one for Harry Montgomery. The line of-ficers of the divisions will vote again next Tuesday, for which purpose a meeting will be called at the Armory. Those in Port-land will vote here, while those at Astoria will be permitted to vote by mail, as be-fore. Lleutenant Carroll is the senior WANT A Big Sewer.—The citizens of Southern Portland, formerly Fulton, since the Metropolitan Railway Company is the Metropolitan Ranway company as building an extension to that place, are anxious to have a sewer system estab-lished there. City Engineer Chase was out yesterday looking over the situation and the different streets and examining officer in the Oregon Battallon, after the resignation of Lieutenant - Commander Sherman, and his friends generally be-lieve that he will be chosen. The three-inch rapid-fire guns for the Navai Reserve natural waterways to the river. Southern Portland is situated in the fint south of the old Terwilliger homestead, and a arrived yesterday and are now placed in the Armory. Both of the guns are pro-vided with regular field carriages, as they at deal of water comes down from the hills through canyons and ravines, and to provide a main sewer for carrying this are intended for use in landing work. In shipment the guns had to be removed from off will be quite an expensive matter. En-gineer Chase is endeavoring to provide necessary sewerage without building the shipment the guns had to be removed from the carriages, but a very little work will place them in condition for use. The drill with these guns will be about the same as handling field artillery, instead of ship's guns. They have not been assigned yet and probably will not be until the new Lieutenant-Commander is elected and is large and expensive main conduits at present. One of the large waterways is at the head of Dakota street, but there are only a few persons living along that channel. Residents on Nebraska street are very anxious for a sewer, and ar-rangements will probably be made to pro-vide them with one. There is no street in Southern Portland which extends to the river, and a right of way will have to be condemned through private property from Bond street to the river. When this preparations are making for the opening of the yachting season, which will likely commence now within a short time. A float about 89 feet long has been built in front of the boathouse. This will make it more convenient than it formerly has been to yachtowners in getting to and leaving their beet. The yachts about the outlet is secured, short sewers can be constructed emptying into it, and thus all the sewerage really necessary at present can be provided at reasonable cost. Large conduits, sufficient to carry off all the leaving their boats. The yachts about the place are mostly on floats or out on the land, undergoing repairs and cleaning, prewater from the hills, will cost a large sum and must be waited for until Southern Portland is more densely populated. The population is likely to increase rapidly after the electric railway to that place is force of officials in the City Hall and every one else who happened to be there had their sympathies excited yesterday afternoon by a pretty little girl, of some four Summers, with rosy cheeks and dark, sliky ringlets, who was sobbing around the main corridor as if her heart would break. When asked what was the mat-ter, she said she had lost her father, and then she sobbed so that she could not tell his name. Everybody tried to cheer her up by telling her that her father had just stepped out and would be back in a minute, and all sorts of harsh remarks were made about a man who could go off and leave a little girl in that way. Finally the little one noticed a door down the hall and started for it as if she knew where she was going. It proved that she was the daughter of E. W. Paget, formerly City Surveyor, and now employed in the City Engineer's office. She had aften visited her father's office and was familiar with the building and had come there with her aunt. She wished to look through the museum, and as she was familiar with the locality was allowed to do so, promising to rejoin her aunt in her years a resident of this city, but who is father's office in a little while. In some way she forgot her bearings and was pany. lost, and her little heart was broken. As soon as she saw the door of her father's effice, she knew it and made a break for held in the chapel adjoining the church Monday evening. UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND FOR HOUSES. George E. Watkins, the well-known real estate agent, states that houses are bet-ter filled now, and there is a greater demand for houses than at any previous time for the past 10 years. At this time of the year there are usually many houses vacant, as persons who have moved into town for the Winter are removing to the country, but now there are many strangers coming in, who fill up about all the houses obtainable, and some who are building residences for themselves. A large number of houses are in course of construction, but most of them are for res dences for the builders. There is a steady demand for houses, Mr. Watkins says, and persone having money cannot says, and persone having money cannot do better with it than to improve well-located property. He also says that this is going to be a good year for the building business, as more buildings are in contemplation than for years past. It is very difficult to loan money at even moderate in the following of money now lying idle will be invested in building improvements, which promise to yield good returns.

No CLEW TO MISCREANTS.-No clew has iscovered to the identity of the contemptible miscreants who threw stones at the train coming from Astoria to this city something over a week ago. From the fact that five windows were broken, some on one side of the train and some on the other, it is supposed that the outtended as was desired, it proved a very in-teresting one. The conclusion of a paper on "Heteraphoria," by Charles F. Tor-rance, was listened to with great profit and pleasure. DEFENDANTS DENY LIABILITY FOR ENPAID STOCK.

Answer of Stockholders in Suit Against Defunct Stark Medicine Cfompany-Court Notes.

