Wheelmen are permitted to use the side-walks of Madison-street bridge, pending

There is no particular law to protect the bridge walks from the biker, as the County of Multnomah runs the bridges, but the gatemen have enforced the rules laid down by the County Court, and these rules forbid the use of the walks by bicycles the

ESCAPED FROM TWO THUGS

THE LITTLE LOCKSMITH WOULD NOT HOLD UP HIS HANDS.

Archie Tibbetts Grapples With High waymen, Thus Saving His Money and Watch.

A gritty fellow who would not hold up his hands got away from two highwayen at the corner of Grand avenue and elmont street, at 12 o'clock last night, though he was considerably beaten up. He is Archie Tibbetts, a locksmith, who stop is situated on Yambill street. was on his way to his home on the East Side, when he was met by two small men in black masks, each of whom presented a gun and commanded mim to throw up his hands. He was in no mood to com-ply, so both struck him with their revolvers at once, the barrel of one gun grazing his left cheek and that of the other in the mouth, knocking one of his teeth out. Yet he did not give up, and after he was knocked down, continued to grapple with his asseilants, and actually succeeded in getting away from them. He ran to the saloon on the corner, near by, yelling, "Murder," and a number of men came out. The would-be robbers stood on the rorner until the men came toward them, when they ran off, one down Belmont street, toward the river, and the other northward along Grand avenue.

Tibbetts' wounds were bleeding profusely when he entered the saloon, but he did ly when he entered the saloon, but he did not seem to mind that much. His only re-gret was at not being armed. "Oh, if I only had a gun," he exclaimed, as he gianced toward the spot where the strug-gie had taken place. He did not have much money on his person, and his watch was a silver one. His brave resistance was warmly commended on all sides, and a regret was expressed that he did not a regret was expressed that he did not have a gun of his own.

These two small robbers are evidently with unusual boldness for the past few nights in Portland. Although the scene of the attack was in a poorly lighted lo-cality, he obtained a good mental picture of both of them. They were evidently young men, and were dressed in dark busiuits. The police were notified after the attempted hold-up, and are working on the case.

WORK OF THE DREDGE.

Discussed by Port of Portland Com-

At the meeting of the Port of Portland Commission yesterday, Ellis G. Hughes called attention to the desirability of secalled attention to the desirability of se-curing a reduction of interest on the amount the commission were owing on an overdraft. They have been paying 8 per cent, and it was thought this could be re-duced to 6 per cent. President Wilcox promised to look into the matter and see if this reduction could not be secured, but explained that as covered. explained that an overdraft, which was sometimes increased and sometimes re-duced, was not like borrowing a certain sum for a stated time. He thought, how-evr, that the reduction could be secured. Taxes would soon begin to come in, and there ought to be money to pay what they owed in about 90 days.

Mr. Wilcox called attention to the fact that a balance was carried on the books as due from the state of $2339 50. It was explained that this money was lost in the Portland Savings Bank failure, and the matter had never been settled on the books. It was considered undesirable that this should be carried over indefinitely.

this should be carried over indefinitely, and the executive committee will take steps to have it settled in some way.

The executive committee, after a brief discussion in regard to the machinery of the old tender Louise Vanghn still remaining on hand, was authorized to dispose of it to the best advantage.

of it to the best advantage. The committee was also authorized to dispose of a lot of worn-out rubber "sleeves" used in connection with the dredge, which have accumulated, and which will bring something as old rubber.

Balfour, Guthrie & Co. submitted a proposition offering to pay the cost of dredg-ing within 150 feet of their dock. It was decided that the commission was unable to do this work at present, and it was advisable that private parties should be employed to do the work.

The matter of a "grease extractor" which had been placed on the dredge "on trial" came up once more. The extractor has been condenmed, and the commission has been condenmed, and the commission has a bill against the owner of $11 50 for work done on it by request, and it was ordered that the owner take it away and pay the bill. If he does not do this the commission will have the extractor for the $11 50. Mr. Brown contemplates buying it, to be used on his ranch as a churn, and in the winter for making potato whisky.

