Portland Friends of the Boers to Hold a Meeting.

GERMAN CITIZENS LEAD THE MOVE

Incident at the Annual Dinner of the Commercial Club Arouses Some Indignation.

A number of Boer sympathizers in Porthand have united to form a society for the purpose of raising money to assist Com Paul and his followers. Arrange-ments are now making to secure a hall and speakers for a meeting, the date of which is not yet fixed. Judge Thomas O'Day will be one of the speakers. No others have been selected.

While the society will receive into mempership any who are friendly to the Boers in their present war with Great Britain, there is illtie doubt that the majority of members will be Germans. A prominent German said yesterday that probably 29 per cent of his countrymen in Portland are in sympathy with the Boers. "This," he said, "is natural owing to the close ties between the Germans and the Dutch."

The present movement owes its existence to an incident at the annual dinner of the Commercial Club. At the close of British Consul Laidlaw's response to the toast, "The Queen," the guests gave three cheers for her majesty. This was taken by the Boer sympathizers to be an affront not only to them, but to Americans, and it is to counteract what they term the unpatriotic effect of those three cheers for her Britannic majesty that the coming pro-Boer meeting is to be held. One of the promoters of the new society

"At a banquet in honor of the queen, it would be proper for Americans to cheer for the queen, but what right have they to do so at a purely local affair, when with whom many American citizens sym-pathine? We German-Americans will go to a German dinner, perhaps, and cheer for the emperor (I never do), but we do not cheer for him at banquets or other selons attended by Americans. We reserve our cheers for the country of our adoption. And another thing which has angured the Boer sympathizers was the fact that Captain Coghian, of 'Hoch der Haiser' fame, an American naval officer, should join in the cheers for the sovereign of another country. We are going to hold a meeting to show that there are Americans in Portland, who are not friends of Great Britain." The first meeting of the Boer sympathisers, which was little more than a commeeting, was held in the Union block Wednesday night, but the proce ings were kept secret. A number of well-known citizens were in attendance, some of them being natives of Germany and some of Ireland. The tone of the meeting was moderate, but it was determined to nake some kind of a showing, and to that end committees were delegated to secure a hall and speakers for a public meeting. It is the intention to make this meeting as rousing as possible, and to have every man in Portland who is a Boer sympathizer there. Several promthent men have been invited to speak, but so far as known, Judge O'Day is the only one who has accepted.

Chinese Restaurater's Defense Selling Champagne.

The case of Lee Wing Gow, a Chine restaurant-keeper, accused of selling liquor without license, occupied Judge Hennessy's attention for quite a while yesterday afterriops. License Collector Beach testified that he, in company with two other men, visited Gow's refectory on Monday last, and were furnished a bottle of Chinese gin with the lunch, the whole bill amount-ing to $150. A pint bottle, wrapped with straw, was produced in evidence, as Mr. Beach had retained it after tasting of the stuff. This bottle cost 40 cents, or a quart would have amo unted to 80 cents.

The defendant's attorney produced evidence to show that the walter who served the party was not a regular employe of the establishment, but was simply volunteering his services on the occasion; that the bottle which the defendant averred contained Chinese champagne, was kept in stock, but was procured at the store of Pong Ling Ti, on the corner of Second and Pine streets. Lee Wing Gow, through an interpreter, stated that liquor is procured at some other place when his customers call for it, and that he made no profit from its sale, as he paid just as much as he received for it. He furnished only Chinese gin, or champagne, as an acmodation to his patrons, and therefore

In rebuttal, Mr. Beach said the walter had no time to go out for the l quor, as tric fire-alarm system. The company has it was produced immediately on being arranged to give a dance on the evening called for. The waiter did not leave the

IN STRONG MEMODRAMA.

Neill Company's Fine Production of "Captain Swift."

In "Captain Swift," which was presented by the Neill company to a crowded house at the Marquam last night, Mr. James Neill has an opportunity to display a talent for strong melodramatic acting which not one of the earlier plays has there have been accounted. given him. As the Australian bandit, mas querading as a gentleman in London so clety, he compels the sympathy of the audience. They throw respect for the law to the winds, take no heed of the repeated reminders of his dark past and watch with breathless interest the progress of his love affair with the girl who has given her heart to him; his exposure and his brief attempts to escape. To them the villains are the servant, who is striving to effect his downfall, and the detective, who is on his track. Never does it occur to them that he has met with retribution. Thief and hypocrite though he may be, he is to them a hero, and one whose for-tunes are of the most vital and all-absorbing interest. Few men can do this in such a character.

