NEW INDUSTRY OF CANNING PEAS.—R. D. Hume, of Wedderburn, at the mouth of Rogue River, a well-known canneryman, has embarked in a new venture, the canning of peas, to occupy his leisure when salmon do not run.

LOCAL INSPECTORS OF HULLS and Boilers Edwards and Fuller have just returned from his place and are convinced that he is bound to make a success of his new business.

HE HAS 100 acres of peas this year for a starter. He has all the most approved machines for shelling and sorting the peas, so that the large and the small ones are put in separate cans, and has mastered the art of preserving the color and delicious flavor of the green peas.

MEASRS. EDWARDS and FULLER save the peas put through the whole process, from picking to the final sealing of the cans, and then sampled the peas, and say they were very good.

MOTED DOWN THE RIVER.—The dredge Portland, which has been descending the channel at Postoffice Bar of late, has been moved down to the mouth of the Willamette to remove any sand that may have been deposited in the channel during the flood in the Columbia. The "June rise" did not amount to much this year, and consequently it will not take the dredge long to put the channel in condition for the large ships coming here. There was some complaint from the pilots because the dredge did not go to the mouth of the Willamette first, but it was considered best to situate the channel on Postoffice Bar till the Columbia flood was over, so that when the channel at the mouth of the river was cleared out there would be no more sand deposited there this year. The pilots are satisfied, as they see that everything will be in good shape in a week or two, and they are confident that the dredge can handle sand to suit all creation. The officials in charge of the dredging of the Willamette, where five huge dredges are at operation, and three more are being built, on examining reports of the work of the Portland, write to congratulate the Port of Portland Commissioners on having a "very efficient and economical machine."

FUNERAL OF JUDGE SHATTUCK.—This morning at 10:30 the funeral of the late Judge R. D. Shattuck will be held from the family residence, 46 Fifth street, and the interment will take place at the Lone Fir cemetery. The pall-bearers are: Judge George H. Williams, J. B. Cox and Judge W. C. Hollings. Mr. L. A. Seaton, A. J. Fraser and J. B. Cleland. A meeting of the bar has been called for 8:30 this morning in Judge Fraser's court, Department No. 1, for the purpose of attending the funeral of Judge Shattuck in a body. The funeral being at 10:30, the members of the bar will assemble an hour earlier to arrange for appropriate services at a later date in honor of their esteemed brother, and to be together in plenty of time to reach the residence by the hour designated. All Portland attorneys are expected to be present, giving to the memory of the veteran jurist a unanimous expression of esteem and extending to the bereaved family their condolences.

HARRINGTON CAMP EXCURSION.—Harrington Camp, Spanish and Filipino Veterans, are arranging for an excursion on the Columbia Sunday, August 5, in honor of the camp's auxiliary. The members of the auxiliary will be entertained at the camp, and will be entertained in a manner becoming their past record in similar affairs. Since the auxiliary's organization the women have worked consistently and diligently to further the camp's interests. Not long ago they prepared a spread at very pleasant social given for the camp, and on the part of hosts so perfectly that each member of the camp present still bears an overflow of gratitude. An effort will be made to reach the camp on the excursion. Only the members of the auxiliary and invited guests will be taken by the camp.

UNDESIRABLE TRUCK WALLS.—In the days when the present County Court-house was built brick must have been plentiful and cheap, or expense was no object, as walls were made five brick or more thick, where a wall a foot in thickness would have answered every purpose. Two short sections of such a wall have just been torn out to enlarge the County Auditor's office and the collection department of the Sheriff's office, and the brick removed and piled in the street look to be enough to put another story on the building. It is not a 24-inch wall was deemed necessary in a two-story building is a condemnation to builders of the present day.

CHIEF PARE and ENROLLMENT SERVICES no longer are required. The Saturday afternoon special of the A. & C. R. R. leaving Union depot every Saturday at 2:30 P. M., has made a decided hit with the traveling public. This train runs through direct to Gearhart and Seaside without delays or transfers, arriving at Seaside at 5:30 P. M.; leaving Seaside Sunday at 5 P. M. and arriving at Portland at 8 P. M. Commodious coaches and elegant reclining chair cars make up this train.

