floating the vessel by the use of new ap-pliances, in the form of hydraulic pumps, which it is expected will wash the sand float and be hauled off when the ex-treme high tide occurs, some time in Oc-tober. If this scheme does not prove successful, it will probably be "good-bye, lightship," as she has been on the beach since last December, and it will scarcely be possible to get her off after October 25, unless she is moved overland to Baker's Bay. Robert McIntosh, the first contractor who undertook the job of get-ting her off the beach, moved her 50 feet and after all had to abandon the job and she has settled in the sand consid-

The Life of a Live Decoy Is by No

The use of live ducks as decoys to at-is rather trying on the decoys, which are taken good care of during the week a decoy with a dull thud, splashing water all over the decoy and making him rock at anchor like a ship in a storm.

The decoys keep up a constant chat-tering and talking with each other while the dead ducks accumulate around them,

Mener in Mail-Boxes - A letter-currier found a purse containing a railway ticket and several baggage checks in the letter-box at the Grand Central Railroad Station a few days ago. He turned it in to the superintendent of carriers, who telephoned to the police concerning it. It was found that the purse belonged to a woman who was leaving town. She had checked her baggage, and was going on board the train, carrying her purse crowd deftly snatched it away and dis-appeared. Being thus left without money, ticket or checks, she was fain to abandon her journey for that day and call on her husband for more money. The thief, after robbing the purse of $5, seeing that the ticket and checks in it were of no use to him, slipped it into the letter-box, by which means it was quickly returned to the owner. This was very considerate on the part of the man, and if he were not a thief he would probably be a gentleman. Another carrier found a $10 piece in a letter-box a few days ago and turned it in to the superintend ent. He was a little angry about the matter, having an idea that some one had placed the coin in the box to test his honesty. The owner of this coin may have trouble in proving his ownershi A third carrier a day or two ago found a $5 piece in his sack, and it did not take him long to ascertain from whose letter it had fallen

MARING COOK BAT JETTI PERMANEN -Captain Harts, United States Engineers, who has charge of the harbor improvements at Coos Bay, is endeavoring to construct a jetty there which will be capable of withstanding the force of the waves and will be a permanent structure. The end of the jetty is difficult to maintain, as the southwest storms in Winter pile up mountainous breakers. beat against it and roll over it with tremendous force. In order to vide against the subsidence of the jetty caused by the waves beating it down and flattening the top, the enrockment is being carried clear up to the tramway, 26 feet above low water. It is only in-tended to stand six feet above low water when completed and the extra height to which it is being built is to compensate for the subsidence. The enrockment has been going on at a rapid rate of late, and during August 17,000 tons were placed on the jetty, the biggest month's work done up to that time. Captain Harts will try the experiment of protect-ing the end of the jetty with huge blocks of concrete. He will place at the end blocks, weighing 20 tons each, and see whether or not they can successfully withstand the force of the breakers. It is probable that they will, and if they do, more will be placed there, as it is particularly desired to make the jetty

BRYAN'S WAR RECORD .- Despite the fact that yesterday was Sunday, and the only one of the seven divisions of the week when the mind of man is supposed eschew worldly thoughts and with reverence to godly things, political discussions at various places and at di-vers times overcame the spirit of the day and enguifed the attention of the debatto the great interest and delight of numerous body of bystanders, who are always present on such occasions. At one point, where argument and oratory, facts and figures, flew fast and furious from each contending side, the point at issue was whether Bryan-Mr. William Jennings Bryan-had or had not william Jennings Bryan—had or had not seen actual service as a blood-stained warrior in defense of the Stars and Stripes. After the question had been thoroughly reviewed by both disputants and their adherents, they were, strange to relate, of exactly the same opinion as when they began, and it was finally agreed to leave it to The Oregonian to settle in this morning's issue. To do this settle in this morning's issue. To do this it is only necessary to state that Bryan was appointed Colonel of a Nebraska volbut was never engaged unteer regiment, in battle, and did not even leave the United State

