E. D. SHATTUCK DEAD

idea being that justice is blind to everything but equal rights, and if you as a Judge have not held the scales of justice in that way, your failure has not been discoverable by those who have practiced in your court. We have an elective judiciary, and many good people have misgivings as to this mode of selecting Judges, but no man in Multnomah County will say that you ever swerved one jot or tittle from your convictions of right to favor those who favored you with their votes, or to make friends for yourself at any prospective election.

"I am sorry to say that in some cases I have had in some courts in this state my clients have inquired if it was not advisable to employ an associate counsel, who was supposed to have some special relations to or secret pull upon the Judge, a proposition I have always indignantly rejected; but no man has ever approached me with the suggestion that one lawyer more than another had any influence with you, or that you as a Judge were accessible to any influence that did not reach you through the regular and public proceedings of your court.

"To make a court what it ought to be, the Judge should not only be upright, but there be a universal and undoubting belief in his uprightness. The popular judgment of a Judge takes in the man as well as the lawyer. The moral influence of a good man upon the bench is one of the safeguards of the peace and good order of society, and I believe that this community is indebted to you for that kind of influence. Our courts have much to do with elevating or lowering the ethical standard of the profession. Lawyers respond with alacrity and admiration to the unwavering courage and exalted integrity of the bench. A high-toned court will tend to make a high-toned bar. Your example in this respect ought to be an inspiration to our other Judges.

"Now, sir, three score years and ten and four more have brought your official career to its close. Beyond this we trust you will find repose, serenity and peace. Your painstaking and patience upon the bench, your dignified deportment as Judge and your uniform kindness and courtesy to the bar have established relations between us painful to sever, but which will be pleasant to remember. Old age, with its gray hairs and bodily infirmities, may be made beautiful by the reflections from a useful life, as an unclouded sunset may tinge the twilight shadows with the mellowed hues of the morning. You have honored the profession to which you belong, the office you have filled and the state in which you live, and I am quite sure that I speak the united voice of the people as well as the bar of Multnomah County when I give to you the plaudit of 'Well done, good and faithful servant.'"