The company is fully equal to the demands of the play, which are great. Frank MacVicars, as Mr. Gardiner, in the nost grateful if not the most important role, made an excellent foll for Mr. Neill in the more dramatic passages, and was delightful in the little love scenes with Mabel Seabrooke, a character which was charmingly played by Grace Mae Lamkin. George Bloomquest, as the hot-headed Harry Seabrooke, supplied what comedy the playwight has seen fit to interpo-late, and his manly portrayal of the frank, open-hearted boy won him repeated ap-

Edythe Chapman in a taxing emotional role, that of Mrs. Seabrooke, the mother of Swift, did a superb piece of acting, and in the heavier scenes shared honors equally with Mr. Neill. In the character of Stella Darbisher, Julia Dean had rathes a different part from any which she has thus far portrayed, and her versatility was strongly brought out in the last act, when she meets her lover for the last time. The remainder of the company was ag-mirably cast, and the performance was stantly being erected, and at the present given without a single weak spot. The tive of the week, and the company was obliged to respond to recalls at the close of the three first acts.

Tonight "Captain Letterblair" will be given, and at the matinee this afternoon "A Bachelor's Romance" will be repeated.

INCREASING MAIL ORDERS.

Postoffice Department Encourage Trade Through the Mails.

Postmaster Croasman has just ordered from the postoffice department a large number of blank applications for money orders with the names of such dealers, merchants, etc., who desire them, printed therein. The general public has very little idea of the immense amount of business done in Portland and in all cities by mail orders. This trade has been hampered by lack of facilities for sending exact amounts safely through the mails, or by carelessness on the part of the remitter in obtaining money orders at points where issued.

"This impediment," said Mr. Croasman "has been lessened by the large number of money order offices recently established in all parts of the country. And it is probable that in a short time the moneyorder system will be extended to all the offices in the country.
"If all retail dealers and others receiving remittances would call the attention of their correspondents to the desirability, safeness and cheapness of remitting by money order, it would be better."

To facilitate this the postoffice department has agreed to furnish dealers with the applications with their names printed as has been stated. In sending out their catalogues, circulars and letters, one of these blanks can be enclosed by the merchants. The advantages can be readily seen. The remitter will be reminded of the money-order system as a convenient method of sending exact amounts. The back of the application will show the fee required. The payer's name being the Chinese waiter told Mr. Beach at the 'printed in the application will insure correct-issuance of the order, and the re-mitter having the application at hand can all in the balance and send it to the postby any messenger to obtain the

> By general use of these specially printed tions a much larger remittance by money order will be encouraged, and there will be a less amount of postage stamps sent through the mails.

Postmaster Croasman desires to call the attention of all dealers who may want dons. All that is necessary is to notify him.

JOHN M'GINN TELLS OF THE EX-ILES FROM WEBFOOT.

All Hope to Do Better in the Future -Business Must Wait Until Peace Is Restored.

John L. McGinn, a well-known young lawyer of Portland and brother of Henry E. McGinn, has just arrived from the Phil-lppines. Mr. McGinn was one of the voiunteers of the Second Oregon, but when the regiment had finished its work and was embarked at Manila to return home, he asked for his discharge there, where he remained as a civilian until recently. Upon reaching California, he paid a visit to his parents, now in Los Angeles, before returning to Portland. He will again commence the practice of law here, in the office of Judge McGlnn. Mr. McGinn does not regard Manila at all promising until after the insurrection is quelled, especially for profession men. Of the Oregon boys discharged there, or who have gone to the islands as civillans, he says there are none but who look forward to their return to the United States with fond pleasure, "Charley Jarmin is still in the custor

