Delightful Programme From the

Wagner Operas.

The Wagner evening given by Herr

Schott last night attracted a very ap-preciative and enthusiastic audience to the Bishop Scott Armory, Selections were given from six different operas of the great master, thus enabling the audi-explanations made between numbers by Mr. Vannod, and the reading of English translations by Miss Schuecking made the recital of great educational benefit to

The opening number on the programme, "Soumer ist Undank," Loge's song from "The Rheingold," was of special interest owing to the fact that this was the first time it had been heard in Portland. The powerful scene in which the God of Fire returns from his world-search after a

In pleasant contrast to the heavy num-ber from 'Das Rheingold' and the beau-tiful love-song from 'Die Walkuere,' were the two 'Meistersinger' numbers, "Am Stillen Heerd," with its genial ring of comedy, which sent smiles rippling over the audience, and Walter's famous "Prize Song." The "Grail Song." from

"Lohengrin," was down as the closing number, but the audience was of aother mind on this point. As they declined to leave their seats, Herr Schott, in answer to the persistent recall; generously sang melody as to make it, perhaps, the most noteworthy and delightful feature of the work of the programme devolved upon Mrs. Eleanor Ross, of Astoria. "In Sein-er Bluchte," Adriano's aria, from "Ri-enst." and Senta's ballade from "The Flying Dutchman," both make exhaust-ing demands upon the voice. Mrs. Ross put much passionate fervor into these two numbers, and renewed the feeling of friendship that had previously existed between her and Portland audiences.

Miss Marie Velguth assisted Miss her work in the softer passages and her dramatic fire in the heavy climaxes were

THUG ATTACKS A HERMIT

SEE CORNER WINDOW.

OLD MAN BRUTALLY BEATEN NEAR WEST PORTLAND.

Recipient of His Hospitality Savagely Assaulted Him With an Iron Bar.

The people living in the vicinity of West Portland are looking for a young man who is said to be a half-breed named James Anrutt, and who Sunday morning brutally assaulted an old hermit named Hill, probably with the intention of rop-bing him. Hill, who lives alone in a small cabin near West Portland and makes a living by raising bees and selling honey, took the youth in to give him shelter and a night's lodging, an act of hospitality be had shown to every tramp who visited him for a number of years. Monday morning a neighbor who called at his cabin found him in bed, suffering with severe bruises on the head, and ap-parently in a dying condition. He was taken to a house in the neighborhood, where, after his injuries were dressed, he recovered sufficiently to relate the cirstanes of the assault.

Anrutt, he said, had come to him Sat-urday seeking food and shelter. As he seemed to be both hungry and tired, Hist gave him something to eat and a bed to sleep in. The next morning the young man arose and asked for a basin to wash his face and hands in. His host turned to get one, when the basely ungrateful guest seized an iron bar that stdod up against the wall and began to beat his entertainer over the head with it. The old man cried "murder," and beat off the attack as best he could with his arms, one of which was broken by the blows of his assailant. The victim's shouts were heard by no one, but they evidently frightened his assaliant away, as he turned and fled from the cabin without making an attempt to rob his victim.

Although the case was not reported to the police, word reached West Portland yesterday that the half-breed had come to Portland, and a number of the residents of the place came to the city to look for

Hill has fived in the neighborhood for several years, keeping quietly to him-self most of the time, but never refusing an appeal from a hobo for food or shelter. As it was reported abroad that he had considerable money, he had been repeat-edly warned that some of his fil-favored guests would repay his hospitality by murdering and robbing him, but he al-ways replied that he guessed he was able to take care of himself, and continued to receive whoever applied at his door for

It is believed that Anrutt, who had hung about West Portland for some time, heard that the old man had money hidden in his cabin, and deliberately planned to kill and rob him. Hill suffered many bruises over the head, but fortunately the thug did not succeed in breaking his skull and he will be able to return to in just as soon as the inflammation in his brokes arm is reduced.

The affair has aroused the greatest in-dignation in the vicinity, as Hill has many friends, and if his assailant hapturn up around there again it is likely to go hard with him.

A warrant was issued from Justice Kraemer's court yesterday, and Sherin Frazier had several deputies out in
