SENATOR SIMON AT HOME

TELLS WHY HE DIDN'T ATTEND NATIONAL CONVENTION.
Says the East Was Watching Oregon's Election With Unusual Interest—Canal Will Be Built.

Senator Joseph Simon reached home yesterday morning from Washington City. He was a busy man from the time he arrived at his office until office hours were over. Numerous calls, both personal and political, were anxious to see the Senator. Some of them waited for an hour or more for their turns to come. Mr. Simon gave each a patient hearing, and although looking tired in the afternoon, he received the last caller as pleasantly as he had those of the morning.

Some expressed surprise that Senator Simon did not remain East until after the National Republican Convention, in view of the fact that he was a delegate. He says that the reason for his not remaining were purely of a business nature.

"In the first place," he said, "I was made a delegate without my knowledge. I advised my friends here upon learning of it that I should not remain for the convention if Congress adjourned before the convention met. Congress adjourned 12 days before the appointed time for the convention to meet, and in justice to my business interests here I felt that I ought to come on home. The convention will simply be an endorsement of President McKinley, the selection of a running mate, and an adjournment. I did not think it necessary for me to stay away from my business here so long, simply to take part in that which Oregon would be fully represented by good men."

"Who will be the tal, of the ticket? That is a question I can't begin to answer. No one seems to know. Washington is as much in the dark on that subject as Portland is. We shall have to wait and see."

Washington and the entire East was as much interested in the returns from the Oregon election as our people here at home could have been, and when the news came that the state had gone more than 500 our way there was great rejoicing among the Republicans. The Democrats and Populists had been watching for the results with as much interest as the Republicans had. Of course, they did not join in the rejoicing when the news came. Then, as the majority grew in size, their faces grew in length.

There was especial gratification among the Republicans over the good vote that Mr. Tongue received. There was no fear about Mr. Moody, but some of them did not feel so sure about Tongue. Of course the Oregon delegation was highly pleased with the way his district fell into line.

Mr. Simon says that while all of the legislation in the interest of Oregon was important, none was so much so as the appropriation of $50,000 for improvements at the mouth of the Columbia, which got through at the last moment.

"I took the united efforts of the Oregon delegation right up to the finish to get that through," said he. "And it did look as if it was not going through at all. We all knew how important it was and how anxious our people were to have the appropriation made, and none of us thought of giving up, though it did look bad for the measure. We were practically given to understand that it was one of the question, but we have the appropriation all the same, for which we are duly thankful."

"The Pacific Coast delegations in Congress are making and will continue to make the same kind of a fight on getting the Nicaragua canal bill through. What success they will meet with remains to be seen. The canal will be built, little doubt of that. It is now more a question of when. The people of the entire West are going to bring tremendous pressure to bear on this question, and will not stop until it is settled."

The bill is scheduled to come before the House December 31. I think it is, and then the fight will begin to push it through. You will find few people in the West who do not heartily favor the building of the canal, and its importance is recognized by all thinking people all over the country. This being the case, it will be sure to be built, and the Coast will reap great benefits from it."

The Senator admitted that the result of

WANTS TO BE SENATOR.

Steuensberg Does Not Care to Be Governor of Idaho Again.

Governor Frank Steuensberg will not be a candidate for renomination in Idaho this year, according to a member of his staff. Instead he will be a candidate for United States Senator, to succeed George L. Shoup.

S. E. Meyer, Quartermaster-General, who lives at Boise, and is a personal friend of the Governor, is authority for this statement. He was in Portland yesterday, and did not hesitate to tell his friends that the present Governor would be the next Senator from Idaho. "There will be other candidates," he said, "but if the Democrats control the Legislature, it will be Steuensberg, J. H. Hawley will be the other Democratic candidate. Fred Dubois will be the Silver Republican candidate, and Senator Shoup will be a candidate for renomination. Should the Republicans get the Legislature, Shoup would be returned, but they will not get it."

"What will the labor vote do with Steuensberg? Why it will take a day off and vote for the men who are to send him to the Senate. They know that he is their best friend, and they will stand by him.

"L. C. Rice will likely be the Democratic nominee for Governor, and will go in with a whoop if nothing breaks. "I want to tell you one thing; Idaho stands with Joseph Simon on the Porto Rican question. I came down with Mr. Simon last night. It was the first time I had ever seen him, and I was somewhat surprised. I had expected to see a man six feet three and as big around as a tree. I could scarcely believe my eyes when I saw him. I had so often heard of Joe Simon and his work that I had come to look upon him as a heavy-weight in size as well as in politics. "But as I said he is all right on the Porto Rican question, and if he ever needs any votes, he can find them over in Idaho."

Divorce Suit.
Marietta Payne has sued James T. Payne for a divorce, and for the legal custody of their two children. She states in her complaint that they were married in Nebraska in 1882, and that at Athens, Or., in 1885, he deserted her. She asks for a decree that she be adjudged to be the owner of some real property at Athens, which is described.
