

DEFEAT FOR TANNER

Cullom Faction Controls Illinois Convention.

THE FIGHT CAME AT THE OUTSET

Controller Dawes Was Elected Temporary Chairman - Hancey's Chances for Nomination.

PEORIA, May 8.—The initial test in the Peoria State Convention today proved a defeat for the Hancey faction. The fight came at the election of a temporary chairman. The State Central Committee had chosen John J. Brown, of Vandavia, by a vote of 79 to 75 for Brown. The result was received with wild cheering.

On taking the gavel, Mr. Dawes addressed the convention. Speaking of trusts he said:

"I wish to state that I do not agree with those who maintain that the question of trusts is not a political question. It is true that trusts have their origin in industrial conditions, for which neither political party is responsible. It is likewise true that the great masses of both political parties believe that some legislation is necessary to protect the public from the evils which must result from the monopolistic condition of the production and distribution of some of the necessities and comforts of life. I believe the people are willing to recognize the benefits which may come in the way of cheaper prices to the community through the limited and proper combination of capital and effort, and they are not opposed to any corporation simply because it is large. But when by combination competition is suppressed and the saving which combination makes possible is not only appropriated by the corporation, but the price of the unreasonable level of prices is maintained, the people demand and shall secure governmental interference and regulation. For the different classes of trusts, political parties, if any, will be as to the nature of the remedy and not in the desire to find it or to enforce it when found."

C. W. Peters, of Chicago, was made temporary secretary. The committee on resolutions was then announced and the convention recessed until afternoon. Nothing was accomplished in the afternoon session, the credentials committee being in session. The committee proved to be controlled by the Cullom faction.

The evening session was very brief. Chairman Dawes announced that the credentials committee could not report before morning, and an adjournment until 10 o'clock A. M. was ordered.

There is much speculation tonight as to the effect which will be the result of today's fight for the temporary organization of the convention on the chances of the various candidates for the nomination for Governor. The opposition of Hancey without exception declares that it will greatly weaken his support, and forebodes his defeat tomorrow.

WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICANS. State Convention Choses Delegates Instructed for McKinley.

FAIRMOUNT, W. Va., May 8.—The Republican State Convention was held here today, Governor Atkinson presiding. After a few preliminary remarks, Governor Atkinson took up the Porto Rican question, defending the tariff policy adopted by the Administration as the best method of raising revenues for the island. He said 5 per cent of the population was poor and had nothing to export, while the other 5 per cent were able to do, and amply able to pay. Said he:

"It is claimed by our Democratic friends that this plan for raising revenue was dictated by the tobacco and sugar trusts. This is not true. Common sense dictates brands the charge as fallacious and false. The trusts naturally wish to buy as cheaply as they can. They buy their raw materials in large quantities and no doubt plan to save, so far as possible, all expense for middlemen. They would naturally, therefore, buy their raw materials as directly as possible from the producers themselves. It is probable that the most of the raw sugar and tobacco now in Porto Rico warehouses belong to the trusts or their brokers."

"But they have already bought the sugar and tobacco now in the warehouses of Porto Rico, and it would be manifestly to their interest to have these products admitted to the United States free of duty. In no way that I can see could it be profitable to them to have a tariff on these products. Reason dictates, therefore, that if the trusts have any interest in the matter at all, they would naturally be in favor of immediate free trade."

He denied the claim that the Constitution extends automatically over the newly acquired possessions. He said:

"That doctrine was repudiated in 1847 and we repudiate it now. As Republicans we propose to stand with Daniel Webster and against John C. Calhoun, and with Abraham Lincoln and against James Davis. The Constitution of the United States extends only so far as it is carried by Constitutional enactment and not by the inherent force. This question is one of the many great problems that are forever settled at Appomattox and it cannot be galvanized into life again by the Democratic party in the coming campaign."

These delegates to the National convention were chosen: W. C. Curdin, S. H. Gramm, J. E. Dana, E. E. Flynn.

