THINKS STRAY BALL HIT LAWTON

Correspondent Belleves Present Will Be Last Campaign That Will Be Required in the Philippines,

CALOOCAN, Luzon, P. I., Jan. 4 .- (Special correspondence.)—Things have been quiet in a military way since General Lawton's death. December 18, at San Ma-teo. His public funeral took place a few days ago, with all the pump and aplendor due to his high rank and splen-did military achievements. General Joseph Pirst division, under his leadership, will continue to shed luster on American arms. A strange coincidence in the death of General Lawton lies in the fact that the insurgent commander at San Mateo at the time bore the name of Geronimo.

His full name is Licerio Geronimo. When it is romembered that General Lawton gained a reputation in the regular cavalry
by his pursuit and capture of the Apache Indian, Chief Geronimo, his death at the hands of the insurgents commanded by a chief of the same name seems strange. I was in San Mateo December 27, and found sut what I could concerning the at-tack on the place, and the death of the general. Major Symes, of the Eleventh cavalry, formerly major of the First Califormin volunteers, told me that the general had given him an order just a few min-utes before his death. He seemed to utes blifore his death. He seemed to think that the general was struck by a chance shot, instead of being picked out by a sharpshootor, as has been stated. Only one other man was killed, and a few wounded. San Mateo is garrisoned by the Eleventh cavalry, Colonel Sackett, commanding. With a battalion of the Porty-fifth infantry I participated in an empagement with the insurgents near engagement with the insurgents near Montaiban, December 27. On our left was the Eleventh cavalry, on our right were two battailons of the Forty-sixth infantry, supported by two cannons. One battalion of the Twenty-ninth in-fantry climbed the hills to the right and rear of the enemy the night before and attacked them from the rear the next morning. The insurgents had one field ce a converted bruss cannon, mounted tain side. The fight lasted from 8 to II A. M., when the insurgents broke and fled in different directions, covered by the dense undergrowth on the mountain sides. The insurgents lost their cannon and many rifles, and a large quantity of ammunition. Their artillery was commanded by How-ard, an American deserter and traitor. He holds the rank of major in the insurgent army. Unfortunately we falled to catch him. If we had, he would no doubt have Pursuit of small bands of the enemy con-tinued all day, and many were killed and a number taken prisoners. Montaiban is situated on the San Mateo river, about four-miles above the town of San Mateo, and on the same side of the river. The number of insurgents was variously estimated from 400 to 7300, under the com-mand of Geronimo. It is supposed the larger part of them crossed the mountains to the eastern shore of the island, using the trail up the San Mateo river. While crossing the river in skirmish line, De-cember 27, one of my men Private Alexander Mattson, was drowned. We were advancing under fire at the time. Every effort was made to resuscitate him, but in

A suspicious noise was beard near our camp in the brush on the night of December 27, but on investigation no enemy was discovered. The next morning, however, two insurgents officers' sabers and three rifies were found in that vicinity lying on the ground in the brush. Whoever it was, the enemy had taken sudden fright and fied, leaving their arms behind them. The nights were cool in the mountains, and as our baggage was limited to one poncho, to be carried on the person, we suffered a little from the cold. The days, however, were hot, and then the light bargage was a relief, especially since every man had to carry two days' field rations in his haversack. We made our coffee in tin cups and fried our bacon in our mess pans. No cooking utensils were carried, as we took no transportation whatever with us. The mountain streams are bright and clear, and furnish excellent drinking The underbrush on the mountain sides is so thick that the enemy traveling through it were perfectly concealed from the view of our troops in the valley below. This fact accounts for their escaping so readily. The natives were harvesting the rice crop in the San Mateo valley. Women were doing most of the work. I presume most of the men were in their army. They cut the grain with hand sickles and put it in shocks, much as our farmers in the Willamette valley do their wheat and oats, In fact, I was struck with the naturalness of the scene. Sugar cane is not ripe yet. but is growing in profusion in large fields. The stalks are very sweet and nutritious, and our men enjoyed eating them, or, rather, chewing them, for their juice. On our return from Montalban to La Loma, we had one of the hardest marches I ever experienced. Loaded down with rations and ammunition, we made the entire distance of 20 miles in one day. To add to our discomfort, it rained during the afternoon in terrents, and we lost our way for some time, passing for miles through rice paddies with from one to six inches of must and water in them. The mounted officers' horses gave out. One of these laid down in the mud and water for some time, and only after much persuasion of various kinds could be induced to get up and try it again. About dark we struck the main trail leading from Novaliches to La Loma, about five miles from the latter place. We moved in single file through the mud and water in the dark, stumbling over and rough places, but finally reached camp about 10 o'clack, where, thanks to the thoughtfulness of Colonel Dorst, a hot supper was waiting for us. On January 2, we moved back to Calo-conn, being relieved by the Forty-second infantry, under the command of Colonel Thompson. On January 4 we moved to Passy, south of Manila. A general move to the south is being planned, and troops are being concentrated on the south side of the city. I think this will be the final campairn in Luson. The insurgents are numerous in Cavite and Batanger provinces, and this move is intended to destroy or disperse them. The northern provinces are already under control. Preparations are being made to turn over to its owners the Mantia-Dagupan ratiroad, which has been, for some time past, operated by the quartermaster's department, United States

Movements of Aguinaldo.

