PHEASANT SEASON. - General Freight and Passenger Agent Markham, of the Southern Pacific, is convinced that the general public overestimates the num-ber of Portland sportsmen who go out shooting Mongolian pheasants, trampling down grain stubble and ignoring trespass notices. The special train that went up the West Side Sunday night expressly for the convenience of sportsmen, to get them out into the bird country at the begianing of the shooting season, had but 85 patrons, when nobody supposed the num-ber would fall short of 190, and few would have been surprised if three times that number had gone. Now Game Warden Quimby himself returns from a two days' hunt and reports unsatisfactory results He says the hunting has been generally ppointing since the season opened hay afternoon he drove up to Scrog gin Valley, in Yambill County, and the road was literally lined with flocks of pheasants. The sun was shining, and the weather was fine. Next day it was coel and cloudy, and some rain fell, and the birds kept to the brush, as if legal notice under seal of a court had been served upon them that they were to be fair game on that day. This was disappinting to hunters, who were prepared find the birds in the fields. Mr. Quimby also says the fine dogs are not trained right for getting birds. They will not re-trieve, and they won't follow the birds into the brush. The country-bred dogs will do both, and are of great assistance to the hunter. Farmers now cut their stubble so short that it does not conceal the dog, and the bird sees him and makes for the brush, and the dog that is too high-toned or too ignorant to follow into the brush is of comparatively little use to the pheasant hunter. A few were successful in their hunt at the opening of the season. Richard Scott, of Milwaukle, said a party of boys from his town returned yesterday morning from Linn County, bringing 75 birds, 16 of which were old ones, weighing four pounds each, Watt Montieth, who hunted near Mc-Minnville in a country supposed to over-flow with pheasants, reports only a fair bag, and he usually gets birds where there are any to be shot. SHOT HER BEST PULLEY.-An angry writes to The Oregonian from Hillsboro that on Tuesday a young man, tall, clad in hunting costume, dark suit, with stockings to the knee, and a red cap, shot a fine "young game pullet," beionging to her. The pullet was peaceably feeding along the garden which skirts the road. How careless of the little pullet The new huntsman, his bag comfortably empty, saw the pullet, and fired 100 yards from the house. The shot was startling. "lady of the house" came to the He saw her watching him, and did not cross to get his game, pretend-ing to be looking at the ferns across the When she went out to feed her kens, she found the pullet shot Ill." It will likely die. Now! The writer concludes: "We are peaceable citizens out here, and work hard for what we have, and we don't intend no such starved chicken eaters shall rob us in that way. If he will come to my house I will cook a chicken for him and try to fill him up, but if any more shooting is done near here, we will prosecute.

CROOKS MUST Go.-Hobos, crooks and ex-convicts, who have been flecking into the city since the first approach of crisp Winter weather, are being daily ordered to leave by Chief of Police McLauchian. As soon as the members of the fraternity show their well-known jaws and low fore-heads, the policemen recognize their heads, the policemen recognize their game immediately. "The Chief would like to have a talk with you," the patrolman usually suggests, pleasantly, in the course of a conversation, in which yarns are swapped, and news of "guns" and "cop. pers" exchanged with surprising freedom. This suggestion is received with wry face, but unless there is a job in sight it suffices to send daily to the police station half a dozen ill-assorted men, some flashily-dressed bunco steerers, others coarse and rough and brutish, Chief of Police McLauchian again receives them pleasantly. In fact, there is a farcical element in it. Officers and the suspicious "guns" vie in politeness, but the Chief has the upper hand. The in-terview over, the visitor either leaves the city in 24 hours or gets sentenced for vagrancy when picked up again.

CHAMPIONEHIP BILLIARDS.-The billiard committee of the Commercial Club has arranged to open the season with a series of championship games, both for billiards and pool, and has sent a pro-posal to the officials of the Multnomah Club for an interclub handicap tourna-ment. At the Commercial Club the following plan has been adopted: Twenty billiard players and 20 pool players are divided into five sets or classes, of four each, and if it is found necessary the four members of each class are handicapped, making it possible for the winner to play the same number of games as every other one must play. It is proposed that the winners of these five sets shall be matched against the winners from the Multnomah Club, selected by a sim-fliar competition, the men to be handl-capped by the joint committees of the clubs. At the Commercial Club this tournament will be continued until the first and second winners are known, and they will be awarded two very fine cues. Should the Multnomah Club accept this proposal, it is believed greater interest will be taken in the game.

