FORMONUMENTFUND

Effort to Be Made at Once to Increase It to $20,000.

SOUVENIR BUTTONS WILL BE SOLD

Made of Metal From a Cannon Captured at Manila, They Ought to Be Popular.

The project for a monument to the soldiers of the Second Oregon Regiment who lost their lives in the Spanish and Fillpine warr is to be revived and pushed to a successful issue. An effort will be made to increase the fund to $20,000, as it is be- est withdrawal is A. J. Ray, who will not lieved that a suitable monument cannot be built for less. Subscriptions to the fund amount to about $10,500, of which 1963 18 has been paid.
Buttons made of metal from the captured cannon which was received in Portland some time ago will be sold to increase the fund. This cannon is one of eight pieces of artillery surrendered to the Sec-ond Oregon when Manila fell, August 13, 1898. It has an historical interest, as it was cast in 1776. Today it is in position in the Armory, not far from the caskets containing the bodies of Oregon men who pression go out that I would support a ticket running on the free-sliver platform. For, while I am a Democrat, I will never vote for any man who supports free silver at "15 to I," either with or without the consent of other nations.

While I would be much pleased in making Mr. Bryan's visit pleasant, I conceive it to be the duty of those who do not approve of these principles to resulter it.

fell in the Philippines,
General Owen Summers, who commanded the Second Oregon, has had drawings made of the buttons. Two kinds will be made, one to be sold only to ex-members of the Second Oregon, and the others to be sold to the general public. Of the first class 1200 will be made, and they will be offered at 50 cents. Of the second class 10,000 will be made, and they will be sold at 25 cents. In the center of the soldiers' button will be the seal of the Batty wants him. In any event, he will be reminded of the fact this Fall, if not tal O inclosing the figure 2. The legend will be: "Army 8 Corps, May 2, 1898, August 7, 1899." The button to be sold to will be: "Army 8 Corps. May 2, 1896, August 7, 1899." The button to be sold to the public will have the figure of a soldier in uniform and the inscription: "Second to the public will have the figure of a soldier in uniform and the inscription: "Second to the public will be the p in uniform and the inscription: "Second certain that I will not vote for a man like Oregon, U. S. V. Souvenir Captured Cannon, Manila, P. I." The following cuts subject are held open for only sufficient show what the buttons will look like. This time for reply by wire. Nor do I see why we should be obliged to vote for such timber

The Soldiers' Button.

And this is the button to be sold to

As fast as the buttons are manufactured they will be placed in the hands of individuals, societies, military organizations and others who will be expected to take a patriotic interest in the sale of them. The sale will not be confined to Portland, but will be extended to all parts of the state. mbers will be sent to the County Clerk of each county. Educational institutions will be asked to do their share of the work, and, if School Boards do not offer objection, the aid of the public school children will be enlisted. Company F, of the National Guard, has ordered 50 buttons. Societies or persons destring to order large numbers of the buttons may municate with General Summers

The button undertaking is for the present in the care of General Summers. He does not wish to have the entire manage-ment of the business, and will ask the ap-politment of a committee.

If all the buttons are sold, and there is no reason why they should not, $3100 will be added to the fund. Other plans for the enlargement of the fund are in contempla on. One is for a picnic or series of chics in the Summer, and another is for a sham battle between the Second Oregon and the National Guard at Irvington Park on July 4. Besides, the British residents of Portland are planning an entertainment for the benefit of the fund. As they never do anything by halves good results may be expected from their effort. Speaking of the monument fund yester-day. General Summers said: "A monu-ment worthy of the brave men of the Second Oregon cannot be erected for less than $20,000. A united effort should be made all along the line to increase the fund to this amount. The sale of the buttons made of bronze metal from the captured cannon will give every one an opportunity to contribute to the fund and receive a valuable souvenir in return. I trust that substantial aid will be given to the fund to the conditions. to the fund to the end that the monument may be completed at the earliest practicable moment."

JAY BEACH IN PORTLAND

covers an Enormous Tusk of a Mammoth-Has Faith in Nome.

Jay Beach, for many years the most ent horseman in the Pacific Northwest, was in the city yesterday, Mr. Beach is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the owner of old Altamont, who for many years gave this city the distinction of having the greatest sire of extreme speed in harness horses that ever lived. Old Altamont brought fame to Beach, but did not bring him fortune, as his merits were not discovered until late in life. Beach suffered in common with the rest of the horsemen during the hard times, and gradually drifted out of the business, but never gave up the old horse, which he had raised from a colt. About two years ago, while the sons and daughters of Altamont were traveling in the fastest company on the turf and winning money and laureis for their owners. Mr. Beach placed Altamont in priation for the purpose.