Agninido is believed to have reached Cavite province, where he will doubtiess make his last desperate stand. His wife and mother are prisoners in Manila. They are comfortably quartered in the home of friends, and are allowed a great deal of freedom. Mrs. Aguinaldo is accompanied by the mother of her husband and the wife and two handsome daughters of the insurgent Colonel Leyba. They are all glad that their "hiking" across the country and through the mountains is at an end. Senova Asutualdo la still mourning for her little daughter, who died a short time since, and looks tired and worn. Before her marriage she was known as Senorita Hilario Rosario, and lived at Cavite Visjo, where Emilio aguinaldo woosd and won her. Graduntes in St. Johns.

The February graduating exercises of the St. Johns public school took place last night at the school building, before a large audience. In the sixth-grade room extra seats had been placed for the occa-sion, but yet it was too small to accommodate the patrons attending. A picasing programme was well rendered. The members of the class are: Edwin Monahan, Earl Horsman, Maude McCann, Cicely Grady, Laura Earnest, Lulu Earnest and Henry West, The class and school were honored by the presence of J. H. Ackerman, state superintendent of public instruction, who presented the certificates of promotion to the members of the class, and made an address on "High Ideals."

The following interesting description of the tortures of a plague victim, a Japa-nese woman, is from Austin's Hawalian

Weekly: "The death of a Japanese woman or Maunakea street last week was an event of more than passing notice. She was stricken with the malady at 11 o'clock in the morning while performing her house-hold duties, the first symptoms being a sudden rise of pulse with the accompanying fever. She called her husband and told him she must lie down as she felt weak and exhausted. She reclined on a pallet, which was about the only article of furniture in the shanty where they were living, and attempted to go to sleep, but a sensation of strange pains dispelled all thoughts of rest, and she asked her husband to come to her bedside. She could only murmur: 'Don't call the doctor; ask Ito to come.' Ito, who was her sishome at 606 Ellsworth street. Many friends and neighbors of the stricken family attended. After the services the body was taken to Mount Calvary cemetery for was taken to Mount Calvary cemetery for black plague is like that of a ravenous tiger-plant and fierce. In a little while the short and fierce. In a little while the poor woman was groaning with pain and throwing herself from side to side in a vain endeavor to get relief. Ito procured loe and applied cooling cloths to her temples, but the fever had gained a headway that baffled nursing. The disease was a com-plete master of the patient, and the swelings that characterize the bubonic plague egan to appear in just an hour after the first symptoms asserted themselves. It was noon when the miserable victim was suffering indescribable torture. Shricking and imploring her husband to kill her, she writhed on her bed of agony. Its then prepared positices over the little kerosene prepared poultices over the little kerosene stove in the room and applied them to the nauseous protuberances that had appeared on the groins and under the arms, working with fhat constancy that only sisterly affection can impel. At I o'clock the woman gave up her life and added another unit to the list of Honolulu's plague-stricken victims."

Sanitary Fire Beyond Control.

The great fire which wiped Chinatown off the map of Honolulu January 27, which originated from a sanitary fire, is thus described by the Hawalian Star: "From Kukul street to the water front, East Side Notes.

J. A. Logan, an old-time druggist of the above King, and to Manunakea from the above King, and to Manunakea from the water front up to King, is ton'ght nothing but a smouldering mass of embers, blazing here and there, and here and there broken by the rulned walls of some brick or stone building. Within the boundaries given, Chinatown is a thing of the past, Nothing Walkiki way of this line was destroyed by the fire except a wooden building at the foot of Maunakea street close to the Honolulu iron works. Brewer & Co.'s two-story brick building at the foot of Maunakea street, used as a ware-foot of Maunakea street, used as a ware-sec to a proper performance of a representative possesses it to know that a representative posses. foot of Maunakea street, used as a ware-house below and a sail loft above, was saved by a volunteer bucket brigade, which was organized soon after I o'clock, and with ropes and a line of men with tin buckets hastily brought from one of the hardware stores, kept the roof and walls flooded with water.

Fire Breaks Bounds.

"The part of the infected district which it was intended to burn was that part of-block 15 between the Walkiki line of the Kaumakapili church and Nuusnu street, from Beretania to Kukut. The fire de-partment began operations about 8 o'clock.

"The flames spread over toward River street. Presently they jumped across Ber-etania street into block 1, bounded by Beretania, Maunskea, Pauant and River. They seemed to break out right in the very center of this block. It was now recogcenter of this block. It was now recognized that the fire was beyond the control of the crippled department by the use of fire engines and water. There was only one way to stop the course of the confagration, and that was by blowing up buildings in its course. Before this point was reached, another emergency arose. The people of the burning district, fore, our members have such a multipliefty freenized by the fact that their homes. frenzied by the fact that their homes were burning and that they were hemmed in the district by a corden of military, became panic stricken. Mobs charged the guards along River street in an effort to get out of danger. This brought out the reserves of the police and the National Guard and a large force of volunteers. teer inspectors from the citizens' com-mittee, armed for the most part with ax and pickhandles, hastly taken from hardware stores on the way. The onward rush of the flames, together with the explosions of dynamite and giant powder used in the effort to blow up buildings, to-gether with the noise of exploding bumbs in the Chinese stores and kerosene cans in household spartments, added to the sources I panie.