TIMBER PEST.-E. Thomas, a Beaverton farmer, brought in a branch of "bull-pine" from his place yesterday, which was budly eaten by a pest resembling the cutworm which ravaged potato patches last Summer. The worms build a large nest of the pine needles, which they chewed up and deposited in the form of a pine burr on the branches. In the interior of this nest they have their headquarters, enjoying the society of big, black ants and a lot of small files which a lively motion when the nest was disturbed. The worms, too, are able to scamper off at a lively rate when dropped from the branch. Whether it is a new timber pest or merely a colony of cutworms preparing to put in the Winter on the branches of the bullpine it will take an Oregon Agricultural College professor to decide. BARLY FROSTS.-Nights have been chilly in Portland of late, and overcoats have felt comfortable, though they have not been indispensable. On the higher elevations, away from the river, light frosts have appeared in the early morning, but near the river the tomato vines have thus far been saved by the fogs which arise from the surface of the water. Heating stoves have been put up in dining and sitting-rooms, from which they had been removed in the early Summer, and the family circle again hovers about the fire-place to enjoy the long evenings. Although mild, the weather begins to ad-monish people in this latitude of approaching Winter. ROADS IN FINE CONDITION,-County roads and cycle paths are now in fine condition, as the Summer dust has been laid and constant wear has had a hardening effect on the surface of the thoroughfares. Driving and wheeling in the outskirts have become popular, and no sprinkling is needed to make the high-ways delightful. The Fall thus far has been all that the teamster or the wheelmen could ask in this part of Oregon. Bots' BRIGADE, ATTENTION!-The first neeting will be held tomorrow at 7:20 M. in the drill hall, 728 Everett street. Applicants for membership please be present. Ages of admission, 12 to 18 years.

RESULT OF EARLY TRAINING.-Robert Dewling, of Eastern Multnemah County, came to The Oregonian office yesterday to relate a story of a bird, which he thinks is a parallel to the account of a wool-bearing calf given a reporter by Henry Johnson, of the Lower Columbia. Mr. Dowling says that he found a woodpecker's nest in a hole under the eaves of his barn, and surreptitiously placed in it one of the eggs of a bantam pullet. The eggs were hatched in due time, and the woodpeckers fed the downy bantam with as much care as if it had been a member of their own featherless and ill-lookber of their own featheriess and ill-look-ing brood. Time wore on, and the chick took lessons in flying, which were at-tended only by partial success. It was noticed, however, that its beak was ab-normally developed, and that its voice bore a striking resemblance to those of its foster parents. But the most remarkable thing about it was the fact that when it was returned to the barnyard, instead of scratching for sustenance with his young companions, it spent weary hours hammering at the fence posts, aphours hammering at the tenes posts, apparently endesvoring to extract worms therefrom. Mr. Dowling says that in the section of the country in which he is raised, children who speak untruths are smothered in their early childhood, so that no liars ever attain years of dis-

Barrymore Smith, whom every patron of Cordray's Theater knows well, was made a happy man last evening after the performance of "The Idol's Eye" had closed, It was his birthday; and as an expres sion of their esteem the employes at the theater had a little surprise planned, Mr. Smith was asked hurriedly to lock up in front after the crowd passed out and neet John Henderson, of the company, the object of the call, he hastened back, and was at once surrounded by the employes and orchestra, while Mr. Henderson began in deliberate tones: "Mr. Smith, this is your birthday. You are known and loved by every traveling the-atrical man who has visited the Northwest during the past 10 years. No better evidence of your fidelity and competency is needed than the fact that Mr. Cordray has kept you as his secretary ever since he has been in the business here. others than traveling men held you in esteem. Your fellow-employes have chosen this opportunity to express their senti-With that some bundles were unloaded into the hands of the completely surprised secretary, and congratulations were pouring in. Mr. Smith was unable to express his appreciation of the kindly purpose of those present.

BAKER CITY PROSPERITY,-George L. Baker returned from Baker City yesterday, where he will move with his family next week. As to conditions in Baker City, Mr. Baker reports that there is a number of new buildings going up. and that it is almost impossible to get a cottage to live in. As fast as they are built they are rented. Next Spring there will be more buildings erected than in the past three years. A fine water system is being put in, which brings the water from a mountain stream 30 miles distant giving the city as pure water as Portland A new sewerage system is being built, and plans for paving the streets are being made. The mining men are coming back for the Winter, and the hotels and lodging-houses are crowded to their capacity. The new Masonic Temple is about completed, and the new Opera-House is to be ready for occupancy January 1. There is no excited boom spirit in the town, but a steady, healthy condition of progress and prosperity.