A fine-looking, portly, middle-aged man, who must have weighed 29 pounds, called to say that he was inclined to tackle, the job. He said that 39 years ago he shifted the care of a friend in Oakland and struck out for Kotzebue Sound in search of gold. The party with Mr. Beach was not exup the big flagpole then standing on the plaza, which was about 200 feet high, and "the first that ever burst into that actly silent sea," but they came very near being, and they found just as little gold as those who followed them. The Sum-mer of 1838 was spent prospecting for do such a job now, and there were no funds to provide a derrick nor to put a quartz mines, but nothing of value was found, and in January, 1899, the party first heard of the Nome discoveries and started overland for that rich district. As they were among the first in the field, some good claims were secured. Mr. Beach is fully as conservative and averse to committing himself as he was in the days when he had to answer the frequent question, "How fast do you think that colt will go next year?" but he admits that he "did very well," and he will return as soon as navigation opens in the Spring. While Mr. Beach found no gold in the Kotzebue country, he did make a find that will undoubtedly prove fully as valuable as a great many gold claims. While descending a river emptying into Kotzebue Sound, with his brother, they discovered the tusk of a mammoth, and judging from the dimensions of the relic, the animal was undoubtedly one of the largest of his race.

The tusk, so far as known, is the largest that has ever been discovered. It is 12 feet 10 inches in length and 22% inches in circumference at the largest point. A cavity at the base, where the tusk joined the head, terminates something less than a foot from the end, and the remainder of the tusk is solid, and the whole is in an excellent state of preservation. A thin scale which covers the outside has been broken in places, and a very small plece has been broken from one side of the tip. Otherwise, the tusk is in perfect condition. The tusk has a steer's-horn wist which is selden seen to relies of twist, which is seldom seen in relics of this kind heretofore discovered. The im-mense proportions of the tusk can be understood when it is stated that the argest one on exhibition at the World's Fair in Chicago was but 7 feet 6 inches long, while those of the skeleton at St Petersburg are but 9 feet 3 inches, and previous to the discovery of the one found by Mr. Beach was the largest known to be in existence.

The tusk was found July 30, 1898, on the Buckland or Konguk River, 120 miles from its mouth. About a foot of the tip end of the tusk protruded from a bed of blue gravel, just above the surface of the water at the base of a high perpendicular bank of the river. This gravel was of a bank of the river. This gravel was of a tenacious nature, giving evidence of having been a lake or ocean bed. The action of the water had begun to cut this gravel bed away, hence it is likely that during the next season the tusk would have been caught and taken away in the next yearly ice jam, and destroyed.

The section of the country where this him in health.

* tusk was discovered is particularly rich in mammoth remains, but as the accident of their exposure is entirely due to the caving off of banks and cliffs which are being undermined by the action of the swift current, they are inevitably caught and broken and ground in pieces by succeeding ice jams, or, should they escape this, the atmospheric action of the rigor-ous climate soon destroys them, the sucessive freezings and thawings while the are permeated with moisture being partic larly destructive. The value of the great relic runs into and, although its discovery was made known but a short time ago the Smithsonian Institution at Washington and a number of other prominent muse ums in various parts of the country are already bidding for it. Mr. Beach takes considerable interest in such matters himself, and states that if his claims turn out well during the coming Summer, he will endeavor to buy the interest of his partners in the venture and keep the tusk Regarding the richness of Nome, Mr. Beach is very enthusiastic, but states that there is no necessity for any hurry in starting, as the parties who leave the lasof May will reach the beach as soon as those who leave earlier. Two years' absence from civilization has left Mr. Beach almost entirely out of touch with the horse business, and he had but little to say about them, except that old Altamont was looking well and frisky in spite of the weight of his 25 years. Tournine, the last of the Altamont-Tecora coits owned by Mr. Beach, broke his leg, and before it had fully recovered stepped on a nail and died from blood poisoning. He was larger and in many ways more promising than either of his fast brothers-Chehalis 2:06%, or Del Norte, 2:08-and Mr. Beach expected great things from him had he lived. Tecora, the dam of so many of the fast Altamonts, died of old age last Winter. Mr. Beach returned to California last evening, and will remain with his family at Oakland until he starts north in about two months.

NOT UNDER BRITISH RULE

BOERS WILL MOVE TO NEW LANDS RATHER THAN SUBMIT.

Returned Ultlander, Who Is an American, Compares Taxation in the Transvaul With Atlin.

C. W. Thompson, who spent nearly seven years mining in the Transvaal, is regis-tered at the Perkins from Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Thompson is married to a daughter of a burgher, and is therefore natur-ally in sympathy with the Boers, whom he thinks never can be conquered. "Pre-toria will probably be taken by the Brit-ish within the next six months," he said, and the entire Transvaal Republic may become an English colony, but the burghers will leave as they have already twice left their homes in South Africa, rather than submit to British rule. They can yet find wild lands to the northward, and if necessary they may choose to become subjects of Emperor William, as the distance is not great to the German colony in South Africa."

