HOW PIG BEAT PYTHON

TABLES TURNED ON BIG REPTILE BY ITS INTENDED PREY.

Small Porker Grew Into Lusty Hog While Snake Was Leisurely Getting Ready to Make a Meal.

There is one pig in New York which has earned the proud title of conqueror over a mighty enemy who was worth many pigs' hides, but did not prove worthy of this particular pig's teeth, and there was a large and hungry python who wanted to eat up the pig, but was whipped all around the ring, says the New York Times. The pig came off without a scratch, but the python lies in a watery grave in tropical seas, unless he has become food for sharks.

The steamer St. Regulus that came in from India and other countries on Tuesday brought over the famous pig, and the encounter between pig and snake was on board the St. Regulus when she was in the 18th parallel of latitude.

When the steamer St. Regulus was ready to start from Singapore five fat, lazy, torpid pythons were brought on board, to be taken to New York. They had been repeatedly fed, and each had a square meal just before embarking and which was hoped would last them during the voyage. The shipper of the giant serpents told Captain McMullen that they would need hardly any food during the voyage.

"But if any of them does get hungry," he said, "you can just throw him a hen, for they like live poultry. As for this big fellow, he has a healthy appetite and is fond of pork. So I have brought along this young piggy. Put him in the cage, for these yere sarpents like to see their prey walking about until they get good and hungry."

The pig was placed in the same cage with the largest python. It was a roomy cage, and as piggy reached the floor he gave a half snort, half squeak, as his eyes met those of the serpent blinking lazily at him, and then he slunk into the corner, anxiously watching the enemy. The snake, however, was too full for utterance, and after a few more winks dozed off.

After waiting in his corner in mortal terror for a couple of hours, piggy was driven by hunger toward the trough which was filled with good mush and the remains of the captain's and sailors' dinner. Even fear does not destroy a hog's appetite. Courage and confidence returned with a good meal, and the pig, after polishing off the contents walked toward his coiled snakeship, and sniffed that part of his anatomy within which his slowly digesting meal lay. The python opened his eyes and smiled benignantly.

For several days after the snake took hardly any notice of the pig, who seemed to be eating all day long. Then the snake began to show a few signs of activity. He would uncoil part of his huge body, and crawl here and there, and one day, as piggy was enjoying an extra large meal, the snake made toward the trough, snuffed the food, and then, looking the pig full in the face, began smacking his chops just as snakes do with their forked tongues when they feel good, as though to say: "Eat on, piggy! What a nice, juicy meal you will make one of these days!"

The pig, who was becoming a hog, pushed the snake to the side with his snout, as though afraid lest it should gobble up his food. The snake was still lazy, and with apparent meekness recoiled itself and went to sleep again. The pig became still more encouraged, and grew hungrier and hungrier, and the more he ate the larger he grew.

With increased size there came over the pig a sense of increased greatness, and not only of familiarity, but also of contempt for the big serpent. One day about noon, when the sun was hot, the python's torpidness left him. He raised his head about three feet from the floor, and his eyes lit up with the most malignant, aggressive fire. He was hungry, and probably also thoroughly angry with the pig's familiarities.

The pig seemed instinctively to understand what all this meant. His bristles stood up and he watched the snake's every movement. The snake in turn gazed intently into its intended prey's eyes, and when it thought that it had sufficiently charmed the pig, made a move forward to try the effect. Piggy, however, outgeneraled the snake and got in the first lick, which was a lightning rush forward and a snap at his antagonist's neck. He got quite a little mouthful, and his young, sharp teeth bit it out. The giant tried to envelop him in its coils, but piggy, again quick as lightning, bit out a piece of the stomach, just where he had been snuffing at several days before.

The snake lashed about all over the cage, while the pig was after it, biting, snapping and trampling, scratching and getting in bite after bite. Several sailors were attracted by the noise, and managed to get the pig out of the cage, and then the python remained, lying writhing on the floor. The pig tried to push himself through the bars of the cage to get at his enemy again, but was unable to do so. The python died soon after, and was thrown overboard, and the pig was put back in the cage, where he spent most of the time at the trough.

M., trace; total precipitation since Sept. 1, 1899, 38.65 inches; normal precipitation since Sept. 1, 1899, 46.21 inches; deficiency, 7.58 inches; total sunshine July 23, 10:00; possible sunshine July 23, 15:09.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Very little change has occurred during the last 24 hours in the distribution of pressure throughout the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast States. The barometer is highest along the coast and lowest over Idaho. Comfortably cool weather prevails west of the Cascade Mountains, and east of them it continues hot, the following maximum temperatures being reported today: Spokane, Walla Walla and Boise, 100; Baker City, 96; Kalispell, 92, and Winnemucca, 92, and Pocatello, 86 deg. No rain has fallen, but cloudiness is increasing, and the conditions strongly indicate that the hot spell east of the mountains will break tonight or by Wednesday afternoon.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Forecasts made at Portland for the 28 hours ending at midnight Wednesday, July 25:

Western Oregon and Western Washington—Fair, except possibly light showers near the coast; westerly winds.

Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington and Idaho—Possibly thunder showers; cooler; variable winds.

Portland and vicinity—Fair; westerly winds.

The following telegrams from the wheat-growing districts have been received at the United States Weather Bureau Office during the past 24 hours:

Proposals Invited.

PROPOSALS FOR RETAINING WALL—OFfice of the City Water Works, Portland, Or., July 17, 1900.—Sealed proposals, addressed to Frank T. Dodge, Clerk of the Water Committee, and indorsed on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for retaining wall," will be received at this office until 3 P. M. Wednesday, July 25, 1900, for furnishing materials and labor for the construction of a retaining wall of timber, brush and stone, at the Sandy River crossing of the Bull Run pipe line, a point about 23 miles southeasterly from Portland. Plans and specifications may be seen and forms of proposal obtained at this office. Proposals for said work must be accompanied by a certified check for five per cent of the amount of the proposal, payable to the order of the Clerk of the Water Committee of the City of Portland, Or., as liquidated damages in case that the bidder, if awarded the contract, should fail or neglect to execute the contract and furnish the required bonds within five days after notice of the award. The right to reject any or all bids, or to call for new proposals, is expressly reserved by the Water Committee. By order of the Water Committee of the City of Portland, Or. D. D. CLARKE, Engineer.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS — BIDS WILL be received by the undersigned until 6 P. M., August 6, and then opened, for the construction of a wharf and warehouse covering about 100,000 square feet and about 800 feet of trestle approach near the mouth of the Columbia River, Clatsop County, Oregon. Plans and specifications can be seen and blank forms of proposal secured at the office of the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad, in the Flavel building, Astoria, Or. A satisfactory bond will be required of the successful bidder. The undersigned reserves the right to reject any or all bids in whole or in part, as per forms of proposal and specifications. Northwest Construction Company.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS—SEALED PROposals, addressed to C. G. Huntley, Oregon City, Or., for furnishing material and building sewers in Oregon City will be received by the committee on streets and public property until 2 o'clock P. M., on the 29th day of August, 1900. Plans and specifications can be examined at City Recorder's office, at Oregon City. The committee on streets and public property reserves the right to reject any or all bids.