In the suit of George P. Clark against the Stark Medicine Company and Samuel Heitshu, C. H. Woodard, E. P. Northrup, R. H. Birdsail and C. W. Buchanan stockholders of the company, to recover $820 on account of indebtedners of the Snell, Heitshu & Woodard Co., the defendants have filed an answer, denying liability. The Snell, Heitshu & Woodard Co. claim was assigned to T. G. Green, and by Green was assigned to T. G. Green, and by Green to the plaintiff.

The answer recites that Green purchase The answer recites that Green purchased this claim with a large number of others of Snell, Heltshu & Woodard Co., against divers persons, for the sum of $7.50, at a receiver's sale of certain assets; that F. K. Arnold, receiver, conducted the sale, and that Green did not make the purchase on his own account, but acted at the re-quest of plaintiff, Clark, and that the pur-chase was made for Clark, and Arnold, and that the latter was interested in the claim as a beneficial party, and that the sale is void. The statute of limitation is also pleaded.

The complaint recites that the capital stock of the Stark Medicine Company was $500,000, divided into 50,000 shares, and that C. H. Woodard subscribed for 624 shares, Samuel Heitshu 624 shares, E. P. Northrup 25 shares, R. H. Birdsall 50 shares, G. W. Buchanan 50 shares. The first two subscribed in 1888, and the latter in 1891. It is alleged that Woodard and Heitshu pald an assessment of 10 per cent in August, 1888, and failed to pay a 30 per cent assessment levied in January, 1892, and each owes $5616. Northrup, it is stated, owes an assessment of $250, and Birdsall and Buchanan each $500. The defendants are alleged to be liable for the debts of the company to the extent of their unpaid stock subscriptions.

The answer recites that Samuel Heltshu expenses will be is not yet definitely known, but Mr. Hacheney hopes to have enough left after paying them to make another 5 per cent dividend, amounting to 20 per cent in all of the original indebtedness of the company. C. H. Woodard, G. W. Snell and F. K. Arnold were stockholders in the Stark Medicine Company in January, 1892, each owning 625 shares, and that an assessment of 90 per cent was levied on the stock, aggregating for these four persons, $22,500. At this time it is stated that the Stark Medicine Company owed Snell, Heitshu & Woodard, a partnership, composed of these four persons, exceeding $22,500; that it was proposed to the Stark Medicine Company that the assessment due by Heltshu, Woodard, Snell and Arnold be paid from the indebtedness of the Stark Medicine Company are credit which year Medicine Company as a credit, which proposition was accepted and authorized at directors' meeting.

It is further stated that the Snell, Heit-shu & Woodard Co. was incorporated with a capital stock of $500,000, in January, 1892, with $400,000, the majority of the stock, being owned by Heitshu, Woodard, Snell and Arnold, who were always fully informed of the affairs of the other com-

The defendants, E. P. Northrup, R. H. Birdsall and G. W. Buchanan, as a further and separate answer, aver that the capital stock of the Stark Medicine Com-pany was increased in February, 1891, from $50,000 to $500,000, and the company proposed to the employes of Snell, Heitshu & Woodard that if they would subscribe for $5000 stock their subscriptions would be taken, and they say they subscribed with the distinct understanding and on condition that the total subscriptions of the employes should reach $500. They say the total reached only $1250, and that the stock was never issued to them, and that they never attended any of the stockhold-ers' meetings, and were never considered as subscribers.

The answer of Samuel Heitshu is of like

Wife's Answer.

Cora May Fleckenstein, in answer to the divorce suit of her husband Charle Fleckenstein, denies all of his charges. She states that the trouble between them results from the fact that he is in bad health, caused by irritability of his dispo-sition, which he has cultivated, making himself miserable and those around him. She further avers that their married life is reasonably happy, and they have had only such differences as may occur in any household. Mrs. Fleckenstein denies using abusive language to her husband, or having treated their adopted child cruelly, or striking the child in the face with a stick, as punishment. She asserts that she has controlled the child by proper means, and has not injured its health. She denies that she stated she hated her hus band, and that she wanted a divorce from him, or saying she desired his death, and him, or saying she desired his death, and intended to marry a wealthy young man. She also denies that she demanded of him to convey to her the title of his property, comprising 16 acres at Woodlawn, and became very angry because he refused to do so. Alluding to his stoppage of speech, Mrs. Fleckenstein admits that it has sionally made her feel nervous and an-noyed, but says she has not taken special pains to comment harshly upon it, and in the presence of the neighbors, as he alleges in his complaint.

Mrs. Fleckenstein has filed a motion asking that the plaintiff be made to contribute money to pay her attorney, and means for her separate support until the case is disposed of. In her prayer she asks that it be dismissed. About six months ago Fleckenstein sued a divorce, and afterward they made
