SAMSOSET. I am glad that others as well as myself have had curiosity enough to inquire concerning the origin and meaning of the name Chemawa. Referring to what F. R. Strong said in the Oregonian of October 24, I desire to say that I, too, have the impression that "Chemawa" is a misspelling of the two Chinook words, Che Wawa. But he is not quite correct in his interpretation of the word. Chemawa is "new" not "true." True in Chinook is "delata." So "delata wawa" is true talk, or new language.

Some monster bridge timbers are being sawed out in Inman, Poulsen & Co.'s mill for transportation to California. The "sticks" are 15 feet long and 18 1/2 inches, and without a flaw. They are sawed out of selected timber and then planed, and are magnificent specimens of the timber of this country. A short time ago an order for timbers 39 feet long were filled. Over in the Orient there is demand for Oregon timber and this mill is filling an order from China.

They Must Again Furnish Proof

GASTON, Or., Oct. 26.—(To the Editor.)—Quite a number of young men in this precinct came of age last June in this precinct. Some of them have not yet furnished proof in time to vote by furnishing proof again this fall or will any voter who had to furnish proof in June have to swear his vote in again this fall? It seems that those who furnished proof in June should have had their names placed on the register, so as not to be placed to so much trouble this fall.