MORE SLOT-MACHINE MEN ARRESTED.—Warrants for the arrest of 20 more slot-machine men were issued yesterday by Sheriff Attorney Mann and were called at the police station last evening and deposited cash bail of $25 each. This will be forfeited in the Municipal Court today. The latest arrests were made by Theodore Troutman, Frank Rivers, Gardner Brox, H. D. Law, Peterson & Kitterling, Stetson Brox, E. H. Springer and Anderson & Johnson.

DR. L. J. WYBURN, of Providence, R. I., will occupy the pulpit at the First Congregational Church, both morning and evening, July 29. Dr. Nutting is one of the most popular and eloquent ministers in the city.

SPECIAL PREPARATIONS for the occasion. The Oregonian City River Trip.—The most delightful of river rides. Boat leaves Taylor street Sundays, 10:30 A. M., 2 and 5 P. M. Leaves Oregon City 11:30, 2:30 and 5:30 P. M. Round trip, 45 cents.

SONGS OF ALL NATIONS. Miss Large interprets these to an Enthusiastic Audience.

It is next to impossible nowadays to go to any sort of social function—one that is devoted exclusively to women at least—without hearing some culture and refinement. You need only attend one of these parties to see how the breath of the roses in the garden at your elbow, a very pleasant illustration of this was given at a party given at the home of Mrs. T. B. Trevett's "at home," Miss Josephine Large entertaining a household of guests with a programme of National songs and dances. It was a most interesting and instructive, fully a dozen nations being called upon to furnish a country-dance or a folk-song.

There were rhythmic Swedish polkas, not unlike a Scotch reel, and with more minor cadences to it, the one selected being "Necken's Polka." Necken was the sea king who enticed young maidens down into the water; Anselm Thomas has made use of this old Swedish dance in "Hamlet"—the scene where Ophelia drowns herself. The pathos of Scandinavian music was shown in a sad little Norwegian folk-song. Contrasting with this was the touch of wild gaiety in the Hungarian music, the courtly pageantry of the polonaises of Poland, and the mingling of merriment and brilliancy in the Russian strains.

The second group of songs introduced one into a more genial and health-giving sweetness and address of our own. "The Star-spangled Banner" brought the entire audience to its feet. The French were represented by the lusty strength and grandeur of "La Marseillaise," and the stately grace of the "Air du Roi Louis XIII," which Miss Large rendered with more than usual sentiment and spirit. There was a bold, dashing bolero from Spain, and a peevish gondolier and a reckless tarantella from Italy, while the characteristics of Germany were well set forth by a naive "Ländler," the mysticism of "Die Lorelei," the simple, manly vigor of "Die Wacht am Rhein," and the massive heroic strength of "Ein Feste Burg ist Unser Gott." A notable feature of the afternoon was the absence of the personal element. One could not help but recognize here a Chopin polonaise, there a Mendelssohn "Gondolier," by the name of the composer in no instance appeared on the programme, being suppressed in favor of the national element. It was an arduous undertaking, and one requiring an unusual versatility of mood in the pianist, thus to attempt to enter into the spirit of the nations and faithfully portray each, and yet to be a Christian religion, that will be able to do a vast amount of good in the world. But if they bicker and quarrel and hate each other, the angels will be sorry, and the devil will laugh. For these reasons I hope my nephew as he grows up will always try to promote peace and goodwill between these two great nations—the mistress of Europe and the mistress of America—and that although he lives under the Stars and Stripes he will always keep a warm spot in his heart for the land of his fathers.

READ-SUNDAY'S PAPER.

Tomorrow's Oregonian Will Be Full of Interest.

The Sunday Oregonian tomorrow will contain many attractive features. A full-page article entitled "Men With the Letter-Box," and handsomely illustrated, will present the history of the Portland letter-carriers and incidents peculiar to their difficult calling, as well as give a short resume of the events leading to the establishment of the postal service in this country. The exodus to the summer resorts will be made a prominent feature. A full list of the arrivals at the beaches, which, thus far this year, has exceeded in number those of any previous season, is a recent season; a detailed record of the movements of cottagers, and comprehensive reports of social entertainments, together with mention of noteworthy events, will all contribute to the interest of the article. News of the mountain and interior resorts will also be given, and everybody and his neighbor are out of town, enjoying the same time of rest and delights, there should be no lack of reading matter for Oregonians, in particular, and people of the Northwest, in general, in the coming pages of tomorrow's issue.