Mr. Thompson is an American by birth, and has not transferred his allegiance. While in the Transvaal he was known as an Uitlander, but says he never felt the hand of Oom Paul's Government to an extent approaching oppression. "Ultlanders are not taxed," he says; "it's the property that is taxed. The Boers were originally a pastoral people, but when the Johannesburg mining excitement broke out, the South African Republic levied a duty of 25 per cent on imports. When the British became numerous, they made a practice of trampling on the Transvaal when that personage appeared amongst them, but the Uitlanders were never sub-jected to the indignities American miners have stood in the Atlin country during the recent rush for gold to that region. I tnow whereof I speak, as I have been to Atlin and have the documents to show how the mounted police, who collected customs at Log Cabin, and at Atlin City, served

Here Mr. Thompson produced a receipt for customs duties signed by the Cana-dian collectors, and continued: "The aver-age duty on a prospector's outfit was 35 per cent, and unless each of us gave these collectors a few dollars on the our outfits were detained in bond for days at a time. We could not even use any of the provisions we had brought in from Skagway, but were compelled to put up at the hotels, where the rate charged was at the notes, where the rate charged was $5 a day. After paying the chormous duty at Log Cabin, and tipping the collectors, we were subjected to more indignities at Atlin City."

Mr. Thompson here stood up, suspended his watch by its chain, and while the timepiece was dangling from his vest he thr w up his hands. "This is the way we had to pose before the officials at Atlin on our arrival there," he said, "and if we did not pay the collectors an extra dollar or two our stuff was again taken pos-session of by the mounted police, on the pretext that everything was not exactly regular. At the postoffice, after standing in line for hours at a time, the anxious miner who was hoping to hear from his family in the States would be told gruffly there was nothing for him. A dollar of two thrown to the official would cause a new search to be made for mail, and the adventurer might then get his letter. Six thousand of us stood this treatment in the Atlin district, and yet not an official was hung and not a petition was sent to Washington relating our grievances." He does not think much of the Atlin country, and will not return there. There are about 200 claims around Discovery and on Pine Creek, he thinks, that will pay to work four months out of the year. These placers will give employment to about 1000 men, and that is the extent of condition the district will are a support of the property of the district will are a support of the district will be a support of t population the district will ever support.

HAMMOND MAY BUY IT. New Report With Regard to the Weidler Mill Site.

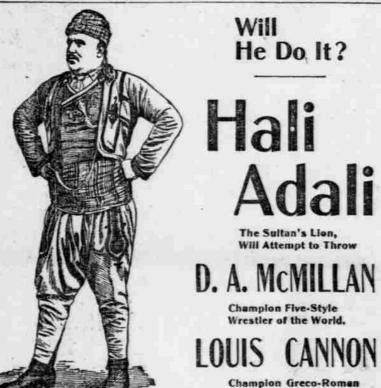

Ever since it was announced that the site of the old Weidler sawmill and several adjoining tracts of property on the water front had been bonded for a site for a large sawmill and lumber yards, millmen and others have been wondering what this meant. Sawmill men generally were inclined to believe that the property has been bonded for some other purpose, as they doubted that any man or company would invest so much money in a site for a sawmill. Now it is said that the Cortes Lumber Company, of Michigan, which is operating a sawmill at Albany, holds the option on the bonded property, and that proposes to purchase the property and at once commence the erection of a mill on it, with a capacity of 500,000 feet of lumber or thereabouts per day. It is learned that the Cortes Lumber Company is only another name for A. B. Hammond, and this gives a stronger color of truth to the report concerning the purchase of the property and the erection to build a large sawmill at Astoria, or somewhere in that vicinity. Mr. Hammond is a shrewd business man, and without doubt is fully aware of the advantages offered by this city as a lumber manufacturing and shipping point, but it will astonish some people if he should build a large mill here and use his railroad to haul logs from Clatsop and Matters at Woodstock.

Tillamook countles to it.

The Woodstock School, which resumed Monday morning after a suspension of about a week, is getting along pleasantly. There was much apprehension among the parents over the smallpox scare, as a child of the man who was discovered with the disease had been attending the school, but all danger is regarded as past, and affairs at Woodstock have settled down nook County, and that he was preparing roads, car service and others are at work, and much already has been accomplished. The outlook is that before the year has passed there will be a good road extending northward to the Section Line road, and that Woodstock and surroundings will be provided with a cycle path. The Commis-sioners have decided to improve the Kelly road eastward from the City & Suburban Rallway to a connection with the Milwaukie road, a distance of about one mile.