Strange Frensy. "Strangely enough, while most of the people were in a panic to escape from threatened death by burning, others were crazed in another way, and could scarcely be driven by force from the houses which had been their homes and where their cherished household goods were. The danger to their lives seemed as nothing to the danger to their household goods.

MULTNOMAH MAN WANTED

Citizen Who Wants Portland to Have Representatives in Congress.

ASTORIA, Feb. 1 .- (To the Editor.) While congressional candidacy seems to be the order of the day, there will be, no doubt, in the near future, quite an augentation of the list of voluntary suppli mentation of the list of voluntary suppli-cants at the shrine of political preferment. Every county will contribute to the mot-ley ensemble of congressional aspirants. Although high office truly seldom seeks the man, many will feel themselves called —to find themselves "called"—where only two are chosen. Apropos of an evident Glesatisfaction in many quarters with the work of Oregon's delegation as a whole. let us reason with each other as to the manner of men we should choose to rep-resent us at the nation's capital. First of all we need men of high character, moral stamina and undisputed ability; men who are easily the peers of their fellows; who are easily the peers of their reliows, fearless, aggressive men; tireless, cease-less workers; men of thought, men of action. We should have representatives who are, first, last and always for Ore-gon; those who talk, think and even fream of our fair, state; those who will and can secure everything that is coming o our commonwealth. It is but proper to add that these trust-ed agents should have a good knowledge of national and international affairs, and be right upon these subjects. If we care to make a record for our state, we will send men who are opposed to free silver, not daft on the trust proposition, and who will unalterably stand for the retenwho will unalterably stand for the reten-tion of the Philippines at any honorable cost—and, by the way, let us have such representation in Washington as will for-bid the repetition of such a spectacle as the president of Portland's Chamber of Commerce being sent there to perform the duties of a representative, in scouring the various departments to make known our wants. All honor to General Beebe and those who were interested in his work (he'd make a good senator); but it cheap-ens the standing of a state to be obliged to send a private citizen to Washington to perform the functions and duties of chosen representatives. Perhaps this was during adjournment, but the matter should have been pressed before. Turner of Washington was on hand in ample time to make known his people's demands.

It is perhaps of no purport at this time to discuss what calling or profession best conduces to the formation of good, sub-stantial congressional timber. Sufficient is ace to a proper performance of a repre-sentative's duties, yet young men are forg-ing to the front these days, and seem to ess more capacity than many of their As a long resident and present taxpayer of Multnomah county, I say to our delegates, "Make a fight for one of the coming nominations, choose a standard-bearer and urge his selection." As I have already intimated, and as the papers daily indicate, almost every county seems to be making an entry for the coming race, so take a hand, men of Multnomah, and capture one of these places. It seems to me that a man with all of the qualifications These were of the usual kind, the placing aforenamed, who is a resident of Portland, of the apparatus of the department at the would make a more effective member than one similarly endowed whose home is le cated elsewhere in the state-for a prope knowledge of the wants of the state a large are particularly enhanced by a thor ing just Walkiki of the church, so as to ough conception of the affairs and needs get an open space between the church of the principal port and metropolis, from and the built of the buildings to be burned, and to burn against the wind. The breaking up of the stary northeast trade wind into a gusty and variable one upset the confines of Portland, who are possessed of all the confines of Portland, who are possessed of all the confines of Portland, who are possessed of the confines of Portland, who are possessed to the confines of Portland, who are possessed which much that is vital to the state at large radiates. While I am quite willing the confines of Portland, who are powessed of ability, who would make good stewards and render good reports as to duty per-formed, yet I, for reasons by no means occult, am positive that what Portland as the principal maport could obtain in the matter of federal concessions would be of paramount importance to all portions our representation is meager compared with that of more populous states. Therefore, our members have such a multiplicity of duties, by reason of the territorial area of their districts, as should warrant the possession of very good abilities. A congressman from New York city may view his entire district from his housetop, so dense is the population of the same; not so with one who is spokesman for a scattered district, comprising half the state of My views as to the equipment of an up-to-date congressman are, I trust, common sense deductions, supplemented by observation of and an acquaintance with a num-ber of representatives in congress during a 10 years' residence in Washington. I have often heard them upon the floor: knew some of them in their homes, and took especial pains to observe, as far as possible, the tactics of the able and suc-cessful ones; hence I have in mind a few Ideals. Nevertheless, I see just as good material living in Multnomeh county; much abler, in fact, than many of our "most potent, grave and reverend seig-niors," who are supposed to grace the halls of congress. Men of Multnornah, choose your borses, make your entries, and may the devil take the first man who comes between you—the populist. Don't all speak at once, but by a means let The volunteer inspectors did most valuable and efficient work in going through these houses as the flames advanced to make houses as the flames advanced to make ular edict to this effect.