"My observations and experience lead me to say that there are very poor pros pects for any one intending to go to Ma-nila now, and I believe it will be so as long as the country remains in the uset-tled condition. Business in Manila is practically nothing, as all the people have to do is to trade with themselves and live on one another. Island ports being closed Manila cannot trade with them. I under-stand that there are millions and millions waiting in Hong Kong for conditions to quiet down, when investment in the Phil-ippines will be eagerly sought. "In Manila martial law still reigns, PORTLANDERS IN MANILA They want to get enough, at least, to come back to the United States in style. None of them thinks of living there permanently. One cannot go into any business there yet without permission from the military authorities, which is often hard to get. An effort is made to stamp out gambling, but many games are running, either under cover or by confivance. The saloons are now limited, it being the purpose of the authorities to permit no additional saloons within certain districts. It is about im-possible to get a license for a saloon on the Escolta or anywhere within a reasonable distance of the central or business portion of the city.

"The administration of justice is scandalous. Murders and robberies are com-mitted day after day without apparent mitted day after day without apparent capacity on the part of the soldiers to get hold of the offenders. Some persons are arrested, but nobody seems to be brought to trial. This is all caused by the Flippino judges, as there seems to be some sort of an old law in force which permits these judges to keep persons accused from trial judges to keep persons accused from trial almost indefinitely. The Filipino judges are universally regarded as corrupt. What is needed is the establishment of American courts. All the European people and the most of the Filipinos themselves mistrust the Filipino tudges. There is promited to the Filipino tudges. trust the Filipino judges. There is room for great improvement in the department

"From what I could gather, the Filipino will likely try to hold out until after our next presidential election, as they believe the anti-expansion party of this country very strong. You will consider, however that I left the islands about the beginning of the present vigorous campaign. From what the insurrectos have learned, they have formed an exaggerated idea of the anti spirit in the minds of Americans, for few of them seem to appreciate that America is there to stay."

IN THE SEVERAL COURTS :-----

THAT M'CANN ESTATE IS IN ONE MORE TANGLE.

Administrator Charged With Contempt for Obeying Order of Probate Court - Litigation Notes.

There was a hearing before Judge Fra-zer yesterday upon the order of the court directing John F. Logan and O'Day & Tarpley to appear and show cause why they should not be punished for contemp for refusing to turn over the property of the estate of P. C. McCann, deceased, to F.-C. Miller, the receiver, Miller was ap-pointed receiver of the moneys and other property pursuant to escheat proceedings filed in behalf of the state of Oregon by Chester V. Dolph, special counsel. estate is valued at about $7000.

There are numerous perplaxing ques-tions involved in this controversy. The county court removed J. S. Cooper as adminstrator of the estate last October, and appointed John Logan as administrator. The escheat proceedings were insti-tuted between the time of the removal of Cooper and the qualification of Logan as adminstrator. Subsequently, Judge Cake, of the county court, directed Adminstra-tor Logan to distribute the estate to the heirs. Judge Cleiand, on the motion to appoint a receiver, held that upon the fil-ing of an escheat information, and until the matter is disposed of, the jurisdiction of the county court absolutely ceases, and that court has no jurisdiction to determine who the heirs are, if any, but such per-sons must appear in the circuit court, which has exclusive jurisdiction, to determine their claims and the question to

In the argument in that case, Messra. O'Day and Tarpley, attorneys for the helrs, contended that the county court has absolute and exclusive jurisdiction over the question as to who were the heirs, and that court had found the persons they represented to be the heirs. This same sort of argument, with numerous additions, was made yesterday before Judge Frazer. law was in favor of the heirs; that the estate was probated in the county court, and Judge Cake was fully satisfied who the heirs were, and ordered the estate turned over to them. Counsel urged that they represented these heirs, and came into the possession of the property rightfully, and nothing to the contrary has yet been shown. There was nothing to hinder the county court from acting as it did. No restraining order had been served upon them. This was the first time they had been cited to appear.

John F. Logan has filed an answer seting forth that he turned the property to O'Day & Tarpley, attorneys, for the heirs, in obedience to the following order of the county court, made November 3, 1899:

The court, having found that James McCann, Kate Wood and Annie Mc-Donough are the brother and sisters of the deceased, P. C. McCann, and the sole heirs-at-law in the estate of P. C. Mc-Gann, it is therefore ordered and adjudged that as such they are entitled to the estate of P. C. McCann, deceased, and P. C. Mc-Cann having died intestate, said heirs are entitled to said estate, share and share alike, and John F. Logan, administrator of the estate, is hereby ordered and directed to pay to James McCann, Kate Wood and Annie McDonough, share and share allke, the cash now in his hands, and also to deliver to the heirs 10 shares of stock of the First National bank, of Indepen-Mr. Logan states that he fully obeyed this order and was discharged as admir lstrator by the county court, and his bonds exonerated and held for naught. Chester V. Dolph presented the case in behalf of the receiver, and W. D. Fenton spoke on the opposing side.