As a result, there is a strong temptation to ride walks in the outskirts of town, if no policeman is in sight, but several citizens have forfeited $5 each within the past few weeks as a result of taking chances. Yesterday a 16-year-old boy, accompanied by his father, appeared taking chances. at the Police Station, in response to an invitation from the patrolman whose beat is at Second and Columbia. The lad was in tears, and the father, too, was quite penitent, promising to see that the boy did not ride the sidewalks in future. Their penitence touched the heart of Captain Hoare, who, after informing them that the penalty is $5 in such cases, let the boy off with: "Just this time, but be careful in future." The father and son left the station considerably relieved. HAD MONEY TO STORE .- A woman called on Postmaster Croasman, the other day, and asked if he did not receive money on deposit. He replied that people were allowed to buy money orders payable to themselves, which amounted to thing. The woman said she had lost some money in a bank at Spokane, and she had some more, which she wished to put where she was sure it would be safe. She asked permission to step into a recess behind the Postmaster's safe, and various ponkets or receptacles in her clothing she kept handing out $20 pieces till she had produced $900. She changed this into postal orders payable to herself at any time, and went on her Temple Beth Israel, Twelfth and Main streets, was crowded to the doors last evening with worshipers gathered to attend the services of the New Year. The services were impressive, the musical portion being most artistically arranged, under the supervision of the choir leader, Mrs. Rose Bloch Bauer. Dr. Wise, the congregation's new rabbi, appeared at his best, and from the commencement of his sermon to the close held the closest attention of a large audience, each individual of which was able to hear with remarkable clearness the rich, powerful voice able clearness the rich, powerful voice

The music was exceptionally beautiful. Mrs. Rose Bloch Bauer's voice showed no trace of the cold from which she has been suffering, but, clear as a bird's, filled every corner of the great temple. Un-der her direction the choir had prepared several numbers appropriate to the occasion. There was an opening anthem by Hanscom, "Hark, Hark My Soul," followed by Dudley Buck's "Fear Ye Not, O Israel," for soprano. This calls for great variety of musical expression and the many subtle changes of feeling were rendered with the usual delicacy and good task shown by Mrs. Bener. The work of construction is, therefore, slower than if plenty of mechanics could be secured. The jetty being built at the mouth of Gray's Marbor now extends out three miles toward the sea, he said, and the channel, although narrower, is considerably deeper than it was. Steamboat expursions to the end of the jetty take pity, which in turn gave way to a quickened tempo and brighter strain for the promise of redemption. The quartet number, "The Choir Angelic," and the beautiful harmonies of the closing "Yigdal," one of the traditional musical numbers, the belower to the Habrary armice. bers that belongs to the Hebrew service further showed the strong work of the choir-Mrs. Bauer, Miss Rose Loewenberg, Mr. Beicher and Mr. Hoeg. The four voices blended admirably, and the interpretation was invariably artistic and satisfying the lights and shades receiving careful treatment.

A fashionably-dressed audience heightened the effect of decorations in the temple. Around the pulpit were clusters of foliage, barely touched with the mellow hues of Fall. Large branches stood in the background, giving the appearance of a collection of potted plants. From the galleries to the choir loft were four festoons of lvy that were very striking.

Dr. Wise's sermon dealt in a large part upon the comfort of God's help, as vouchsafed to them in the past, and his promise to them in the future. He made a vigorous appeal to his congregation to reflect upon the possibilities of the new life, which was opened out to them with the advent of the New Year. His closing remarks were a graphic illustration of the uncertainty of life and, withal, the certainty of divine protection and guid-

The New Year service will be resumed this morning. Dr. Wise will be resumed this morning. Dr. Wise will be assisted in the rendering of the service by D. Solis Cohen. The subject of the sermon today will be "The Hope of Israel."