The resolutions include a recommendation for a stringent restriction on the civil service law. The platform indorses the gold standard, expansion and the McKinley Administration. The committee on credentials consisted from his seat in the convention Dr. J. H. Hays, of Fayette County, the man who as a Republican member of the Legislature held out and refused to vote for Senator Scott last year. The delegates-in-large and the district delegates are instructed to vote for President McKinley's renomination.

AMERICAN SAMOA. The Stars and Stripes Hoisted Over Tutuila.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., May 8.—Advice received from Samoa announce that the American flag has been hoisted over the Island of Tutuila, and great native rejoicing, and that the chiefs have made formalcession of the island to the United States. The inhabitants of Manua, it is also announced, request the formal hoisting of the American flag over that island, which will likewise be ceded. The natives of the islands will rule themselves until Governors are appointed by the commandant of the naval station. Quiet prevails in German Samoa.

Fighting Laborer Killed.

BUTTE, Mont., May 8.—John Graham, a laborer, was shot and instantly killed in one of the general sleeping rooms of the Free Chicagoan at Hong Kong, on Galena street. He had been drinking in a saloon opposite, with three men, and had a row with them on the sidewalk. He got the best of the trouble, and left going to his home. The man who had knocked down followed him, and, going to the room, shot and killed him. After

NO AID FOR OREGON. Hanna Pleads a Shortage of Campaign Funds.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—It is not expected that the National Republican Committee will lend any financial aid to the Oregon campaign. Chairman Hanna points out that it has not been customary to lend assistance of this sort, and that with the shortage that exists this year in campaign funds, he does not see how such a contribution can be made. He says, however, that more campaign literature has been printed and distributed throughout the state than in any previous campaign.

Most Important Matter to Come Before the Meeting—Question of Subsidized Papers.

CHICAGO, May 8.—The matter of importance before the Methodist General Conference today was the report of the committee on organic law of the church. The conference is to be held at the General Conference of 1900. The report names as the organic law of the church the articles of religion, the general rules as they appear in the constitution, and the laws that legislation which appears under the head of "The General Conference." It is the opinion of Bishop Merrill, the oldest constituent authority in the church, that this report is the most important matter which will come before the General Conference at this session.

Subsidized Church Papers.

There has been a feeling rife in the church for several years that the publishing interests of the church were being poorly managed, or, rather, that in some instances it was capable of better management. One objectionable feature has been the "subsidized" weekly church papers, which are published by local parties. The Pacific Advocate, with headquarters in Portland, receives $500 per year. The editor is sure of salary and the printer gets his money, no matter whether the subscribers pay up, and regardless of advertising. The hard-headed business men have been arguing that the subsidy policy does not promote independence and that a paper will not become independent so long as it can lean on some outside help for sustenance. Inasmuch as the subsidized church papers business men do not own an equal footing with the ministers in the conference, their desire command an unusual degree of respect. The disposition that will be made of these papers is a question of much interest to the people of the Pacific Northwest, but the fate of their own paper is something that has caused no little discussion among the members of the church. It has been a losing game at the rate of $300 per year for many years. The general church threatens to take away the subsidy and to force the consolidation of the papers. The members of the Northwest delegation will probably ask for a change of management. Whether they will be able to hold the subsidy is a question. Much will depend on what disposition will be made of the other papers. The admission of laymen in equal numbers with the ministers again becomes a disturbing factor when it comes to making a change of management. A speech by T. B. Ford's presence here is supposed to have some connection with the Advocate. It is an open secret in the Northwest that he has secured the right to publish a paper for a number of years, and the natural presumption is that he is here to be ready for whatever may happen. There are considerable changes in the editorial and business management of the paper, and a number of the Northwest delegates have determined to ask for a change. Whether they will get it is another question.

