WILL THIS CAT COME BACK?—Yesterday afternoon a little, elderly man, under the influence of liquor, while in the store of Malley Bros., on Third street, took, seized and carried away a large, yellow, brindle cat, with an abbreviated caudal appendix. The man lives on a scow below town, and wished the cat to be a companion in his lonely home. The porter at the store was notified by the neighbors that the man was carrying away the cat, and ran after him and overtook him at Burnside street. He seized the cat with one hand and the thief with the other. The latter held on to the cat with both hands, and there would have been a lively struggle for possession of the animal, but when it took part in the struggle with claws and teeth, neither could let go quick enough, and the disgusted cat leaped into the air, describing a trajectory curve which looked like a yellow brindled rainbow, and when it struck the earth it scooted up Burnside street, with all the dogs in the neighborhood after it. The scowman seemed to think he had been abused in the affair (he had incidentally been thrown down on the muddy pavement and run over), and he taunted the porter who had caught him, saying: "You caught me, but you can't catch the cat." And when the hunt for the cat instituted by several hundred boys had been abandoned, and Messrs. Malley were returning disconsolate to their store, the scowman from down the street yelled back, "Did you get your cat?" Bets as to whether the cat will or will not come back are even.

REACHED BY EQUITY.—In the matter of improving Grand avenue, from East Clay street to the line of the Southern Pacific railroad track, the conclusion reached by the street committee is generally considered a very proper one. The street has been worn out by the excessive traffic from Inman, Poulsen & Co.'s mills, and the property-owners were opposed to improving it. The council was asked to appropriate $500 out of the general fund to put the street in order. As it is necessary that the street should be improved, and it did not appear just that the burden should fall entirely on the property-owners, it was decided that, if the property-owners would petition for the improvement of the street with stone blocks, the only thing that can make a permanent improvement which can withstand the heavy traffic, and Inman, Poulsen & Co. and Ban.ord & Co., the slabwood dealers, would assist in defraying the cost, the city would contribute $500 out of the general fund to assist in securing the improvement. This is considered an equitable manner of distributing the cost of the improvement among all concerned, and appears to meet the case, and will furnish a precedent in similar cases which are constantly coming up.

LECTURE ON ART HISTORY.—The opening night for the exhibition by the Portland Art Association of the Rembrandt photographs, previously announced for next Thursday, will be postponed for about six weeks. This is done, among other reasons, in order to offer the full facility of the lecture-room and picture frames to the art classes and the public for the illustration of a series of lectures upon the "History of the Art of Northern Europe," which is to be given by Miss Julia Osgood. Miss Osgood is a well-known teacher and lecturer upon the history of art, who is often heard in Boston and New York, and more recently in the West. She has just completed engagements in Denver, and is in this city by invitation of the art class, for the series of lectures above named, and which will include careful studies and characterizations of Durer, Holbein, Rembrandt, Rubens and others. The illustrating space of the lecture-room will be used in connection with the lectures, and the successive exhibits will be open to the public on the usual days. The lectures of Miss Osgood begin on Friday, March 2, and will be more fully announced later.

DISCUSSED THE COMING ELECTION.—The regular weekly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was one of special interest. Bible readings on Christian citizenship were received with marked appreciation. Arrangements were made for holding a flower mission at Mrs. M. Lewis', Terrace Heights, February 27. The matter of celebrating Frances Willard Memorial and Union Signal Red Letter day was referred to a committee. A strong appeal made for the study of civic government resulted in the formation of a study class. Mrs. Sargent was appointed superintendent of the department of labor and Christian citizenship. The matter of the coming school election, the present registration law and other political matters were discussed. An editorial which recently appeared in The Oregonian relative to placing women on the school board was heartily commended.

COLLECTING ON BONDED LIENS.—The ordinance making an assessment on bonded liens under the Bancroft bonding act was turned over to the city treasurer yesterday, and he will begin collecting installments due and interest on delinquent installments at once. The amount of installments due on this, the fifth annual assessment, is $24,329 73, and the interest due on delinquent installments amounts to $1211 61. The ordinance is a voluminous document, containing 76 pages, type-written, of the size of an ordinary record book, each page containing from 45 to 56 descriptions of property. The computing of interest due has involved much work, as on delinquent assessments previous to October, 1898, interest is charged at 8 per cent, but, as the law was changed at that time, the interest since has been only 6 per cent.