'Dr. Wise delivered a sermon upon the subject of "God, Our Helper." He said, in part: "Friends, we stand at this solemn ment upon the bridge of time, the bridge spanning the gulf between the 'present past' and the 'present future.' Fondly we turn our eyes toward the shore whence we have come, and yet we may not loiter nor linger; there can be no mined suicide. The animal was, as the men on the barge say, just a plain, ordi-nary dog. Some hard-hearted master had retreat and no returning now. For every beat of the pendulum brings another step forward, and, in the end, the bridge upon which we now momentarily pause is but as the pontoon which an army hastily payment of the dog license, and he had concluded that life, was no longer worth living, and preferred death rather than to be lassoed, dragged to pound and asphyxiated, to put an end to himself. throws over a river in order to make a MONEY SENT BY RED CROSS.-Among upon thousands of men, have been known to pass over a stream in the course of a few hours, with the aid of the single lief of the Galveston sufferers, the wom-en of the Oregon Emergency Corps and Red Cross Society have, with their charfrail structure which they hurriedly rear with their own hands. Nay, more; I have seen in a European land a single piece of rope stretched taut over a deep, abysmal chasm, over which little lads have crept and climbed from side to side, from crag to crag. The present moment is little more than such a link, uniting 'what has been' to 'what will be.' We have crossed the threshold of the past, and the gates are locked behind us. And at this very moment, in which we find ourselves unhoused and unroofed, and the past with its protection van-ished, lo and behold, 'the portals of an-other estate swing open, and amid the loud acclaim of a welcoming host of angels, hither sent to preside at its birth, the New Year bids us an affectionate, hearty welcome.' 'Enter ye, and may ye find peace.' "Friends, a biblical picture unfolds itself before my vision at this moment. The children of Israel are solemnly gathered before their great General and wise leadchildren er. They are resting for a brief hour from the bitter war which they are from the bitter war which they are compelled to wage upon the enemy. Their trusted prophet is addressing them. His discourse takes the form of a simple act, which the Bible describes in these words Samuel, vii: 12): 'Then Samuel took a stone and set it up between Mizpal and Shen, and called the name of it Eben ezer, saying, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.' Then the assembled hosts quietly and thoughtfully dispersed to their different homes. "Samuel, the prophet, reviewing the past and meditating upon the future, saith: 'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us. A deep and lasting wisdom rests in Understand ye well, these words. children of Israel, under Samuel's guidance and guardianship, had not been uniformly successful and prosperous Defeat had lowered their proud banner and that not seldom. The Philistines had fought them year after year, with unwearying arm and that fixity of purpos which a savage animosity lends to th warrior. Triumph and failure had come to Israel and Philistia in impartial measure. Israel, however, had had other and greater evils to contend with, other and more determined enemies to oppose-themselves. Israel had iorgotten God, coys by raising a lot of young ducks. Frank Thorn had 76 ducks hatched out for him at Woodlawn this season, as it and was roaming after strange and hu-man-made idols. Unrighteousness was flourishing and wickedness prospering in the land. Suddenly the prophet, with semi-divine insight, sees a light breaking upon the clouds. Victory had once again perched upon the flag of Israel; more and better than that, even, a new spirit was gaining a foothold in the land, spreading throughout the confines of a country once beridden by the pest of vice and the plague of iniquity. The sun was upon a land which had been storm-swept The love of right and righteousness wa beginning to win over the people. Sam-uel rejoices to behold that his followers are not utterly lost. Therefore, he sum-moned them in solemn conclave, 'he took a stone and set it, . . . saying, Hith-erto hath the Lord helped us.' The past is dead and buried, and he erects this memorial over the grave, concluding the formula of consecration in the words, 'Hitherto the Lord helped us.' God has been your helper in the past, thinks he; the future faces you; onward, then, to holiness and godliness, which it but re mains to add, for many years filled the lives of the children of Israel. " 'Heretofore the Lord hath helped us is true in another and a wider sense Thus far the Lord hath, indeed, helped us, in that he hath kept us alive to wit ness and celebrate the incoming of the New Year. This alone we recognize, that heretofore the Lord hath helped us; henceforth we must help ourselves and one another. God is a help and a helper to the helping. God has been our help in the past; he will be our helper in the future.