Among the exceedingly important undertakings of the conference is that of attempting to provide for the unification and reorganization of the desecrated movement, which has grown to such large proportions. At present the desecrated movement is not subject to General Conference management, and the reorganization committee has the matter under consideration and will doubtless report at an early date. The desecrated are a class of separate members, who do work in the Methodist church similar to that performed in the Catholic church by the Sisters. They have increased rapidly in the last 10 years and had fair to good success in their successful force in the church.

Bishop Cranston and Dr. Hamus. Bishop Cranston, who is now attending the Methodist General Conference, in this city, is in good health and spirits, and takes as much interest in the news of the west as he did while residing in Portland and performing the duties of resident bishop, although he facetiously says that the good times did not come until he was in bed. He says he is greatly gratified to hear of the property that has come to so many of the Northwest towns that were in practical bankruptcy when he was in the west, and is especially pleased over the hopefulness for the future. He has kept in touch with the church by correspondence, and is highly pleased that so many have been able to get out of debt. Referring to the educational question in the Pacific Northwest, and particularly to the failure of the Tacoma and Portland Universities, he says that the result of the outcome was no surprise to him. He had predicted such an outcome a long time before it actually took place. Speaking of his family, he says that his daughter Ethel was in Dresden, finishing her education. Mrs. Cranston is visiting her sister, Mrs. Brown of Jacksonville, Ill. While in Asia, Miss Ethel contributed a very interesting article to the Epworth Herald, the young people's paper of the church. The bishop was surprised and pleased over the extensive interest the articles had aroused, and that his daughter had succeeded in getting a larger audience than he could get.

Dr. Henry Hamus, who is well remembered in Portland, is the pastor of the Grace M. E. Church, is among the visitors to the general conference. He is a sort of privileged character, and goes anywhere he pleases about the building. Dr. Hamus is pastor of the Oak Park Church, which represents an investment of $50,000 and will seat 1000 people. He has been pastor there for eight months, and is getting along very well. He is a member of the Chicago Social Union, and a prominent man of affairs in Chicago, is a member of Dr. Hamus' church. Mr. Hamus is said to be a strong candidate for the Vice-Presidency on the Republican ticket.

Victoria Preparations in China. VICTORIA, B. C., May 8.—Oriental advice by the steamship Tosa Maru indicate that the investigation by the Chinese Government assures them that reform preparations have not yet advanced to such a point as to become an active source of alarm. Large quantities of arms are going to China, but in small quantities for each consignment, and usually for purposes of protection of private interests.

More than 10 of the Japanese immigrants by the Tosa Maru are weavers by trade. It is understood, contracted for by Eastern United States manufacturers.

Arrested, She Killed Herself. BUTTE, Mont., May 8.—Alma Pruden, a young domestic, died this morning in the County Jail from the effects of a dose of corrosive sublimate, taken with suicidal intent. She had visited the housekeeper of John McAuliffe, and after her departure she was suspected of theft. After her arrest she swallowed the poison, and the fact did not become known until she was in the jail. Medical assistance was summoned, but she died this morning.

For Returning Chinese. SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—The Secretary of the Treasury has directed Collector Jackson to detail an inspector from the Chinese Bureau to attend to the making out of papers for Chinese merchants domiciled in this country who are on the eve of departing for China with the intention of returning. They will have these papers in their possession when they return to facilitate their landing.

Went in to Sober Up. BUTTE, Mont., May 8.—The body of John Whalen was found in the artificial lake at Lakeview this morning. It was undressed. Whalen was seen about the resort last night very much the worse for liquor. He is said to have gone into the lake to sober up, and is supposed to have gotten beyond his depth.

SHEEP VALUES IN OREGON. As Viewed by the American Protective Tariff League.

American Economist.

The farmers of Oregon are about to write the opening page in the history of the political campaign of 1900. Early in June of this year occurs the election at which state officers and two Representatives in Congress are to be chosen. Two years ago Oregon set the pace with a Republican plurality of over 19,500. The conditions brought about by the return of prosperity through the triumph of Republican principles and policies caused an increase of some 8000 votes over the plurality in the Presidential election of 1896, and Oregon was taken out of the list of doubtful states.