UP THE MOLLIE MAGUIRES. James McParland, general manager of Pinkerton's Detective Agency for the Pa-cific Coast, is at the Portland. Mr. Mc-Parland, whose headquarters are at Denover 35 years, and first attained celebrity by his success in running to earth the Mollie Maguires, who had terrorized Pennsylvania in the early '70s. His work on that occasion kept him busy for over three years, during which time he tolled underground with the coalminers, and obtained data whereby 22 men were hanged for murder and 45 sent to the Penitentiary for various terms. He is now making a business tour of the Coast cities, lookand then take his departure for Denver via San Francisco.

PORTRAIT OF LINCOLN .- At Cogswell's studio, 502 Goodnough building, there is a rare picture of President Lincoln. 1t is a reproduction by Cogswell himself of the portrait now in the White House, which was painted by him over 30 years ago by order of Congress, for which he was paid $3000. The portrait now here is a three-quarter length, instead of full length, but in all other respects it is an exact duplicate of the White House pic. ture. One of its chief values is that it represents Lincoln as he appeared before the great labors, annoyances and worriments of office had turned him into a careworn man. The White House picture will, it is said, be regarded always as the standard portrait of Lincoln, and this copy by the artist himself is well worth

LECTURE ON CAPE NOME.-A lecture on Cape Nome was well attended in the First Presbyterian Church at Sellwood last evening. Rev. Dr. J. F. Ghormley, who had recently returned from the famous beach, brought a number of views with him, and these were thrown on a screen, with fine effect, while Mr. Ghormley's descriptions were listened to with good attention. Mr. Arthur Kelly sang a sole, "Ships That Pass in the Night." and Mr. R. H. Miller rendered the bass solo, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Hammond Gers Another Road.-A. B. Hammond, owner of the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad, is now in California. He has purchased the Eureka & Klamath River Railroad from the Vance family, of Humboldt County, together with a large sawmill and heavy timber interests. The road, which is 30 miles long, runs from Samoa to the Mad River country by way of Arcata, and Mr. Hammond intends to extend it to Crescent City, via Trinidad. Rival roads are fight. ing to prevent Hammond getting into Eureks, and he is likely to have a legal battle over the matter.

No Action as to the Assessor.-The Board of County Commissioners was in regular session yesterday, but did not take up the matter of the Assessor's fall-ure to deliver up the assessment roll index in accordance with the order served upon him Monday. At the Assessor's office it was said that Captain Greenleaf was expected to be home today, and the Commissioners were disposed to await his return before taking further action in the matter.

APPLES GOING TO WASTE.—Writing to Secretary Dosch, of the State Board of Horticulture, A. H. Carson, of Grant's Pass, commissioner of the third horti-cultural district, says: "The premature fall of the apple crop in this section has been very great. My estimate of June 1 was for 80 per cent of a crop, but the fall has been so great that our people will not market over 40 per cent of a crop." GENEROUS UNENOWN CONTRIBUTOR -- A well-dressed man, of middle age and pros-perous appearance, called at the Cham-ber of Commerce office yesterday and handed $25 to Assistant Secretary Masten for the Galveston relief fund. He de.

clined to give his name. MRs. S. A. HECLNER and Miss Millie Heilner are at the Vendome. At home Oregon Mining Stock Exchange 10:30 A. M. | Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

BULLET IN KNEE EIGHT YEARS.-Thon H. Tongue, Jr., son of Congressman Samaritan Hospital four weeks for an from the bone of his leg near the kne joint after it had been there eight years. While he carried the ball, the young man enjoyed robust health most of the time, and he was a good football player, but periodically he would have serious trouble with his knee. It would give him severe pain and suffering for a time, and then heal again. By the aid of the X-ray, which was unknown when the young man received the injury, the bullet was located, and a surgical operation was determined on. The ball was completely im-bedded in the bone just below the knee. It was a large ball, 44 caliber, and upon penetrating the bone it battered and spread. But the thickness of an eggshell separated it from the joint. It has been successfully removed, and the young man is well on his way toward recovery. It is not expected that there will be any permanent harmful effect. Mr. Tongue owed the presence of the bullet to the accidental discharge of a gun.