"The future? I remember to have read that Michael Angelo, old man and blind, in the Vatican at Rome, was wont to stand before the Torso, the famous frag-ment of a statue, made, possibly, by one of the most skillful chisels in an-tiquity; with his fingers upon the mu-tilated lines, he would tell his pupils how the entire figure must have been formed when it was whole. He would trace out the fragmentary plan, and say that the hand must have had this posture, and the limbs that posture, and that the complete work could only have been what the fragment indicated. Thus we stand tonight before the Torso of time, feeling blindly along fragmentary lines.
Although the head of this statue is infinitely beyond our touch or sight, in the infinities and eternities of time, and although its feet stand on adamant, lower than thought can reach with its plumber. met, we feel assured that fingers divine have formed the visible portion. He will complete and perfect his own work; as-suredly he will lead our hands and guide our tools at the task. 'Heretofore the Lord hath helped us.' He hath made us what we are, he hath given us what w have. The future is unrevealed to mortal gaze, or else we peer into it with eyes that see not. We put forth our hands, wildly and anxiously, to grope and feel in the dim darkness. His own mightly arm takes our hands in its grasp. He asks us: 'Have I not been your helper in the past? So shall I be your keeper and helper in the New Year and throughout all futurity."

Mr. Powell and family will leave in a few days for Eastern Oregon, where they will make their home. Mr. Bentley is authority for the statement that 14 families are on their way to Oregon from his old home. They will arrive here by October 1 and settle in the Willamette Valley. Melons and Boxers A tallyho party from Fairview were out on the Section Line road last Tuesday evening, when they were shot at several times by what they suppose was a couple of Chinamen. They were near a melon patch, and it is thought they were mistaken for thieves intent on rob-bing the vines. The party made a hasty retreat from the spot, and no one was hurt, but for awhile they imagined they had run up against a local Boxer contingent. M. Pulley discovered the accident and succeeded in stopping an approaching train just in time to prevent a seriou catastrophe. The spot is one of the most dangerous on the mountain, where chute and road cross each other and Mr Pulley's discovery and action were very timely.

WANT PASTORS RETURNED

METHODIST CHURCHES ASK FOR NO CHANGES.

Until the Methodist Conference at Ash land tells the congregations of the state who their pastors for the coming year are to be, there will be keen interest among the members of this denomination. This welcome news will probably be received in Portland today. All the Portland pas-tors are not expected home immediately as work incident to the conference wil detain some much of the present week, but news of the appointments for the year will be given out immediately.

Now that the time limit in the church has been removed, a pastor completing his fifth year does not plan to go into other fields. He is not more likely to change than after the first year in a church, and perhaps even less. If by the strating unusual strength in a field and is not ambitious for a wider field, he is pretty sure to remain at his post, while the close of the first year usually dis closes the fitness of a pastor to his church, and may be followed by a change if the result is not satisfactory.

When the time limit was being dis cussed by the bishops in their general assembly, much was said for and against it. Some members of the church held that it enabled a congregation to rid them-selves of a weak pastor without hurting his feelings. But this was answered by the argument that as at least five years was given to an efficient pastor in a church as a reward for his success, the removal of a man before the expiration of the time limit would be a more open evidence of dissatisfaction than if there was no time limit. And to prevent an undestrable pastor remaining in a church indefinitely, it was said by advocates of removing the limit, that appointments would be made yearly as before, and no difficulty would exist in the making of changes desired by the congregations What, if any, changes will be made in Portland cannot be forefold, even by those best informed. Rev. H. D. Atchison's resignation at Grace has been accepted, Indianapolis, will be sanctioned. No one ever suspects that Taylor-Street will part with Dr. H. W. Kellogg at the present. On the East Side few changes are expected. Dr. L. E. Rockwell. of Centenary has closed a prosperous year, and has been cordially recalled, an action which the conference will doubtless heed. Rev. A. L. Hawley, of Trinity Methodist, has been recalled, because of his very satisfactory services. During the past year the church mortgage has been cancelled and Mr. Hardy is credited with the good work. Rev. A. S. Mulligan, at Mount Tabor, has also made a good record for work during the past year, and in recognition his congregation especially called him to return. The finances of Central Church, in Albina, have been kept in excellent shape as a result of the efficient work of Rev. W. T. Kerr. So well has he filled his pulpit in every respect that he has been honored with an urgent call to return. At Sunnyside the church loses its old pastor in the expulsion of Dr. S. A. Starr from the ministry and church successor will have to be named for that place. A strong man is particularly needed to heal the disaffections arising from the charges against the old pastor. Who will be selected by the conference is unknown among the laity, and the officials have not divulged their knowledge. Other East Side churches may and may

PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 22.—(To the Editor.)—Not long since the writer, through The Oregonian, called the attention of the public in general, and the County mmissioners in particular, to the fact that East Twenty-sixth street had been nicely graded for lo! these several months, and that, if gravel or other surrace material was not soon laid, the Fall rains would make a mud bed of the street. He also remarked that Haw-thorne avenue would be as bad, and that the County Commissioners were tearing up other streets and roads and finishing none. Did the Commissioners take the hint? By no means, and at present the soft muddy surfaces of these streets are being churned into the gutters, and the grades destroyed. Now they intend to gravel "in the near future." and it will take two or three times as much surface material and never be as good as it would have been had it been finished in the first place. Perhaps the Commissioner who is responsible for this state of affairs will take cognizance of this, and be good enough to explain to the taxpayers why good work and money are thus wasted Last evening as the writer wheeled down Hawthorne avenue between East Eighth and East Twelfth, his attention was drawn to a little crowd on the right side of the street. The temptation to ride the little-used sidewalk as this point is very strong, as the street after a rain one of the worst in the city-a mass viseld mud. His suspicions aroused, the writer kept on in the mud, and, sure enough, when he arrived at where the crowd congregated, a sight both humorous, and at the same time disgusting met his view. A great fat policeman had arrested or detained two lady bicyclists for daring to ride the walk at this point. A day or so earlier, he noticed this policeman on the corner behind a apparently lying in wait for any lady or man cyclist, that he might have the

One Sample Plano, a Nearly New Kimball, a Beautiful Chickering and Others.

Here are three specially attractive bargains for well-to-do people, who appreciate and can afford to buy the best. One is a brand-new sample plano, left with us by the traveling representative of a prominent New York factory. It sells for 440 everywhere. It has been shown in four or five different cities, but shows no use or wear. Sold for factory's account; $357 cash takes it.

Also a large, very fancy mottled walnut-cased Kimball, in perfect condition. Only an expert could tell it from brand-new. Belongs to the former manager of a prominent mercantile house, who has resigned his position and gone east. He paid $425 for it. Needs money now, and if sold this week, $328 will take it; $390 on time.

if sold this week, $328 will take it; $390 on time.

A fancy Chickering upright, not yet seven years old. Beautiful in every way. Belongs to a well-known Portland business man, who met with reverses, and has removed to Pennsylvania. Sold for the benefit of local creditors. Title perfect, and we guarantee plano in every particular, $865-$100 down and $30 monthly secures this rare bargain.

Remember these are strictly choice planos, exactly as good as new: yea, probably better, for a good plano will improve during the first four or five years of careful usage. Ellers Plano House unconditional warranty—"money back if not satisfactory, or as represented," applies to these instruments, as well as to every plano sold.

Have also quite a number of the ordinary second-hand plano bargains: A fais Sherman & Clay plano, a Gaylord & Co., a Fischer, a Haines Brox.' a Hailet & Davis, etc., at prices ranging from $85 to $185 on terms of $10 or $20 down and $5 or $7 a month. Remember the number, 351 Washington street, Ellers Plano House.

It Worked Well.

Indianapolis Press. "And have you tried the plan of greet-ing your husband with kind words when he comes home late, as I suggested?" asked the elderly friend. "I have," said the youngish lady, "and it works like a charm. He stays home all the time now, trying to figure out what is the matter."