LOOKS FOR A BUSY SEASON.—L. Saldron, a logger, whose residence is on the East Side, has just received 100 tons of steel rails with which to extend his tracks at Gray's river. The price paid for the rails was $48 a ton. He has also received four new logging cars, weighing 11,000 pounds each, carrying double trucks. He expects a very busy season this year, and is preparing to send several heavy rafts to Portland.

FOR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES.—A suit for what might be called "consequential damages" has been begun in Justice Kraemer's court. Sam Mackin, a concoctor of oyster stews, had purchased a stove from Hochfeld & Cohen, and engaged the firm to put it in position. The oyster kitchen caught fire from the stovepipe, and Mackin sues the stove firm for $53 damages. The case will be tried next week.

MARRIED A SPOKANE JOURNALIST.—Miss Edith J. Cameron was married yesterday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, at St. Matthew's chapel, First and Caruthers streets, to Conner Malott, of Spokane. Rev. J. W. Weatherdon was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Malott went to Astoria last night, where they will spend some time before going to Spokane. Mr. Malott is connected with the Spokesman-Review.

SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.—The annual meeting of the Sons of the American Revolution will be held in the rooms of the society, 300 Oregonian building, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The members and guests of the society will attend a banquet at the Portland hotel at 7 o'clock in the evening.

NOT A PENCILER.—In a police court paragraph a few days ago concerning Chic Houghton, the statement was made that the boy's father, who is blind, sold lead pencils on the street occasionally. The father disclaims such avocation.

AT THE SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE.—The ladies of the Auxiliary Society of Trinity Episcopal church will give an entertainment at the Seamen's Institute, Wednesday evening, February 21. A musical and literary programme has been prepared.

INCORPORATION.—Articles of incorporation of the Keystone Mining Company were filed in the county clerk's office yesterday. The incorporators are: F. A. Knapp, William Jones and J. A. Cranston; capital stock, $100,000.

PORTLAND'S NEW SHELTER.—Description, illustration and process in mines and metals, at the book stores. *

DUCKS RETURNED TO THEIR WHEAT.—Quite a number of sportsmen who understand the manners and customs of wild fowl went duck-hunting Sunday, and met with very fair success. There has been no good duck-shooting in this section for some time, the ducks having tired of being fed on wheat, and scattered abroad up the Valley, where they found food more to their taste in the creeks and grain fields. The cold snap and the slight fall of snow which lasted a day or two made such food scarce, and gave the ducks "cold feet," and they came flying back to the feeding-troughs and their diet of wheat. Those who surmised that this would be the case went hunting Sunday and enjoyed fine sport. One of the hunters brought home a very fine specimen of the spoonbill duck, a male, the plumage of which is so handsome that is is to be mounted by a taxidermist. It scarcely comes up to a mallard or wood duck in beauty, but the plumage is still very handsome.

POTATO MEN IN LUCK.—During the two or three days of "cold weather," when the thermometer really dropped below the freezing point, farmers quit hauling potatoes to town, and the commission men re-

REMOVED HIS FRIEND'S BULLET.—Dr. Wheeler, city physician, yesterday removed a pistol ball from the breast of John Jacobson, who was shot by his friend, Nealand, early in the morning of the 16th instant. Jacobson was taken to the Good Samaritan hospital, where the X-rays were applied and the bullet plainly revealed, resting under the collar-bone. An incision was made, and the ball lifted out without trouble, together with about a square inch of cloth the lead had carried in with it. Jacobson will now recover rapidly, and will be ready to resume his forge at Wolff & Zwicker's within 10 days. He will not prosecute Nealand, whom he still looks upon as a friend, though he thinks the trouble all came about through Nealand's foolishness. Both men are Russian Finns.

