PIONEER PASSES AWAY IN HIS EAST SIDE HOME.

His Decease Leaves a Vacancy in Multnomah Delegation to Legislature.

Andrew Jackson Knott, a worthy and well-known Oregon pioneer of 1830, and Representative from Multnomah County to the Oregon Legislature, died at his home on East Washington and East Eighth street, shortly after 12 o'clock Sunday night, after an illness which began Friday, September 7. The Sunday following the commencement of his sickness he was in a very serious condition from obstruction of the bowels, and it was then thought he could not recover, but the first of last week, on Tuesday, there was an improvement, and during the week till last Sunday evening his con-dition continued to improve, and indicated that he would recover. Sunday evening his family were very hopeful that the improvement of the week was permanent, but a change for the worse occurred at 12 o'clock, and he passed away. Mr. Knott was born in Ohio, Novem ber 25, 1834, and was a son of Joseph Knott, who was a native of New Jer-sey, born in 1809, of ancestors who were among the colonists. His father was married to Miss Elizabeth C. Wilson, of New Jersey, and to them six children

San Francisco, until the death of the for-mer, were the survivors. In 1850, when 15 years old, life. Knott started with his parents for Oregon in wagons drawn by oxen across the plains, one team being driven by him. They arrived at Portland in the Fall of 1850. The family lo-cated in the town of Canyonville, Douglas County, where they engaged in min-

Company, which greatly helped settle-ment on the east bank of the Willam-ette. He erected in the early days what was then the finest residence on the East Side. He was married in 1853 to Miss Mary E. Tibbetts, who still survives him. At the last June election Mr. Knott was elected Representative on the Citi-zens ticket. He had always been a Democrat, and is one of the few Democrats who had been elected to the Legislature from Multnomah County for a number of years. Since the election his time has been largely taken up with people who called to see him to ask some favor at his hands or to get his favorable consideration for some measure. It is thought that the consequent strain tended to break him down, and left him unprepared to resist the attack of the disease that carried him off. Every one who called to see him received cordial and courteous treatment. The children who survive Mr. Knott are The children who survive Mr. Knott are as follows: Mrs. Fred M. Stephens, Gordon H., Walter, Harry H., George, Mrs. Lute C. McCormick, Mrs. John W. Phalon, of San Francisco.

The vacancy caused by the death of Representative Knott will be filled at a special election. Section 17, article 5, of the constitution makes it the duty of the the constitution makes it the duty of the Governor to "issue writs of election to fill such vacancies as may have occurred in the Legislative Assembly." It rests with Governor Geer to name the date of holding the special election. To save expense to the country, he may see fit to call the election on the same day on which the Presidential election will be held. Elections in recent years to fill vacancies in Multnomah County's Legislative delegation have been held as follows: In 1886, for Representative in place of D. W. Taylor, who resigned to become United States Surveyor-General, and in 1898, for Senator, in place of Joseph Si-mon, who resigned to become United State Senator.

Mr. Knott then engaged in mining in various portions of the state. In 1861 the Knotts purchased the Stark-street ferry, which finally passed into the hands of the decaesed man and his brother, and they operated it until the construction of free bridges destroyed the ferry busi-ness. For a great many years it was the principal means of crossing the Willam-engaged in stockraising until 1858, when to the Coast, he said last evening, was one of pleasure and sightseeing. He took great pride in showing his friends about the city and telling them of its prosperity and grand future. George S. Bowdoin, a partner in the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan, and S. B. French had never been in Oregon before, and expressed themselves as asionished at its growth and enterprise. Colonel Lamont derived his title from having been a member of Mr. Cleveland's staff when that gentleman was Governor of New York. He was President Cleveland's private secretary during the first administration, and in the second was promoted to the office of Secretary of War. He is a well-preserved man of 50, under the medium stature, and very pleasant, though positively declining to talk on politics or business. He says he has retired from the former, and would not even venture to prophesy how New York was going next November. The party left last night in their private car, Olympia, for Buffalo, N. Y., via the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

Mr. Knott was identified with the growth of East Portland. He was one of

L. L. Metcalf, superintendent of the of money order matters. He also had a money order system of the United States. spent a part of Sunday in this city and left that evening for San Francisco. While he was here he looked through the money order department of the post-office, and was so much pleased with the condition of things that he complimented Mr. Whitehouse, the superin-tendent, very highly on his knowledge talk with Postmaster Croasman in regard to the desirability of money order offices doing business through the clearing house. He said in case this is done he house. He said in case this is done he will increase the reserve allowed the office here from $1000 to say $5000. Postmaster Croaseman, who has been working on this proposition for some time, had a consultation with the clearing house officers yesterday, and they will hold a meeting today to vote on the subject, and there is but little doubt about their decision being favorable. In all the prindecision being favorable. In all the prin-cipal cities of the country the money or-der office does business through the clearing house, and it is found to be a great convenience to all concerned. Of course, every bank receives more or less money orders yearly in the course of business. Now, each bank has to send these money orders to the postoffice to be cashed. When the office does busi-ness through the clearing house all these money orders will be taken by one bank in the clearing house and it will be then necessary for only one person to go to the postoffice to cash them all. The First National Bank being a United States de-pository will probably be chosen to take and pay all money orders if the clearing house approves of the proposition under consideration.
