FIGHTING FOR FAIR SHARE

PORTLAND DEMANDS PART OF THE ARMY TRANSPORTATION.

Chamber of Commerce Still Pushing the Matter of Getting Some of the Transports.

But one question of much significance came before the Chamber of Commerce trustees at their regular weekly meeting sterday. This was securing some of e army transports now being loaded on the Pacific Coast. For the past week not only President Taylor and the other trus-tees of the Chamber have been engaged on the same work, but many members of the organization not ordinarily, taking active interest in routine business. There in the big was but one purpose expressed, but one Saturday at Multnomah Field between the was but one purpose expressed, but one conclusion reached, and that was to test, once for all, whether Portland can possibly secure a just and equitable share of this Government business. No new arguments were advanced by any one. Every member of the board appreciated the situation. Every one was fully informed that transports were loading in San Francisco and the Puget Sound in numbers. cisco and the Puget Sound in numbers. Troops, horses and fodder are being shipped from Seattle and Tacoma. Two ger than ever besets a commander on feed transports have recently been or the battle-field. Governor Geer was also feed transports have recently been or-flered to load at Seattle, an animal trans-invited to attend the game and perform port has been ordered there, and another takes away a large number of soldiers in but answered the invitation by saying the very near future. These facts did business that could not be postponed not have to be brought home to any, and the question was asked: "Shall such in-Justice continue indefinitely?"

All the necessary information of prices and quantities available for such traffic as comes from Government supplies, will be furnished in absolutely au-thentic form. Then the War Department will be put on record finally. If Portland is to get any of the Government's patronage, it is the desire of the Chamber of Commerce to have the fact settled, so that every time a transport is loaded it will not be necessary to bring to bear all the state's influence to get one here. A communication from one Russell Palmer was read, asking for indorsement of a project to deliver here lectures on liquid air. The request was declined. Herman P. Emmons, representing Porcupine City, Alaska, wrote the Chamber, asking for its co-operation in resisting Canadian aggression in the mining district of that country. Mr. Emmons com-plained that in defining the boundary be-tween Alaska and the Northwest Territory the Canadian officials were constantly encroaching upon what was generally ceded as American soll. Mrs. Jennie E. Wright, of Portland, Sustains Painful Injuries.

Mrs. Jennie E. Wright, of Portland, who has been taking an outing at Salmon, on the road to Mount Hood, about 40 miles from here, met with an accident that just escaped being serious, a few days ago. She was driving with friends in a surrey, last Thursday, and was thrown from the carriage. Fortunately the carriage happened to be low, and the horse gentle, stopping at the first word of command, so, though she fell between the wheels, they did not pass over her, and the only injury she received was a sprained shoulder, which will lay her up for a week or thereabouts. The accident occurred about four miles beyond Salmon, over rather a smooth bit of road for that section, most of the roads beyond Sandy being-wfetchedly rough.

It is supposed that owing to the improved condition of the road, Mrs. Wright

OUFFN OF THE CARNIVAL

SHE WILL BE NOMINATED BY BALLOT.

Nominees Who Will Stand for Election Will Then Be Voted For-The Coronation.

John F. Cordray, who has been charged with the selection of the royal young woman who will reign over the Portland street fair and carnival in the capacity of queen, has made all arrangements for choosing her. With a truly republican contempt for the institutions of monarchy, Mr. Cordray has ignored the old idea of heredity, and will have his regal maiden chosen by the people, of the people and for the people. Tomorrow bal-lot boxes will be placed in many stores, and any one who has any particular choice as to a candidate for the throne may express it by placing in the box a to be about the only thing at fault. Mrs. Wright will remain for a few days at the home of Mrs. Embree, Salmon, where she is receiving every care that kind friends can give ber, her hostess, Mrs. Embree having been a professional nurse before her marriage, and well known throughout that section for her generous hospitality and many acts of kindness. As seen as the natient's shoulder is well ballot reading as follows, with name and address plainly written: 'Mrs. (or Miss)....

"(Address) "Is nominated for candidate for the office of queen of the Portland Street Fair and Carnival."

The boxes will be opened Monday, July 30, and a copy made of all names found in them. A letter will be sent to each young woman whose name is found in any of the boxes, inviting her to become a candidate for queen. There will be no charge for the nominating ballots, and the girl receiving one ballot will be as much entitled to stand as she who re-