AGAIN NOT SPECIFIC AS TO DATE.—Some boys at the Park school intend today to revenge the joke played on their sister schoolmates by the principal, D. A. Grout. Last Friday the girls sent a petition to him, asking to be excused at 2:30 instead of 3:30, their customary time, in order that they might enjoy more of the snow. The principal answered the petition by saying that neither "A. M." nor "P. M." was treated into their stores and pulled their wares in off the sidewalks after them. Front street therefore presented rather a quiet appearance while the frost lasted. Yesterday morning, however, the procession of farmers with loads of potatoes began to arrive, and the street began to look natural again, with the sidewalks blockaded with oranges, apples, sweet potatoes, bananas, etc. A dealer says the amount of potatoes brought to this market this season is something enormous, and, as prices have been better than usual, the farmers have received a large amount of money for them. The number of sacks of potatoes that has been shipped from here to San Francisco is immense. Last summer it was predicted that the potato crop would be a failure, but a timely rain saved it. Then rains came at the time for digging the potatoes, and it was predicted that the crop was ruined, but things came out all right in the end, and there were more potatoes and better prices for them than usual.

THE LATE "JACK" HOLMAN.

John Warren Holman, who died in this city Sunday morning, was an old resident of Portland, having been in business here many years. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1848, and came to Oregon in 1868, in company with his mother, three brothers and a sister. In 1873 he became head of the firm of Holman & Co., forwarders, and he was still interested in the business when death summoned him from the cares of life. In his youthful days, Mr. Holman was an active member of the volunteer fire department of this city, and he was at one time assistant chief engineer.

FISH SCARCE AND HIGH.—Two fine chinook salmon, displayed by a fish dealer yesterday, cost him, he said, 13 cents per pound, whole. After dressing them, if he sold them for 20 cents per pound he said he would make practically nothing. It is easy to see why the laws in regard to fishing and the prices offered for fish by cold-storage concerns do not please market men. Halibut is taking the place of salmon, and is largely sold here now. Some 50 pounds of carp was received here yesterday, the first of the season, and was snapped up by restaurant men and others. The dealer remarked that the day was coming, and was not far off, when the people would not be able to get salmon, and then they would be glad that the carp had been introduced here. Catfish are beginning to come into market, and the fishermen demand 7 cents a pound for them, "skun." The days of plenty and cheap fish, it appears, are gone.

NEED MORE RAIN.—Charles McElrath, manager of the Hotel Perkins, has returned to Portland after quite an extended trip in California. He says Los Angeles is now harvesting her "tourist crop," the only one which never fails there, and the city is therefore full of strangers. Hotels are crowded, and even lodging-houses are overrun with customers. The northern and central portions of the state are enjoying the benefits of moderate rains, but the southern counties require considerable moisture before a crop can be matured. Whether they will get this rain or not is a question that is now worrying the farmers, fruitraisers and stockmen of that region. Crops are not actually suffering yet, and people are hopeful.

MUST SUE FOR HIS OWN PROPERTY.—Justice Kraemer has decided that a man has no right to take forcible possession of his own property, but must proceed to recover the same by legal means, even if he does find it in another man's possession, as in the case of William Iseensee, whom P. Kautz sued for damages. Iseensee disposed of two pulleys to some mill men, on credit; the mill men sold them to a third party, who then sold them to Kautz, a logger, at Stevenson, Wash. Iseensee found them in Kautz's possession, and, placing his hand on his hip pocket in a threatening manner, walked up and took them away. Justice Kraemer awarded Kautz $50 damages.

AGAINST ELECTROLYSIS.—At the meeting of the water committee this afternoon, and long-talked-of ordinance intended to protect the water mains and gas mains from injury from electrolysis will probably be brought up. It will be examined, and, if approved, will be forwarded to the council with a request for its passage. The ordinance will, it is supposed, forbid electric railway companies, electric light companies and others using electric wires from connecting ground wires with gas or water pipes, by which some service pipes in portions of the city have already been destroyed.

LECTURE ON CREMATION.—Frank B. Gibson, secretary of the San Francisco Cremation Company, who is visiting Portland at the request of some prominent citizens, interested in the establishment of a crematory here in Portland, will give a lecture this evening at the Unitarian chapel, corner of Seventh and Yamhill streets, on the subject, "Cremation, or the Burial of the Dead." The public and all persons interested are cordially invited to attend. There will be no admission fee.

mentioned, so he would take it that they meant the former, and they didn't get the holiday. Now the boys of a certain class are going to turn the tables on him, and follow his rule, that when neither "A. M." nor "P. M." is mentioned, to take the former. A good many entertainments are being prepared at the school, and the stage is always in demand for rehearsals. In order to avoid any conflicts, the principal writes the name of the class that has engaged the stage on a bulletin board, and also the time they are to have it. But Professor Grout made an important omission by posting a notice for a certain class today from 3:20 to 4, and not following the time with the A. M. or P. M. The boys saw the omission quick enough, and intend to take advantage of it by at least not going around at 3:20 P. M.