WOMAN'S PRESETTERIAL MEETING .- The semiannual meeting of the Woman's Pres-byterial was held in the Calvary Church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Edgar P. Hill led the devotional exercises, and the pres-ident, Mrs. W. S. Holt, was in the chair. Reports were read by the secretary, Miss Agnes Kelly, and the treasurer, Mrs. E. B. Coman. Total contributions of $1635 95 were received. After a spirited discussion, it was decided to dispense with the Fall meeting of the presbyterial, the conclusion being that the society would profit more by devoting all energies to the annual Spring meeting. Papers arousing great interest were read by Mrs. S. L. McCommon on the "Freedmen"; Dr. Eliza Leonard's letters on life at Pekin, by Mrs. James Wilson; "Mormonism in Oregon," by Mrs. Duane Terry. The meeting closed with a discussion on "Better Work," led by Mrs. E. P. Moss-

LIVELY RUNAWAY .- First street, be tween Morrison and Yamhill, was the scene of a lively runaway yesterday A couple of cayuses hitched to a wagon parted their moorings and set sail for South Portland. A well-bred and neatly-groomed horse attached to a buggy was tied to a telegraph pole right in the line of march, and, like the innocent pup in a free-for-all dog fight, he was gath-ered in, stripped of his harness and shunted up on the sidewalk. The coal wagon was heavier than the buggy, and it jammed the latter against the telegraph pole and left it a total wreck. In the mix-up the cayuse that was trotting next to the pole lost his feet and slid over on the sidewalk. His companion did not work well single, so the runaway came to a sudden end, less than half a block from where it started, but with damage and excitement enough for a mile run.

DEATH OF MRS. W. C. NOON, JR.—Mrs., Fannie Bell Noon, wife of W. C. Noon; Jr., and daughter of T. J. Johnston, of this city, died at St. Vincent's Hospital early yesterday morning. She had been at the hospital a week, where she had to have an operation perform gone to have an operation personal. Her friends believed she was on the road to recovery, but her constitution, as a result of a recent attack of pleurisy, was too frail to stand the shock. Mrs Noon was born in San Francisco, but had lived in Portland since a child. She was of a most generous and charitable disposition, and her unassuming kindness toward all won for her the esteem of a large circle of acquaintances, who were shocked at the news of her unexpected death. The funeral services will be held at the home, on East Third and Halsey streets, at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

SOME DEALERS SELL PIANOS The Tone of Which Is Not in Accord

With Their Finer Sensibilities. Portland has a fine lot of piano-men; they are all good fellows; they all sell reputable goods; we have naught but praise for our competitors; we never abuse their goods; we don't want to build up our business by tearing theirs down; we want to succeed, and we want them to succeed too.

Nevertheless, as we have often said before, throw a stone at a parcel of dogs, and the one that gets hit will howl. A dealer who will call his rival a "jim-crow plano-pediar" or speak of him as a "would-be competitor," or call him a "preacher," or a "Jonah," is the dog that howls. When he makes a sale he whoops things up; he rushes into print; he tells the public that he has sold a plano, and to whom he has sold it, and if business does not keep up he prints it again and again. Possibly he will say that he has sold a plano to the best teacher in town, or to the greatest planist (and all the other teachers and planists are down en him for saying it, and he loses business on account thereof). It is the hindmost dog that yelps the hardest and longest, and when it comes to barking, a dog might as well bark at the moon as for an ordinary dealer to say anything against the planos we represent.

Long before any dealer in this city saw

Long before any dealer in this city saw the light of day, such planes as the Knabe, Hardman, Sohmer. Steck or Fischer had a world-wide reputation, and it was only very recently that the Ludwig, a newer plane, actually took the second prize at the world's fair, in Paris, in competition with the world. Go into most any elegant residence in the City of Portland; go among the profession and among the music teachers of the Northwest, and ask them, "From whence did you get your plane?" and most always they will say: "From the Wiley B. Allen Co."

It must be remembered that we have been in business here nearly a quarter of a century, and naturally during all this time, we have sold thousands and thousands of planos. We have handled a great many different lines, and it has taken us years to find out the very cholosest article, such as we can most highly recommend to our patrons. And in making this statement we need not reflect in any manner on our competitors planos. Still, when once a dealer becomes sour and sarcastic toward all the other dealers, there must be some cause for it. May it not be that he is in daily contact with something that sounds harsh to him. Perhaps, after all, the tone of the very planos he sells is not in accord with his liner sensibilities, and he doesn't know it.

The critical musical person who wishes only the finest possible piano, and who can afford to pay for the very highest quality, has practically no course left him but to buy a Weber. The Weber plane is the instrument which has been used by all later makers as a model, but the Weber still admittedly remains in an isolated position, for its exquisite tone quality and marvelous durability have never been equaled by later makers.

The Weber cases are strikingly in keeping with the musical excellence of the plane. They are beautiful, and the very rarest woods are used in their construction.