The ballot-boxes will be put out again Thursday, August 2, for the election contest. Votes will be sold at 5 cents each. The person receiving the highest nu of votes will be declared elected. Bexes will be placed in the following stores: Meler & Frank Co., Olds & King, Lipman. Wolfe & Co., Swetland's Confection-ery Store, Heiler's Millinery Store, Woodard, Clarke & Co., Sig Werthelmer's Cl. gar Store, Sixth and Washington; Es-berg, Gunst & Co., Third and Alder; Watson's Restaurant, Portland Hotel office, Chamber of Commerce Cigar Store; Wickle's Grocery, First and Market streets. The honor of having the crown of the carnival placed on her temples will be by no means an empty one to her who receives it. A magnificent upright plane has been donated by C. A. Whale to be presented to the queen, and it is now on exhibition in Mr. Whale's warerooms. While busy with the preparations for holding the election, which is by no means an easy task, Mr. Cordray has not lost sight of the fact that the coronation ceremonies must be as elaborate and complete in every detail as taste and money can make them. It has been de-cided to array both the king and queen in Louis XIV costumes, and the robes worn by both will be truly regal in their magnificence. The coronation of the queen will be a ceremony worth coming miles to see, and will imitate the coronation of the sovereigns of the time represented in every detail. Meanwhile plans for the various arches and buildings are going forward in the offices of the architects, and those who have seen them say that they are on a scale of which the public little dreams. The whole of Sixth street will be one grand scene of magnificence and splendor, with its triumphal arches, handsome buildings, pavilions, pagodas and fleating flags and streamers.

When the king, after his reception at the mouth of the Willamette by a bril-liantly decorated fleet a mile or more in length, lands at the city front, with all his gaffy clad retinue, and the brilliant reception party enters the big entrance arch and marches into the fair, the crowds who are in the city will be giad they came, and will be content to remain during the continuance of the carnival, viewing the grand processions, visiting the many strange and interesting sights on the Midway or inspecting the handsome exhibits with which the street will

RICE-CLEANING PLANT. How the Grain Is Bulled, Cleaned and Polished in Portland.

The three-story brick building at the northeast corner of Front and Davis streets, formerly occupied by J. M. Mc-Davis Craken & Co., is supposed by most peo-ple who pass it to be empty, as the doors in front are closed and there are no signs of life about the place. The building is occupied, however, and a large amount of business is done there in a quiet, wholesale way. The occupants of the building are a rice milling company, who have in operation an extensive rice-hull-ing or cleaning plant, the only one in operation in the Northwest, having a capacity for cleaning 400 tons of rice per month. Rice, as every one knows, has a husk or hull, like barley, and when first threshed out looks very little like the polished, snowy grain used for cooking.

If imported into this country in an unhulled condition, the duty on rice is 75 cents per cental. If imported after the outside hull is removed, but not further cleaned, the duty is 1% cents per pound, and when cleaned and fit for cooking the duty is 2 cents per pound.

There is a large amount of rice cleaned which is done in the fields where it is raised and threshed in Japan. It will, therefore, be seen that the company receives the difference between 14 and to enlarge the hole to six inches in diameter if they find a good flow of artesian water. They propose to bore a hole to artesian water. cents duty for finishing the cleaning of the rice. The rice is received at the rear end of the building, which accounts for first through a machine, which removes the gray coating of the inner hull which covers it. It then passes through a separating reel, which takes out all the broken kernels. These are soid to brewers, PORTLAND, OR.

Next it passes through a machine which The hat can be crumpled into a ball the thoroughly cleanses it of all dust, and then through an emery machine to scour it, and lastly it is run through a long figure and be none the worse for the it, and lastly it is run through a long cylinder called a tumble reel, which polishes it and turns out the shiny, snowwhite grain ready to be sacked for sale, or to appear in puddings, plain boiled or with curried chicken or mutton. The quantity of rice used in the Northwest is much larger than most people would imagine, and the mill is kept constantly busy. In connection with this subject, it may be said that there are four mills on Front street for grinding grain into flour and mush materials, and they are all prospering and their business is constantly increasing. As the best of wheat, oats, etc., are raised in Oregon, it is only nat-ural to suppose that the best of oatmeal, cracked wheat, and the numerous other materials for mush are produced by these mills, and that this is the case is shown by the fact that the local demand for their products is rapidly increasing, and they are growing in favor abroad, so that Portland oatmeal, etc., is now sold in car-load lots as far east as Salt Lake City.

Boring for Water in Idaho.

Emmett Index. The people on the Willow Creeks are busy boring for artesian water, and not without some degree of success. There is quite a good flow near Bullard's ranch on Dry Creek. On Coat's ranch on Lit-tle Willow Creek are two wells side by side that have a good flow, but the pressure is not great enough to raise the water over 10 or 12 feet and to irrigate Mr. Coat's land it would have to flow to a being to 15 feet, so he lets it flow to a height of 15 feet, so he letz it flow into the creek for the benefit of his neighbors below him. At Windle's ranch is a three-inch well that has sufficient flow to irrigate five acres of land. The writer tried to drop a pebble as large as a prune seed into the well, but the flow was so strong that it was thrown out. These wells on Little Willow are about 100 feet deep. The Ban-nister brothers were boring on Big Wil-low near their place and had the hole over 800 feet in depth. They said they There is a large amount of rice cleaned were prepared to hore at least 1000 feet, at this mill, the same being imported and to enlarge the hole to six inches in
