

CHINA WILL OPPOSE

Looks With Disfavor Upon the Advance on Peking.

ONLY ONE WAY TO STOP MARCH

That is to Put the Besieged Ministers in Communication With Their Governments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The safety of the Ministers at Peking is temporarily assured, the attention of the Government is now being directed toward two objects—to effect the permanent safety of the Ministers by bringing them away from Peking, and second, to hasten the advance on the Chinese capital. The Chinese Government is employing every device of diplomacy to prevent the forward movement of the international column. Li Hung Chang is the main reliance to accomplish this purpose, but he is hampered by the obstinacy of the Chinese officials. Our Government is willing to render such assistance as it properly can, but it must be upon the terms already laid down. It is said here that the Chinese possible means of stopping the forward movement of the column within the reach of the Chinese Government is an instant compliance with the terms demanded by the powers, namely, that the Ministers be put in free communication with their governments. It has been suggested to the Peking authorities that they send an Ambassador immediately to Tien Tsin, clothed with full authority to deal with the situation. If this is preceded by the release of the Ministers from siege, there is a possibility that the international column will suspend the military movement, which may in the end be rendered unnecessary. If the embassy meets the demands of Europe and America, it is possible that Admiral Remy cables that more marines—those who crossed on the Grant, under Major Biddle—are being sent to Tien Tsin to facilitate the forward movement of the military commanders to make an early start.

The advice from Li Hung Chang brought to the State Department today by Minister Wu is that the Chinese Government is desirous of the Chinese Government to escape from its present predicament and certainly seem to afford a reasonable guarantee for the safety of the Ministers. The Chinese Government is desirous of the Chinese Government to escape from its present predicament and certainly seem to afford a reasonable guarantee for the safety of the Ministers.

International Jealousies Kept the Men Idle and Delayed the March on Peking.

THE PROMISE OF SUMMER TREATMENT IN CATARRHAL AFFECTIONS

What Summer Means in the Cure of Catarrh

What Summer Means in the Cure of Lung Troubles

There are contracted during the periods of Fall, Winter and Spring these catarrhal conditions of the head and throat and other parts that are engaged in carrying air to the lungs. The changeable weather, the cold spells followed by warm periods with thaws and dampness, together with a necessity during the cold weather of living indoors with the windows shut up and often overheated, the impure air of closed buildings, all tend to the development of disease of those parts which carry the air to the lungs and to the ears. Not only does the inclemency of Spring, Fall and Winter produce such diseases, but the same causes that produce the diseases also interfere with the efforts of the doctor to cure them. During the Summer months things are different. The climate is warmer, the high winds loaded with dusty particles that irritate the diseased parts that carry the air are absent; there is plenty of fresh air, as the house is kept open, and this, together with outdoor life, so improve the general health that Nature is able to improve all those diseases that attack the breathing tracts and ears. Thus, in the treatment of all catarrhal diseases, that which has been frequently urged is true, namely, that one month of treatment during the Summer, when the liability to catching cold is at a minimum and Nature lends her aid to the physician, is worth two months of the most skillful and conscientious treatment during Winter.

The total expense to patients of the Copeland Institute is $5 a month. Treatment and medicines included. The limit. Patients not permitted to pay more, even if they so desire.

STOMACH DISEASE AND CATARRH

Mr. D. Slavens, East Twenty-seventh and Tillamook streets, Portland:

In the past 10 years there has been scarcely a time when I could eat a meal without suffering and distress afterward. Food, instead of being digested, passed on to the stomach, causing bloating and belching. For two or three hours after eating I would belch and gas and raise particles of food, but could not vomit, and so get relief. My stomach was sore and tender, so bad at times that I could not bear my clothing to touch me.

I also had a bad case of catarrh of the head and throat. I had intense pain on the top of my head, which was so severe at night as to prevent me from sleeping. There was a discharge from the head, and the right nostril was so clogged up that I could not breathe through it. There was a constant ringing and buzzing in the ears, and on rising in the morning my hearing was very dull.

The disease finally reached a stage where, if I had not obtained relief, I would soon have been an invalid. I had lost 30 pounds, and could no longer work. Instead of being able to do my usual business, I was reduced to a state of helplessness. I had a troublesome and violent cough, which was always worse in the morning.

After a time my stomach became inviolated. I had no appetite or desire for food. What little I did eat caused belching and great misery.

I had lost flesh and was so weak and feeble that I was unable to do my usual household duties. Part of the time I was unable to do anything at all. I was greatly worried over my falling health, for several in our family had died of what the doctors called consumption, and I feared I was going into that terrible disease. All my friends thought so, too, for I had all the symptoms.

Some little time ago I became satisfied that the Copeland treatment was what I was needing, and I began a course of treatment, with results that were extremely gratifying and happy. I am an entirely different woman from what I was a few months ago. I will not over my symptoms again, but I hardly have an ache or pain now.