Next month Oregon sounds the first note in the campaign of 1900. There is much reason to anticipate that an encouraging and as valuable to the cause of good government and sound legislation as was the result of the state and Congressional elections of June, 1898. Oregon's agricultural voters have abundant cause for confirming the verdict of two years ago. Something like 2,500,000 sheep are owned in that state. In 1898, according to the Government reports, Oregon's flocks numbered 2,500,549, and the average value per head was $1.36. It is interesting to note the change in the sheep-raising situation in Oregon that has occurred since the free wool of the Democratic free-trade tariff of 1894 gave place to the protective wool of the Dingley tariff of 1897.

In response to inquiries sent out by the American Protective Tariff League, in connection with its sheep census, 97 reports are at hand from the State or Oregon, the figures are, in substance as follows:

1. Number of sheep owned in March, 1895 (free-wool period), and average value per head: 2,500,549; average value per head, $1.36. (Dingley protective tariff period), and average value per head?

The 67 replies are from 67 sheepraisers in various parts of Oregon, and they disclose the following state facts: Number of sheep, March, 1896 (free-wool period), 63,820; average value per head, $1.68. Number of sheep, March, 1899 (Dingley tariff period), 83,821; average value per head, $2.00. Gain for March, 1896, under Dingley protective tariff on wool, in number of sheep owned, 23,821; in average value per head, $2.21, or 131 per cent.

On the estimated basis of 2,500,000 sheep for the whole state, the increase in value for 1899, as compared with the Democratic free-wool year of 1895, is upward of $1,700,000.

At this rate of gain, how long will it be, under the encouraging stimulus of a protective tariff, before every pound of wool needed by the manufacturing industries of the United States is supplied by the woolgrowers of the United States? How long will it be before Oregon's sheep flocks will have reached a total of 7,000,000?

We print this article as a matter of interest, but honesty requires a qualification. There is no doubt that a tariff on wool tends to increase the price, not only of wool, but of every article of woolen and every consumer. But the tariff is not to be credited with all the improvement in the sheep industry. The business revival consequent upon confidence in the gold standard is the most potent influence. Some things have risen in value on which no tariff has been laid. Doubtless there are many yellow dogs in Oregon today than in 1898.

EXPLOSION NEAR KETCHIKAN. Giant Powder Was in the Chimney—Two Men May Die.

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, May 1.—Mr. Hunt came up from Dall Head Saturday evening, bringing the news of a terrible explosion of dynamite. The steamer R. P. Elmore was immediately dispatched with Drs. Story and Hopkins to care for the wounded, and to bring them here for treatment. The victims were: Ole Sordahl, who suffered a compound fracture of his leg, and serious internal injuries; another man, whose name was not learned, who, to use the doctor's expression, "is shot all to pieces," and has a very poor chance for his life; two other badly shaken up and bruised. Mr. Sordahl refuses to have his leg amputated, though it is frightfully lacerated and splintered, and may cause death.

The four men were in the cabin, and supper was being prepared on an open fire in the fireplace. Twenty pounds of giant powder had been hung in the chimney to thaw out to make it ready for use in blasting. The heat melted the glycerine in the powder, which, dropping on the fire, caused the explosion. One of the men sprang under a table as the bomb crashed to the chimney to escape the effect of the powder, and, strange to say, extracted with

Don't Give up the Ship.

When the demon of disease has pursued you to the very brink of despair, don't give up the ship. When the long, sleepless nights of restless torture and the days of worry and care and pain have shut out the last ray of hope and your tired brain would welcome death as a grateful deliverer, don't give up. Others have suffered as long as you and still have found relief. Mrs. Laura Lesley, South Whitley, Indiana, writes:

"I used to have numb spells that would last for hours; had pains all over my body; had no appetite and my head pained me so that I thought I would lose my mind. After suffering this way for years my health was finally restored with a few bottles of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine." Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold at all drug stores on a positive guarantee.
