Slow Progress. LONDON, Jan. 23 .- The Daily Chronicle

has received the following dated January 22, 11 P. M., from Spearman's Camp: "The Boers admit 21 casualities during General Lyttleton's skirmish on Saturday.

"General Warren continues pushing on, though he is necessarily making very slow progress, as the Boers are numerous and strongly entrenched. Our infantry is working over parallel ridges with Lord Dundonald's cavalry lying well out on the left flank, and awalting developments. The Boers contest every inch of the ground.

'This morning, General Warren's artillery opened fire, but the Boers did not reply, and our fire became less hot. The naval guns in front have been quiet. "A Boer prisoner who was brought in, boasted that it would take us three months to reach Ladysmith."

SUNDAY'S BATTLE.

LONDON, Jan. 23 .- The Daily Mail has the following, dated Sunday night, from Spearman' camp: "There has been hot fighting all day. At dawn our attack was resumed along the entire line, all the brigades taking part We soon discovered that the Boers still occupied the range of hills in force, their position being very strong. The range is intersected by steep ravines, and many approaches very difficult of access. "Today the Boers who were driven from their trenches yesterday took cover in dongus and behind the rocks with which the hills are strewn. The forces, there-fore, commenced the task of driving them out, and set to work with good heart in the early morning. Much firing took pince, and our progress was slow, but gradually British pluck told its tale, and the enemy fell back to another kopje. We swarmed on and occupied it, and then the attack recommenced with the utmost gallantry. The country simply abounds in hills favorable to guerrilla warfare, and our task is an arduous one. Nevertheless it is being gradually accomplished. Whenever any of the enemy ware observed taking up a fresh position our field batteries poured in showers of

of a short time. According to the war office officials' idea, a dash to the relief of Kimberley matter he said: will quickly follow the relief of Lady-smith, and then, without doubt, a long spell of organization, and perhaps three or four months will elapse before the col-umn or columns will have their transpor-tation in fit shape to advance with the certainty of meeting with no serious reverses.
