peter Wag-

This society is one of the few charitable organizations which spend a larger amount in aid of the poor than the total sum of membership dues collected. Since its organization it has paid out for purely charitable purposes the sum of $17,881 76, and it fully deserves the support of all the charitable-inclined German citizens of the state, as it extends its benevolent work all over Oregon.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

The Neill Company. For an actor of his years there has probably been no greater enterprise or strength of purpose shown during the present gen-eration than in the person of James Nelli, of the incomparable Neill company, that is to make its first appearance in Portland next Monday evening, beginning a week's engagement. Most of us in this country are patriotic enough to be exceedingly eager for the triumph of American artists. and enterprise, whether it be upon the stage or in the workshop, and to that end are extremely anxious that genius should have the largest freedom and the fewest possible impediments in its development. In the case of the remarkable success of James Neill and the Neill company, the most conservative critics have run into an almost extravagance of loyalty and expressions of delight in describing the benefits and advantages derived by the American stage through the thorough high-class productions of wholesome plays, such as are given by the Neill company.

The present is the first tour that the Neill company has ever made. Its management was at first doubtful as to wheth-or the people of other cities than where the organization had been appearing for the past five years would know of the com-pany's merits and welcome it as it might a better-known organization, but its suc-

Frank de Camp and Max Steinle, a duo of clever comedians, will assume the principal roles in "A Cheerful Liar," the latter having recently closed a long and prosperous season with L. B. Stockwell in "A Midnight Bell," while the former is known throughout the entire coast. John Howard. Bernard Jaxon, Sydney Platt, Eunice Murdock, Rose Tiem-non, Leonie Leigh and Robert Hawcroft, the famous originator of ragtime music, are among the many people of the com-pany.