The question of what is best to be done with the old city dredge came up for discussion. It was suggested that it be sold and a clam-shell dredge procured in its place, as endless-chain dredges are said to be out of date. It was thought that some one might buy the dredge and the soows which belong to it and fit them up to do dredging within the Select line in to do dredging within the 50-foot line in front of wharves. It was decided to lay the matter over for the present, as Presi-dent Wilcox said the commission had no immediate need for a clam-shell dredge, and were not in a condition financially to played yesterday between the High School and Bishop Scott Academy, the former winning by a score of 12 to 7. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning on account of rain. B. S. A.'s difficulty was in pitchers, and Higgins, Martin, Cole and Ross were tried in the box, the last being the only one that could hold the High School team down. The game, however, was unsatisfactory to both teams, as errors were frequent, and running and batting not up to what it should have been. Madison-street bridge is all but ready for team travel again, and would be wholly ready by next Saturday evening if wood blocks for paving the westernmost span were forthcoming, according to Superintendent Keith's statement yesterday. There will probably be a little red tape to undergo also, as the County Commissioners will have to accept the work before the bridge will be formally declared open. Yesterday the bridge hands were engaged in 'tearing up the rotten planks from each end of the old draw, and replacing them with new ones. The reconstruction of the bridge did not include the draw, which must weather along somehow The score by innings was: draw, which must weather along somehow under its old chords until the County Com-missioners further deliberate on the ques-

Fruit Cannery Outlook.

The outlook for a large output from the East Side fruit canneries this year is regarded as very encouraging. The o'd Oregon Pack ng Company, which heretofore has operated the cannery on the corner of East Seventh and Belmont streets, will have facilities for handling four or five times the amount of fruit this year they did in former wars. The new canners they did in former years. The new can-nery plant on East Yamhill street, be-tween East Eighth and East Ninth streets, will occupy 100x200, whereas the old plant on East Yamhill took up but little more than 100x50 feet. New and improved ma-chinery and modern facilities will be em-ployed in the new building. The frame for

PRIZE FOR ORATORY.

High School Alumni Association Will Give a Medal.

ecial meeting of the Portland High School Alumni Association was held last night, at which President H. V. Adix presided. The meeting was called for the purpose of presenting prizes to the High School students in oratorical contests. Fifty members were present, and took an active part in the proceedings.

Jay H. Upton, who was at the head of the petition for the special meeting, stated that the To-Logeion Debating Society, at the High School, has been meeting with flattering success in its contests with the different schools and universities, in both Oregon and Washington, and has reflected much honor on the school. Therefore, as a stimulus for the continuation of the good work, he proposed that the alumni give a gold medal annually to the winner of an oratorical contest to take place on the fourth Friday in May of each year. The association readily agreed to this, and voted that the medal shall cost from 10 to $35, according to the disposition of the committee, and that the contest be open to all boys and girls of the High School. The question of presenting medals for field sports was brought up at the meet-ing, but it was decided to lay it over until the regular semi-annual meeting, which occurs next month. Announcement was made that the East Side members will give a reception this month, to attend which no alumus of the High School need have an invitation.

INJURES THIS SECTION.

Growing Bellef That Withdrawal of Colonist Rates Was a Mistake.

The withdrawal of cheap colonist rates to the Pacific Northwest has had the effect of delaying and diverting immigration to this section. It was a matter of some difficulty for the Northern lines to turn homeseekers in this direction, and the representatives of these lines at St. Paul are extremely outspoken on this point. It was largely the matter of low i point. It was largely the matter of low transportation offered, they declare, that served as an inducement. The movement was very slow, to begin with, and had just gotten under headway when the ukase went forth ordering a wthdrawal. The tide of immigration for a long time had been toward Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and the Southwest, but this had partially heen overcome. As a consequence of the been overcome. As a consequence of the abrogation of Pacific Northwest cheap colonist rates, the St. Paul railroad men state that the immigrant travel in this direction is rapidly dwindling to almost nothing. As a consequence roads operat-ing in South Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa are already advancing the argument that settlers may move into those states at half the cost incurred in going further into the Northwest. The higher price of lands in those states they appear to overlook in their calculations. A prominent St. Paul official says: "It is a short-sighted policy, and while it may result in gaining a few more dollars for the roads, it will also result in the loss of thousands of dollars in next year's traffic. I know it is desirable to maintain rates, but I believe the Northern lines have catered too much to the Eastern roads, who have no interest in the settlement of the Northwest."

Even traffic officials of two of the Northern lines recently admitted that in their opinion a mistake had been made in increasing rates at this particular time, as many Eastern farmers about to seek homes in this section would now locate