MAY GET A RELATIVE'S MONEY.—It seems that Isaac Friedman, who runs a South Portland butcher shop, is destined to be a rich man. A short time ago Julius Friedman, a wealthy citizen of San Francisco, died, but left none of his estate to blood relations, instead bestowing the whole amount of his estate, which was estimated at between $750,000 and $800,000, to charitable institutions. His reason for doing this is not the cause of any quarrel, for he hardly ever had any dealings or even correspondence with his relatives, but it was simply on account of eccentricity. When Isaac Friedman heard of his cousin's death, he began corresponding immediately with attorneys in the Bay city, with the result that suit was brought in the superior court to set aside the will, and Mr. Friedman was telegraphed to go at once to San Francisco, where he now is. Meager telegraphic dispatches say that the suit has been withdrawn with the permission of the court to enter it again any time within a year. This was brought about after a conference by the attorneys for the plaintiff and the executors of the will. While nothing positive has been given out, it is rumored Mr. Friedman decided to settle the case for $50,000.

TO STOP A LEAK.—An embankment being thrown up on Front street, all the way from Madison to Jefferson, attracted considerable attention yesterday, many people thinking the railroad track was to be laid from Pennoyer's mill. The excavation is being made for the purpose of lowering the 16-inch water main for a distance of one block, in order to prevent wagon wheels striking the top of the headgate at Jefferson street. A great deal of heavy hauling is done along Front street, and the wagon wheels resting on the headgate kept the mains leaking at that point.

BOY ORATOR.—William Gwynn, who has been traveling through the state in the interest of temperance, and who has gained the name "the boy orator," has come to Portland to reside. He has identified himself with the Young People's Christian Temperance Union, of the city, and will give an address at its mass meeting next Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, in the First United Presbyterian church. J. E. Burke, who was lately chosen superintendent of the "million vote" department of the organization, will also be introduced.

ON THE FOURTH SPAN.—Work was resumed on the Madison-street bridge yesterday, and the fourth span is now completed, with the exception of the wood blocking. The bridge is practically free of drift, as the piles of the fourth span have been pulled up, permitting the floating logs and branches to resume their journey down stream. In two weeks' time, it is thought, the bridge will be finished as far west as the draw. The workers complained yesterday of a strong down-stream wind, that made things disagreeable.

POOR-FARM FIGHT.—A little row at the poor farm has culminated in the arrest of William Kenny, a nurse, for assault and battery on J. P. Strowbridge, assistant superintendent. The complaint avers that William Kenny "did assault and beat the complainant, who was then and there within striking distance." Kenny was released on $10 cash bail, and the case has been set for Thursday, in Justice Kraemer's court.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS' BALL.—The anniversary ball of the K. of P. last night drew probably the largest crowd of participants ever assembled at the Armory. All the local lodges of the city contributed to its success, and the event will long be remembered with pleasure by the Knights, their families and friends.

Will Leave for New Mexico.

T. M. Hurlburt, United States inspector of surveys, who has been sojourning at his home, on East Sixth street, for several weeks, expects soon to receive orders to resume his work. He will probably go into New Mexico to look after surveys in that district, and will be gone a long time. During his stay he has been engaged in making up his reports of former work and looking to the rebuilding of his dwelling. His work takes him to the out-of-the-way and remote districts, and sometimes it is months before his party touches settlements. While the work is novel and new, and strange scenes are constantly encountered, it is rather lonesome. Mr. Hurlburt tells of some interesting experiences visiting the abandoned homes of the cliffdwellers on his former trips.

WELL KNOWN TO THE POLICE

Ex-Convict, Who Is About to Become An Author.

"Judge" George Hayford, who, according to the Denver Post, is "going to write a book on prison life, after having volunteered to serve a term in the Oregon penitentiary," is well known to the police of Portland. One Portland detective will long remember him as being the man who jumped off the train in Idaho, at the risk of breaking his neck, in order to avoid the Oregon penitentiary. On that occasion, he was being brought from St. Paul to answer seven different charges of forgery in Portland. The officer recaptured Hayford, at an expense of $100 and a loss of 16 hours' time, and Hayford was afterward sentenced to the penitentiary by Judge George for one year on each of the counts, but as each year ran concurrently, the philanthropist was liberated after serving 12 months.