Other departments of The Sunday Oregonian will be kept up to their usual standard of excellence. The sporting page will contain interesting features, and special attention is called to an article therein on the classic links of St. Andrew's, in Scotland, and which should engage the interest of all "golf lovers" everywhere. The action of the regents of the State Agricultural College in abolishing the school, that institution is discussed at some length, and the local field of sports is covered fully.

Frank G. Carpenter will contribute another letter from the Philippines, where he is still continuing his studies of native customs among the Sulus. The fifth installment of George Horton's story, "The Unspeaking Turk," will also appear.

The departments of fashion and other matters in which women readers find interest will be as fully treated as usual, and Elsie Osborn will have a chatty letter from Saratoga, the "queen of American watering places." "M. C. Bell" will reply, in her vigorous way, to a recent article of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, published by The Oregonian of recent date, and which gives advisory hints to the Summer girl. "Boys and Girls" Page," Alice M. Wells will have a story which the children will enjoy reading, and there will be numerous other interesting articles and illustrations.

Dramatic matters will be treated as fully as "tween seasons" will permit, and an interview with a former Portland woman, once closely identified with local musical affairs, and now prominent in music circles in a neighboring state, will give an interesting glimpse of the kind, and humor that is without and wholesome, will be given full space.

The friends of Miss Sophie Reinhardt, of Portland, as well as others, will be entertained by a letter she has written. The Oregonian from the Paris exposition. The editorial, literary and news features of the paper will be maintained at the usual high standard. The latest news from China, South Africa, the Philippines and other centers of warlike action will be given, and the developments of the political campaign and in all other fields of interest to newspaper readers will not be neglected. The issue will be replete with illustrations, and among them will be found several clever cartoons on the upheaval in China, by A. D. Whittier.

CULTIVATE GOOD FEELING.

Britain's Advice to His American Nephew in Portland. A British gentleman living in Nelson, B. C., recently wrote a letter to his 10-year-old nephew, born in Portland and a loyal American, from which The Oregonian has been permitted to make an extract. The advice will apply equally well to mature folk as to youngsters. The Briton said in part: "We have a great many Americans in Nelson, and I like them. You know, it used to be fashionable for Americans and Britons to hate each other. The reason was that a war was once carried on between the American Army and the British Army—a century ago, and quarrels ago—and long after the bodies of all the soldiers who fought in that war had turned to common dust, men in both nations persisted in keeping up the hard feelings that arose at that time. Now they are beginning to realize that it is only for those to dislike each other because of what their great-grandfathers did, and that it is wrong to cherish hard feelings towards others even if they do belong to different nations. For this reason, Americans and Britons who are educated, and have clear heads and good hearts, are liking each other more and more. "In many ways they are the greatest nations in the world—the most Christian—the most civilized, any they are brothers. Anglo-Saxon blood runs in the veins of both. They speak the same language, read the same literature, and have the same religion. So if they stand together as brothers ought and try together to develop their civilization and to be a Christian religion, that will be able to do a vast amount of good in the world. But if they bicker and quarrel and hate each other, the angels will be sorry, and the devil will laugh. For these reasons I hope my nephew as he grows up will always try to promote peace and goodwill between these two great nations—the mistress of Europe and the mistress of America—and that although he lives under the Stars and Stripes he will always keep a warm spot in his heart for the land of his fathers."

KIMBALL SUPREMACY

Supremacy of Kimball Pianos is partly the result

Of their many exclusive and protected features, of which more than 50 are secured by United States letters patent.

A new improvement among these is found in the piano action.

Hundreds of skilled mechanics, particularly tuners and regulators, whose peculiar experience makes them the most expert judges and critics, are simply captivated by the manifest simplicity and efficiency of this new device.

We have a complete list of these opinions at our office for your inspection, and the title of sovereignty already bestowed upon the Kimball by the World's Columbian Congress and the master musicians of the present age is more firmly established than ever before by these expert criticisms.

In the majority of cases they are caused by the eyes. You go to church and watch the speaker closely throughout the sermon. You note his expressions, his gestures, the movements of his lips. You are using your eyes constantly during the entire service. You go home with a headache, or else have one in a short time after reaching home. Almost invariably the pleasure of the day is spoiled. The chances are ten to one that you need glasses. Not only for Sunday, but for week days as well.

Come in and I will tell you.