Hawson Divorce Suit. The divorce suit of Maggie vs. Sidney Hawson was the interesting feature in Judge Cleland's court yesterday. Several witnesses will be examined this morning, when the trial is expected to close. This defendant called witnesses to prove that he did not indulge excessively in intoxicating liquors, and did not neglect his busi-ness, and also, to establish that the plaintiff, when she married him, nine year ago, knew he was a drinking man. Ex-Governor Moody, whose warehouse at Arilington was managed by Hawson from 1891 up to the time it was sold in February, 1899, said he had no fault to find. The business was not neglected. Ha never saw Hawson intoxicated. Sheriff W. F. Wilcox, of Gilliam county, testified that he had seen the defendant drink a little too much when he resided at Fossil before his marriage, and once twice at Ariington. The witness said this was generally in the evening. Mr. Hilton and several others testified somewhat in the same manner. Hawson, in his own behalf and in support of his cross complaint, took the witsees-stand and denied that he ever pointed a revolver at her, but said he told her he was sometimes tempted to end his own life with a revolver. He admitted the rator scene, but stated that the threat was against himself and not her. He denied various other charges. He testified that F. M. Hurlburt complained of his boarding-house, and he. Thomas Stevens was found guilty yesterday by the jury which tried his case in the criminal court, of cutting Fred Holmes' throat in the Owl saloon last November. The jury recommended him to jurors voted not guilty, on the ground of self-defense. There was some evidence that Holmes was attempting to strike Stevens immediately prior to the cutting, after having previously beaten him. In order not to disagree, the jury compromised on the recommendation basis. Mr. Giltner, counsel for the state, prosecuted the case vigorously. Holmes received a very long and dangerous wound, and carries an ugly scar as the result of it.

-London Life at the Marquam. That world-renowned ensemble of be witching beauties and modern funmakers, entitled the Rentz-Santley Novelty and Burlesque Company, who are undoubtedly the leaders in all that appertains to their particular style of entertainments, are announced to appear at Cordray's the week beginning Sunday.

They promise nothing that is not new. and lay claim to having the largest num ber of the prettiest, as well as the most talented girls, that have ever been seen in one organization, as well as the best "bunch of brainy comedians" and a number of the cleverest vaudeville acts.

From among the prominent names on their roster we cull the following: Miss Gertrude Grey, a beautiful and talented vocalist, whose success is phenomenal, Zanfretta and Mansfield, the inimitable pantomimist and the talented soubrette, in a decidedly amusing as well as novel specialty; those dainty dansenses, the Sis-ters Palmer, in the latest terpsichorean duos: A. C. Lawrence, the quaint mono loguist (there is none other like him); Baker and Lynn, in a clever character sketch, "Yow-Yow," which created a fuore in all the Eastern cities; the funny Milesian, Gus Bruno, the wittlest come dian of the day, in a crowd of humorosi-

The burlesque, which is the principal swell indies' clubs, which are such a rage in New York city. The setting for this piece is remarkably beautiful, and represents the gold room at the femous Wal-dorf-Astoria hotel. It is painted in solid gold, and is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful specimens of the painter's art that has ever been seen. Among the prominent burlesquers are: Nina Berto-lini, the well-known professional heauty; Clasic Meredith, demure and dainty; Edith Wayne, petite and pretty; Jennie Pettia shapely and stately; Verdie Mansfield, winsome and winning, supported by a

The costuming will be of a most claborate order, and all of the latest appli-ances in the way of electric and mechanical effects will add to the beauties of the

A striking feature of the performance is the affair of honor, a duelling scene between two skilled awardswomen, which has won the highest praise everywhere.

"Take up the loose ends," the little all-ments, to prevent sickness, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.