The manner of his escape from the officer showed that Heyford was daring and desperate. It was night. The train had just left a remote station in Idaho when he asked Mr. Ford's permission to visit the toilet. The detective accompanied him to the door, but instead of opening that one, he opened the outer door of the car and jumped off the platform into the darkness. He had, it is said, formerly been a train man, and understood alighting from swiftly moving trains, so he escaped unhurt. The cars were stopped, and Hayford was trailed through about a foot of snow until finally overhauled. The police here think this narrative should be included in the book he is to write on "Prison Abuses and the Sufferings of Men in Stripes."

WILL BE ARRESTED.

Bad Boys Are Killing Robins in the Parks.

A number of boys were seen Sunday shooting robins on Park street, near Columbia, with air guns, bean shooters and other implements of torture. This practice is prohibited by law, and the police are determined to put a stop to the barbarous habit some boys have of killing song birds. Heroic treatment will be given those apprehended, and violators of this law need expect little sympathy in the police court. One of the chief attractions of Portland to tourists in the spring and summer is the large number of song birds that abound in the parks and lawns, and there is a determination on the part of the authorities to protect these from the malicious miscreants who would kill them.

The city law prohibiting the killing of robins is in city ordinance No. 3983, section 31, and is as follows:

"Any person who shall, within the corporate limits of the city of Portland, kill any robin, or offer for sale or other disposal, any robin that has been killed by himself or any other person, whether killed within the city limits or not, shall, upon conviction thereof in the police court, be punished by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $20, or by imprisonment in the city jail, not exceeding 10 days."

WORK OF CONFERENCE.

Colored Ministers Transact Business at Zion Church.

The annual conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church continued in session yesterday at Zion church, with Rev. Rev. T. Brown in the chair. The conferen was addressed by Mrs. Lockett, of San Francisco, who spoke on the sufferings of the negro race. James Fulliliove, of Portland, also spoke on the progress of the race. These addresses were responded to on behalf of the conference by Rev. M. W. Bynum, of San Jose.

The chairman, Rev. T. Brown, read a letter, and the annual address of the bishop. As was announced previously, all the colored pulpits in the city were filled by the visiting ministers.

A big real estate deal was consummated in this city this forenoon. A deed was made by J. Frank Watson, of Portland, J. M. Phy and Lydia Phy, of Union, and M. L. Nickels, and J. C. Nickels, of Baker City, conveying all their right, title and interest in the Cook warehouse property and adjoining property, located on Jefferson and Greenwood streets, in the city of La Grande, also a lot on Seventh street, with 120 feet front, to A. A. Gust, of Butte, Mont., and C. W. Nessly, of La Grande. The property gives a 200-foot front and 300 feet track room, thereby rendering the place conveniently located for a commission house.

CATHEDRAL CLASS RESUMED

Eight Lectures on Old World Shrines Will Be Given.

On February 27, the first lecture of the second season of the Cathedral class of the First Presbyterian church will be given, when Alexander Thompson will lecture on "Athens and the Parthenon."

So much interest was aroused last year by the series of studies on European cathedrals that it was decided to pursue a similar course this winter. The general topic will be "Old World Shrines." The places selected for study are those associated with great historical events or famous men and will be of interest to all students of art, history and literature. The management has been fortunate to secure for the different evenings men who have visited the places under consideration.

The Farrar collection of 30,000 stereoptican slides has been placed at the disposal of the church and the same lantern used last season has been engaged.

A collection of colored slides made from the paintings of J. James Tissot, illustrating the life of Christ, has been secured.

The programme for the season follows: February 27, "Athens and the Parthenon," Alexander Thompson. March 13, "At the Seat of the Caesars," Rev. H. W. Kellogg, D. D. March 27, "Napoleon's Paris," Rev. Edgar P. Hill, D. D. April 10, "The Scott Country," Robert Livingstone. April 24, "At Shakespeare's Shrine," Professor James F. Ewing. May 8, "Historic London," Rev. A. A. Morrison, Ph. D. May 22, "Tissot Evening."
